

Social and Personal

THURSDAY and Friday will be gala days in society. Aside from the great ball Friday evening to be given by Cohou and Mrs. Ide, and the subscription dance Wednesday night for the younger set of smart society, every social set or circle has for either Thursday or Friday evenings and it is safe to predict that there will be no dullness throughout the city the busy part of the winter season.

Goblin faces are already to be seen peeping from store windows proclaiming the approach of one of the most fascinating of all holidays. Children's parties are planned by the score.

Fewer small bridge and tea parties will take place, however, because so many are on the qui vive for the reception and ball of Friday evening.

The house was prettily decorated with Halloween pumpkins and autumn leaves. The table was decorated with large yellow chrysanthemums and a large birthday cake with 21 lighted candles. The diversion of the evening was spent with music, cards and dancing. The highest honors fell to Miss Ann Nelson and Edward Brady. Miss Isabel Conannon rendered a vocal solo. Society Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Ritter (Lettie Sorenson), whose wedding was an event of October 14, have just returned to Portland from their wedding trip to San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gerlinger are sojourning in the east, where they have been visiting friends and relatives of Mrs. Gerlinger.

from the state superintendent's office soon after the holidays.

The list is to be used as suggestive matter by teachers in shaping the work of students toward the occupations which they expect to follow after they are out of school. The list was partially read by the state superintendent, and because of its unusual features and revolutionary character, caused somewhat of a sensation in the institute. The subjects suggested by Churchill are:

Vocations for girls. All of the subjects mentioned, the superintendent says, he considers honorable and necessary occupations, and believes that practical information should be given along these lines rather than compelling the student to follow the beaten paths of the text books, to the general and of the mere passing of an examination. The six month course to be offered contains about 80 subjects.

Superintendent Churchill made this explanation of the course:

"The purpose of this course is not so much vocational guidance as vocational information. Some 80 occupations are presented during the longer course, the class being ephorones. In studying each of these vocations, we touch upon its healthfulness, remuneration, value to society and social standing, as well as upon the general education, special preparation and natural qualifications necessary for one to succeed in it.

"The work is supplemented by addresses from practical men and women now engaged in various occupations, and by first-hand investigation of the community vocations.

"We believe that this course, besides being intrinsically interesting to the respective boys and girls, will give them with the information, greater respect for all kinds of honorable work; will help them later to choose more wisely for their life work; will convince them of the absolute necessity for thorough preparation before entering any vocation, and finally and naturally will hold many of them in high school longer, and will mean the completion of the full course to some, at least, who otherwise would have dropped out."

BOYS CAUGHT AS THEY PREPARE FOR JOY RIDE

County Agent Harry Bulger spent a busy hour last Saturday night, which resulted in the arrest of Irving Oliver and Leonard Cabala on a charge of attempting to steal an automobile. About 8 o'clock he observed the boys trying brakes on various machines parked in front of the Heilig theatre. From that place they wandered to two other theatres, to the Journal building, the post-office, the Multnomah hotel and finally to Stark street, between Third and Fourth streets. Each machine they passed was tried until the last place was reached.

At that point they found S. D. Vincent's automobile and worked the brakes. Then one cranked the machine and they prepared to start off. Bulger arrested them before they started. Under the coat of one of the boys he found license tag No. 2343, which had been stolen earlier and which he evidently intended to put on the Vincent car in place of the tag on that car. Young Oliver was recently arrested at Cottage Grove, where he and other boys had taken an automobile stolen in Portland, and Judge Geena of the juvenile court sentenced him to the reform school, paroling him on condition that he keep away from automobiles in the future. The terms of the parole provided that he should be taken to the school without further court procedure if he broke the parole, but he is to be given an opportunity to explain his actions in court next Saturday. Meantime he is held in the county jail. The other boy has never been in trouble in the court before, and was allowed to return to work this morning. He is to come before the court Saturday.

Prince Sarath Ghosh, formerly a potentate of India, the latest of many and history, returned yesterday on a journey of enlightenment. The prince has foreworn his royal aspirations to dabble in American literature and reap the emoluments of the lecture platform.

"India was the cradle of the human race," declared the prince, who talks like an Englishman and wears clothes made in the northwest. "The people realize their antiquity and the historical bearing they have upon other races. The wise trader will take this into account.

The Germans are taking away from England the bulk of the Indian trade. When they start wondering where they can get more business, they begin to study Hindu philosophy. If they have a can of food to sell and find the market slow, they paste on a label bearing the picture of some ancient Hindu goddess. That appeals to the religion or the superstition of the people and they buy it. Likewise, instead of printing the name of the article in German or English, they print it in Sanskrit letters. That gets the Hindu where he is most vulnerable and so the Germans reap the benefit."

The prince is careful how his name is spelled.

"If you drop the 't' from my first name, you make it 'Sarah,' and I am not a girl," he said. "If you drop the first 'h' in my last name you make it 'Gosh,' which is almost profane. So I like strict attention paid to the spelling."

Prince Ghosh lectured the other day at the Oregon Agricultural College. He is writing a series of stories for a leading magazine on the adventures of certain Hindu characters in America.

Marie: Your shortsightedness and squinting are probably caused by a weak and overworked condition of the eyes. I do not think your eye troubles are serious; they can be relieved with the daily application of two or three drops at a time of this simple tonic: Dissolve an ounce of extract in a pint of water. This will be a great remedy as well as a beautifier and will prevent that squinting which is apt to make crow's-feet and lines about the eyes. Take my advice; don't worry.

Hilda: There are many methods advocated for reducing the chin; but after all, there is nothing so good as to keep down the general flesh. And this does not require any vigorous dieting or exercising if you will take this simple remedy which you can mix at home. Get four ounces of parrot's at the drug store, and dissolve it in 1 1/2 pints water. Take a tablespoonful before meals. It will work magic with the "dreadful double chin," and you will experience no bad effects. High collars should be worn as little as possible. They increase the tendency to flabby throat.

Miss L. G.: Here is a hair tonic which you can prepare at home at small expense and which is a genuine hair grower of the best and simplest kind. Be sure to keep your scalp clean by frequent shampooing with castor oil and then rub into your scalp this tonic, made by dissolving an ounce of quinine in a half pint of alcohol and adding one half pint of cold water. For all scalp troubles and badly nourished hair this is an unequalled remedy.

Lily Dale: For your hollow cheeks and sunken eyes, get a box of this nothing better in the world than this greasiness complexion jelly which you can easily prepare at home. Get one ounce of almond oil, put it in a jar, add half a pint of cold water and two tea-spoonfuls glycerine. Stir briskly and let it stand over night. The use of this with careful massaging will improve skin nutrition and give transparency and loveliness to the complexion. It is fine to correct pimples.

Isabel: I was glad to read of your enthusiasm about the anti-rheumatism and gladly respond also to your request for this old-fashioned tonic prescription. Dissolve one half cup sugar into one ounce berries in a half pint alcohol; then add enough boiling water to make a full quart. Let it stand over night. The use of this think your sudden distress for rest is as you say, physical, and the tonic will, by purging the system of impurities, restore your vitality. The use of this is the best thing I know of to remove dandruff and prevent brittleness, split hairs, and the irritation caused by excess oil. It cleanses thoroughly, and has none of the objectionable qual-
