

CRITICISM GENERAL FAVORABLE TO REPORT OF SCHOOL SURVEY

By Some Document Is Considered Utopian But Contains Valuable Suggestions.

The school survey has started a current of comment throughout the city. By it parents have been reminded in a new way that nothing is more important than the education of their children. Many of them have been startled to find how meager is their knowledge of methods now in use and improvements already made which would fit them to pass with entire intelligence on the suggestions for betterment contained in the survey.

The survey committee unanimously speaks belief in the great value of the report. Interviews with members of the committee yesterday failed to bring to light a single criticism of it.

Members of the school board receive it kindly, but with one possible exception, do not regard it as the utterance of a composite educational oracle.

When the survey asks that spirit to accomplish and surpass, the spirit of loyalty and enthusiasm, does not exist among principals and teachers it speaks of a condition that cannot be said to exist now, they aver.

In answer to the criticism that the curriculum is "dead" they point to the many recent changes having as purpose revitalizing influence.

School buildings are everywhere open.

Also, they assert, the charge that the school buildings are not used as much as they should, is no longer true because the school buildings have been thrown open as social centers in every district.

Among members of the board, Dr. Ernst A. Sommer was most critical of the survey yesterday. R. L. Sabie was most approving. The superintendent of schools says that improvements already made should be noted in connection with criticisms. Statements also were secured yesterday from members of the survey committee, the complete symposium being as follows:

Dr. Sommer's Views.

Dr. Ernst A. Sommer, member school board—"The criticism heretofore has been that Rigler as superintendent of schools ran the whole school system. Under the present school law authority is concentrated in the superintendent more than ever before. If we should continue present tendencies and act in line with the criticisms of the survey the school board would be eliminated as an educational factor and be merely a body to raise money to finance the work of schools."

"I do not agree with such a procedure. I do not believe the people of Oregon agree with it. They are getting away from, not towards, a one-man power. If the superintendent of schools did all the employing and discharging of the teachers, for instance, they would have no recourse whatever. Under the present system it is not up to the school board."

Survey Lacks Balance Wheel.

"I consider the survey a complete analysis of an ideal educational system. It lacks the balance wheel which the incorporation of the business element would have provided it. No five man, no one of whom is a business man, can come into the city and formulate a system that is capable of the best application to local conditions."

"The investigators should have interviewed the business men. Their report would have had more authority had they done so and it would have been more easily applicable to conditions here."

"They make recommendations as to the health of the children, but I have submitted a plan of physical education that I believe to be in advance of their recommendation. The plan I speak of involves such record of the physical condition of the child from time to time as would in the end furnish a complete index of his improvement or retrogression."

"It would involve a pathological study of each child and a recording of all ailments which each child is found to suffer from. If a child is absent from school we can then tell if it is due properly to physical disability. We would not usurp the functions of the health board but work with it. Generally speaking, we have been putting into effect the best of the recommendations made by the survey committee."

"We have been making improvements in accord with conditions as we know them. The survey has both good and bad features and I am sure we shall be willing to take advantage of its good features, used together with the business ability of members of the board to produce the ideal educational system."

Montague Agrees With Committee.

Richard W. Montague, chairman survey committee—"Speaking not as an authority but as a layman who knows the schools principally through their reaction on his own children, I believe the experts of the survey have laid an unerring finger on the defects of the present system and that they have pointed out the way by which the defects can be removed."

"I don't believe there is any intelligent patron of the schools who has not felt, perhaps vaguely and indistinctly, that the schools, in spite of their high development in some directions, fall to us for their children what they should do, for the very reasons and on the same grounds that the survey points out."

"We are now given the opportunity to do for our children what ought to be done for them in the way of education, at least to do that nearly as the present development of the science of education will permit."

"Whether we do or not depends, first, on whether everybody constituting a part of the school system is willing to take the document and study it without pride of opinion or foolish prepossession of the idea that what we have done is right merely because we have done it, and second, whether the public will recognize the efforts which we have every reason to hope the officers and employees of the schools will make. Let's do it!"

Chairman Sabie Praises Survey.

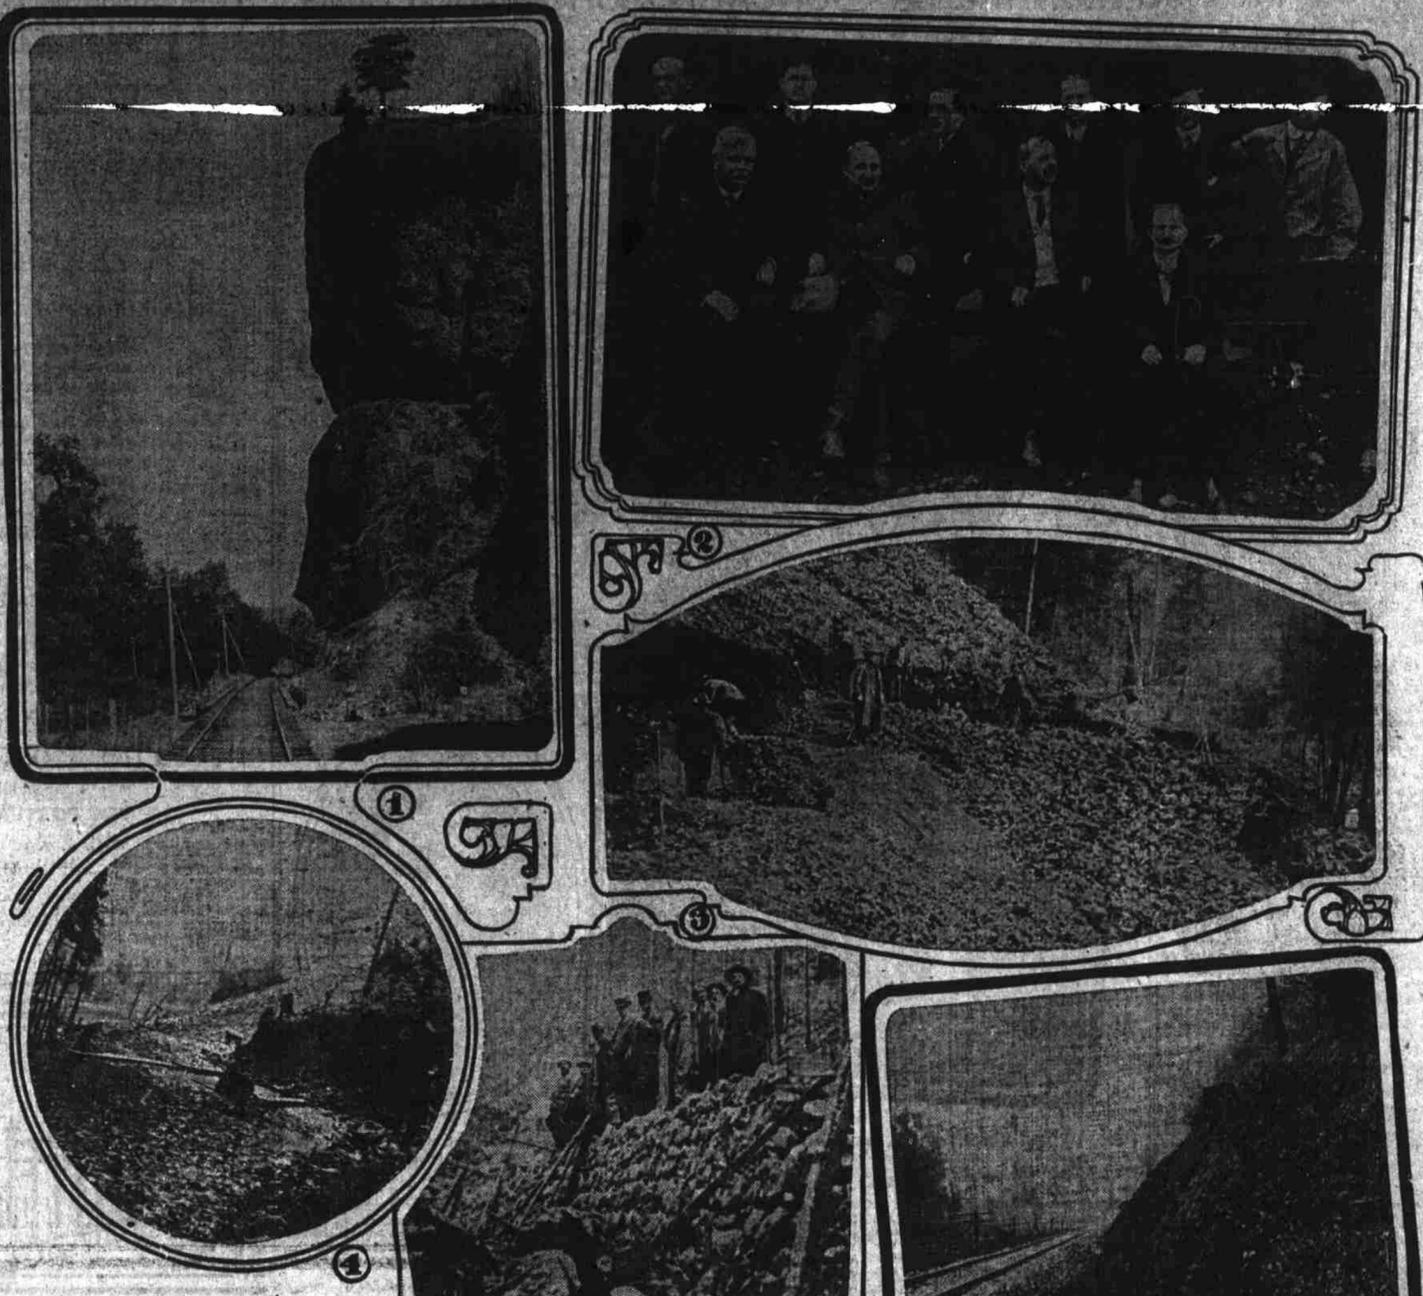

R. L. Sabie, chairman board of school directors—"I consider the school survey an epoch-making document. It is one of the most important things done in this community in many years. It should be studied most carefully by all who are interested in the public school system of Portland."

"It shows that the men who made the survey were qualified for their work which was done without fear or favor and with a most determined and sincere effort to get at the truth. The recommendations are in line with the doctrine of the best writers and speakers on educational matters today as to building, teachers and administration."

"As to the suggestion that the board should not elect the teachers, it will be found that for years the board has endorsed the recommendations of the superintendent and that very few teachers have been elected contrary to his recommendations."

CURVES OF SCENIC HIGHWAY ARE LONG AND GRACEFUL AND VIEW MAJESTIC

Route Along Upper Columbia Replete With Natural Grandeur.

The science of road making is exemplified in the construction of that portion of the Columbia river highway running through Multnomah county, now in progress. With an efficient organization the road is being built on a grade which in no place exceeds 6 per cent. The curves are long and graceful and there are no deep cuts, steep pitches or "deadman" curves. The road is so located that the ever-changing panorama of waterfall, rugged, rocky peak and expanse of river is brought into full view.

With the completion of the grade in the vicinity of Multnomah Falls now under way, it will be possible next season for vehicles to reach the falls by making temporary use of the Latourelle grade and abandoned railway grade until the permanent highway is completed.

This temporary use will afford the public an opportunity to cheaply realize that within 20 miles of Portland they have one of the greatest scenic highways in the world.

Majestic View Afforded.

When the permanent road is completed one of its most commanding points will, in the opinion of Consulting Engineer Lancaster, be at the summit of the large rocky bluff between Rooster Rock and Latourelle. From this spot the lights of Portland can be seen to the westward while to the eastward the view will extend to Cascade Locks.

To reach the bluff the road will descend from the cliff near Chanticleer Inn into the amphitheatre back of Rooster Rock and thence work up to the summit of the bluff where a turn will be made before descending into the amphitheatre back of Latourelle to the river.

Another engineering feat will be the construction of a concrete viaduct around a rocky point just west of Multnomah Falls.

This viaduct will be 400 feet in length and its construction is necessary owing to the fact that the point is built up of loose rock which cannot be dug into on account of slides.

125-Foot Tunnel Planned.

At Oneonta gorge there will be a tunnel of 125 feet through a massive rock. Emerging from the tunnel going eastward the traveler will get a magnificent view of St. Peter's and the Cathedral spires, a view that rivals anything offered by the famous Yosemite valley.

The preliminary hearing of John Connally, manager of the Western Zinc company, in the Rothchild building, was continued yesterday afternoon in municipal court until Monday. This continuance was allowed by Judge Stevenson after both sides had made an extended argument in which the city asked for more time, while the defendant insisted upon trial at once.

Connally is jointly charged with Henry Connors, who is under arrest at Buffalo, N. Y., for obtaining $150 from Mrs. Jennie Rieman. Detective Royle is on his way east now to return Connors to Portland for trial. It is charged in the complaint that Connors induced Mrs. Rieman to send him $150 with which to help a friend out of trouble. Letters to Connally from Connors impli-

GERMANY PLEASSED BY THE AMERICAN TARIFF; PRESIDENT IS PRAISED

Manufacturers of That Country Will Not Be Slow in Taking Advantage.

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The German newspapers, which from the start were inclined to doubt the sincerity of President Wilson, cannot find words warm enough to praise him because he has shown that his promises were not of the common or election variety.

America's new tariff is hailed here with great joy. It is pointed out how strong were the capitalistic forces working against President Wilson.

At the same time it is emphasized that the revision of the American tariff is very far from free trade and Germans are warned against believing that it means an end to the "chicanery" of the American customs authorities which have been a source of so much annoyance to German exporters, though it cannot be denied that the door has been opened a little wider.

German manufacturers will not be slow to make use of the new advantages and opportunities offered them and at the same time it is perfectly clear to German statesmen that if these opportunities are not to be lost again, Germany on her side must be prepared to extend a friendly hand and make corresponding concessions to America.

This is generally conceded to be absolutely necessary, for nowhere else does the proverb "Do ut des" hold more good than in commercial relations between nations.

After the ceremony they left for their home on the farm.
