

JUNGLE BEASTS WILL WINTER IN PORTLAND

Circus Animals Will Be Quarantined at Country Club Inclosure.

Portland this winter will harbor a real circus. Throughout the rainy months the lions, tigers, elephants, camels, speckled chimeras and musical dingwits will bellow and risk at the Country club. By the terms of an agreement made today through the agency of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, A. C. Barnes' show will make this its headquarters until the summer season reopens.

For years the circus has maintained winter quarters at Venice, Cal., and the chamber has been trying to get it to come here. The chief reason for the final selection of Portland is because hay is cheaper here than in any other coast city, and circuses use lots of hay. Reasonable rent was offered by the receiver of the Country club and W. K. Peck, contracting agent of the Barnes concern, saw in the grounds an ideal location for housing a circus. Stalls numerous enough for all the horses may be had there and plenty of room for the caged animals. About 80 men will be quartered with the owners, to take care of the animals and rebuild the circus cars. Trackage adjacent to the grounds will enable the car repair work to go on.

It is expected that the outfit will pull into Portland within a few days, as soon as the season closes at Walla Walla.

Secretary E. C. Giltner of the Chamber of Commerce says the circus will make extensive purchases of hay, grain, meat, lumber and hardware.

ATTEMPT AT A RECESS GIVEN UP BY HOUSE

Leaders Underwood and Mann Unable to Agree on Date for Adjournment.

(United Press—Lead Wire.)

Washington, Oct. 21.—The attempt to have the house recess for 30 days was abandoned today. Majority Leader Underwood and Minority Leader Mann were unable to agree on the date for an adjournment, according to Underwood's announcement. The house will now formally convene daily and immediately adjourn.

Representative Mann thought President Wilson was not justified in believing that the currency bill soon would be passed.

The president said he was willing to have the house recess, and believed the bill would undoubtedly be passed at the extra session. He also expressed his willingness to have the number of reserve banks reduced and to permit some changes in the personnel of the federal reserve board.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT DISCLOSES HIDING PLACE OF SLAYER

He was the only reason Deputy Collier could get out of him.

Haas further stated that after the shooting Saturday evening, he went to his home at 1037 East Thirteenth street, remained there a short time, then went down town. He spent the night at the Columbia lodging house. He kept hidden there during the day, but ventured out to get the newspapers to learn the condition of his wife.

Last evening Haas went to the Globe hotel, engaged room No. 230, signing the name of Charles Miller. This morning about 8:30 o'clock he turned the revolver upon himself, the bullet entering the left side of his abdomen. Physicians report the wound not fatal, unless unforeseen complications arise. The shot was fired while he was

CONDON FURNISHES GOODLY SHARE OF OREGON'S BEST CROP

Condon, Or., Oct. 21.—The baby show which was held here recently proved interesting to people in this county and was successful from every point of view. A large number of babies were entered. The greater number of entries were made more to secure the physician's certificate as to the physical condition of the child than to compete for the prizes.

In bed, Motorcycle Patrolman Coulter answered the emergency call.

As he entered the room Haas reached for the gun, in another effort to end his life, but the officer took the weapon away from him. He was taken to the St. Vincent hospital.

Guard Put Over Man. In his statement to Deputy District Attorney Collier, Haas further admitted that he wished to kill himself, so he could end all his trouble.

Mrs. Haas' death came at 5:30 o'clock in the evening. In the middle of the afternoon she had rallied and asked to see her two children, but neighbors neglected to bring them to the hospital. The district attorney was able to get a short statement from her when she rallied. An inquest will be held Wednesday. Haas is under guard at the hospital, with a murder charge against him.

However, the suffragette will never insist on the privilege of being bald.

John Jackson Jr. won the grand prize as champion boy with a percentage of 88.1, and also won first in class B, 1 to 3 years, with Shirley Wrinke second in this class. Minerva Carolyn Blakey was awarded the grand prize, as champion girl, and she also won first in class D, 3 to 4 years, with Louise Cottrell second. In class A, 4 months and under, Giles Culver Parman was given first prize, with Louis William Fowler second. In class C, 3 to 4 years, William Jay Bowerman won first with Carl Portwood second. The prize offered for best twins was awarded to Joseph and Joel Cuendet. The judges in this contest were Drs. Donnelly, Miller and Wilhelm.

HEAVY PLANK HURTTLES THROUGH SHOP WINDOW

Pedestrians Escape Death by Hair's Breadth When Big Board Falls.

South side of the street in front of the Coffman Chocolate shop. Workmen tearing down a scaffold allowed a heavy timber to slip from their grasp. It hit the sidewalk and one of the Coffman show windows, almost simultaneously, breaking the window into bits and smashing its brass frame. It missed several passersby by a hair's breadth.

This is the second time within three weeks that an accident has befallen the Coffman window, a bolt dropped from the top of the new building smashing the same window on the previous occasion.
