Jesse-Criswell Wedding.

The home of Mrs. William Bond, spater of the groom, was the scene of one of the pretty weddings of the week Sunday evening. October 26, when Charles Frederick Jesse claimed as his bride Riss Nora Belle Criswell. The house was tastefully decorated with ferns and palms. The bride, who is of the brunette type, looked charming in a gown of pale blue charmeuse, and carried a shower bouquet of Bride roses and illies of the valley. Miss Estells Criswell attended her sister. Her gown was of white chiffon over pink allk, and she carried a shower bouquet of Bridesmaid roses. James Ryan, nephew of the groom, acted as best man.

The ceremony was read by Rev. C. A. Grier, and was witnessed by about 50 of the relatives and close friends of the bride and bridegoom. An orchestra played appropiate airs throughout the evening.

WHEN A MAN LIES

By Edna K. Wooley.

H, YOU never can believe a woman?

There is was again—the old opinion that women are chronic liars. It seems to be so deep rooted that even truth can be to be so deep rooted that over dig it up.

Yet when it comes to deliberate lying to gain an end op to hide sevicin posters, or just for the sake of variety, for elicerated openfaced lying, the prize must go to mascullnity.

A man can lie without a grick of conscience. He will justify it in the name of business, or in that "all's fair in love and war." And every man believes it his bounden duty and inalienable right to lie

One can tell when a woman lies. Her conscience troubles her. She is a little afraid of her soul's salvation. But a man has practised so much and his conscience is so seared that he can prevaricate without a beiraying regret.

Don't forget that the wise ones made Ananias a man.

A man fondly believes he is always believed, especially when he is prvaricating to a woman. It sometimes if he could look into the understanding of the woman he would be amazed at the half smile he'd find there. Really these guilible women are often more intelligent than masculinity dreams.

It is safe to say that there are more man peacefully sure that their prevarications are holding good than there are wives and mothers and sweathearts who are not "wise." But woman long ago realized the value of apparent credulance, and that's how the half smile came into being in Martha's soul, carefully hidden while she listens to William's whoppers.

Too many of us price ourselves upon truth telling in the matter of disagreeables. Wouldn't you rather be married to a man who told you that you were looking younger every day than one who commented upon every crow's foot? What do you think of a wife who is frank about your faults, but somehow never thinks of commenting upon your virtues, either real or fanciful?

One of the happlest women I ever knew had a husband who lied to her continually. Everybody size knew he was unfaithful to her. But nobody told, and she died believing in him.
