

INTERSTATE BRIDGE NOT TO RAISE TAXES

Report is circulated that an opposition to the interstate bridge has arisen, given authority by the assertion, "It will increase taxes."
The answer of the interstate bridge committee is:
"The interstate bridge is one project involving an issue of bonds that will not increase taxes."

"The state of Oregon will pay the interest on the bonds under authority of an act passed by the last legislature. Tolls will be charged to cross the bridge and the revenue therefrom, based on the income of the present ferry, will be enough to meet all interest and maintenance charges, and leave a margin for a sinking fund.
"On the other hand, the benefits of the bridge are so obvious that even if the interest were not paid by the state, or the cost of interest and maintenance not derived from tolls, it would be the best of investments, in consideration of the electric railway building, the broadened trade area, facilitated business, and lessened cost of transporting wood and agricultural products to the city."

PIONEER WOMAN DIES FROM HEART TROUBLE

Mrs. Margaret Probstel Wagenblast, 61 years old and a former resident of Vancouver, Wash., died at 6:30 o'clock last evening at her home, 795 Haight street, after an illness of seven weeks, from heart trouble.
Mrs. Wagenblast was a native of Missouri and was born there January 6, 1852. The same spring the family started for the coast by ox team and reached Vancouver in the fall of that year. They took up a homestead on Fourth Plain, on which she grew to womanhood. In 1869 she was married to Jacob Wagenblast and in 1882 moved to Portland.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons and three daughters: James H. Wagenblast of Salem, Or.; Jacob W. Wagenblast of Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. William O'Mally, Mrs. J. V. Tammis and Mrs. W. J. Asplund, all of Portland. She is also survived by four brothers and three sisters—George W. Probstel of Weston, Or.; A. J. W. W. and C. E. Probstel, all of Vancouver; Mrs. J. B. DuPuis of Weston, Or.; Mrs. Elizabeth Wright of Portland and Mrs. Eugene Berch of Oreganda.
The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from Knapp's chapel, Tenth and Columbia streets. Rev. Mr. Hill, rector of a Portland Episcopal church, will officiate. Interment will be made in the Masonic cemetery.

CONSTABLE ON TRIAL ON PERJURY CHARGE
The trial of John F. Mitchell, constable of St. Johns, on a charge of perjury began this morning before Circuit Judge Davis. Mitchell testified before the grand jury, during the investigation of charges against Charles Moy of selling liquor on Sunday, that he was not in Moy's place of business at 111 Burlington street, St. Johns, on Sunday, June 1. Other witnesses testified that Mitchell was present and that he bought a round of drinks for members of the crowd in the place.

Attorney W. T. Vaughn made a motion for continuance before the trial began which was overruled by Judge Davis. He alleged that he had understood that the case was to be tried before Judge McGinn October 29 and that he was not prepared to do so until today. Deputy District Attorney Collier disputed the affidavit and Judge Davis ordered that the trial proceed. Mitchell alleges that the charge is the result of spitework.

Milady Becomingly Gowned Means Milady Correctly Corseted

There is no one item of women's dress that requires the care and consideration that the choice of a proper Corset does. It is the foundation upon which the perfect gown is built. Poor corseting means poor dressing—the immutable law of cause and effect.

The perfect Corset combines comfort, graceful lines, perfect fit and elasticity—a combination that is found in Redfern Corsets.

Redfern Corsets are perfectly designed, made of fabrics most pliant, and so accurately boned that the form, with the first fitting, takes on the contour of the Corset. They are so elastic that it is possible to bend with freedom and breathe easily. They give a perfectly natural figure, possible only in a Corset that is designed to fit the figure of the wearer.

Redfern Corsets come in models to suit all figures—the slender, the medium and the stout—and in a variety of materials. The range for choice is large in both style and cost, the prices varying from $3.00 to $6.50.
