

LEGAL BAN PLACED ON WEARING OF AIGRETTES AND MILADY IS WARNED

Young and old egrets and handsome specimen of plume obtained from parent bird.

This is addressed to the gentler sex. If you happen to be the owner of one of these beautiful white egret plumes and go sauntering down the street some day next week flaunting it, don't be surprised if a business-looking woman steps up to you and addresses you thusly:

"Madam, you are violating the laws of the United States and of the state of Oregon by wearing that egret plume in your hat. I am warning you at this time so that the plume will not be worn again, for I shall be obliged to cause your arrest for a second offense."

The woman who will make that little speech is Mrs. J. C. Murray, appointed by Mayor Albee as Portland's only police woman and recently appointed by William L. Finley, state game warden and president of the Oregon Audubon society, a special game warden especially to watch the egret wearers.

The ban on egrettes is at last going to be really and truly enforced.

There have been many laws governing and prohibiting the wearing of the expensive filmy plumage. They have been pretty generally evaded, however, by the milliners, mostly because there was no state law.

But no more. Congress has incorporated in its new tariff bill a clause forbidding the importation of any kind of wild bird plumage. Before that congress passed the Lacey act, forbidding the interstate shipment of wild bird plumage and the Oregon legislature last winter, anticipating the tariff action, passed a law forbidding the wearing of the egrette anywhere in the state.

"The women of Oregon are regarding the warnings that have already been given about wearing the egrettes pretty well," said Dr. E. J. Welty, secretary of the Audubon society.

"Most of the egrettes are now being worn at the theaters. I saw some fine ones last week. Egrettes can be seen on the hats of most of the actresses," said Dr. Welty. "We are going to stop that, too. We are going right into the theaters and back on the stage if necessary, and warn those women that the egrette must positively not be worn in Oregon."

The spread of the humane movement to limit the destruction of the beautiful birds that furnish this plumage has been extensive in the last few years. Magazine articles, lecturers and moving pictures have all helped to reveal the practice of the plume hunters of the south, who shoot the mother birds on their nests of little ones, or the father birds hunting food for the family, and stripping the lustrous plumage, skin and all from the backs of the fowls before they are dead.

The birds have the plumes that are so prized only at the time when they are hatching the young. To kill them means the death by starvation of the young ones, such as the one shown in the pictures above.

Countless millions of American egrets formerly inhabited the lake region of southern Oregon. They were almost as numerous as the passenger pigeon. But of all that colony, there is left today less than 50 birds. They live in a secluded place, 25 miles from Burns, on an arm of Malheur lake, in Harney county. All the rest have been killed off. These birds are being very closely protected by the Audubon society. State Game Warden Finley says the colony last summer and reports that it is propagating slowly.

MEMORIAL SERVICE IS HELD FOR PORTLAND MAN

Friends in Portland have received word of the memorial service held early this month at Belvidere, Ill., in memory of George H. Stockwell, of Portland, who met his death by drowning at the bar of the Nehalem river July 25. The body was not recovered. The services were held at the home of his parents October 4, and hundreds of people attended.

With a party of prominent Portland men on the afternoon that Stockwell met his death, he sailed out in a gasolene launch over Nehalem bar. Returning towards the river again, a comb turned the boat over and the occupants were thrown out. All but Stockwell were saved after clinging to the boat for several hours. Although the tide was coming in, the body was carried out by the undertow, it was declared.

After the accident his parents visited Portland and the scene of the drowning. Mrs. May E. Stockwell, the mother, on returning to Illinois, was attacked by a serious illness from which she only recovered two weeks ago.

BLASTING OUT ROCK ON UPPER COLUMBIA

Menace to navigation removed by the United States steamer Umattilla, shown in foreground.

By the blowing out by dynamite of a rock in the channel of the Columbia river three miles above Arlington, the United States government has removed another menace to navigation in the stream. The blast was put in at McCarthy's shoal. The rock was covered with only a foot of water at low tide, and was considered by navigators as a constant danger to passing craft. A charge of powder was put in sufficiently large to completely shatter the rock and distribute its fragments in the bed of the channel. The work was done by the crew of the U. S. S. Umattilla, S. V. Winslow master. United States engineers department, under the supervision of Major J. J. Morrow.

When Your Appetite Comes Back to You

It is a Sure Sign Your Stomach is Able to Work. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Give You a Rousing Appetite.

It is the greatest joy in the world to be able to eat what one wants and no misery can compare with that which comes when an appetite falls.

When the stomach cannot digest food the system revolts at the very idea of eating, but when the digestive apparatus is restored to its normal condition every quality of mind seems to make a man cheerful.

"That's the Way I Used to Look. What do you think of me now?"

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets mix with the food you eat. The stomach by its peristaltic action churns and moves the food around the stomach walls, the powerful ingredients in these tablets instantly begin digesting the food as they are forced through it and around it.

These tablets regulate the strength of gastric juices. If there is too much acid or alkali then Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets reduce or dilute these evil conditions and prevent the irritating and raw stomachs which always come with dyspepsia, indigestion, etc.

It is the very essence of pleasure to a stomach sufferer to know that he can digest any meal if he will only take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after eating.

The use of one of these tablets after meals will in a very short time restore your appetite to its normal condition and you will be able to enjoy your food with an old-time relish.

Every drug store carries Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Price, 50 cents.

REFUSAL TO TRANSFER STOCK CAUSE OF SUIT

Alleging repudiation of a mining stock obligation E. W. Hand has filed suit against A. J. Dwyer, a Portland mining man, Dwyer in Portland representative of the Standard Mining Leasing company of Callente, Nev., acting in the capacities of secretary, treasurer and manager.

According to the complaint he bought a number of shares of Standard stock from Dwyer, letting the latter hold them in trust. June 25 of this year he sold seven shares of his stock to E. C. Mattern for $1000. Mattern paid cash on the understanding that seven shares of stock would be transferred on the company's books to his name.

In spite of the fact that Hand sent $900 to Dwyer to pay for the stock, Hand says, it was never transferred to
