NEWS GLEANINGS FROM THEATRICAL WORLD

Selection of Successful Plays Difficult Part of Stock Game, Says Baker.

"The study of plays, "said Manager George L. Baker, "it the most important part of the stock game. To the ordinary theatre goer it perhaps looks simple enough, and any man or woman could no doubt name several productions right off the reel that would please a large majority of people. Then it would perhaps be found that most of those selected were not obtainable for stock now. Out of a list of 200 or 300 that are available, they might get a half a dozen that looked like winners, but if you asked them if they would be willing to risk their money on the result of producing them you would doubtless note a hesitation. Confidence would begin to wane, especially when certain objections are pointed out to them that had not been thought of before. When it comes to laying out a list of between 40 and 50 plays for a season with all the difficulties counted, and to repeat this season after season in the same city, to practically the same theatre goers, you will see that some good guessing is necessary.

"When one sees the costly mistakes

"When one sees the costly mistakes those hig New York producers make every year—men with years of experience and unlimited money—when you consider the thousands of manuscripts and every conceivable type of actor to play them, well, the deeper the problem grows, and the more one comes to the conclusion that it is all one his gamble

"I have often found myself wanting to ask the policeman on the beat or the conductor on the ear his opinion about a certain play I am worrying about. And why not? They are the real judges in the end, and if the people don't like it, it goes into the discard and stays

Lecture of Interest.

The presence of Dr. Louis Kaufman Anspacher, noted lecturer of New York, who is playing in the city this week, with his wife, Katheryn Kidder, has been the inspiration for a lecture which has been hastily arranged by Miss Getta Wasserman and Mrs. Julius Louisson for Saturday morning, from 11 to 12 cclock at the Multnoman hotel. A number of prominent society matrons have heard Dr. Anspather speak in New York, and are especially interested in the lecture Saturday morning. He has chosen for his subject, "The Place of Drama Among the Arts," which he has given before the Drama league of New York with great success.

Georga Scarborough, who wrote 'The Lure," the intensely powerful drama on the white slave problem, was for years a special secret service agent in the employ of the United States department of justice, and was engaged in running down the white slavers. Thus he was no mere playwright seeking a sensational theme, but the theme sought him. His actual life experiences, revealing the terrible truths of this wide threatening evil, inspired him to write "The Lure." That it is indorsed by the United States white slave commissioner himself is guarantee positive of its fidelity to facts. This remarkable drama will be seen here, at the Hellig.
