RODUCTS OF OREGON

Dry Farming Congress.

Products from the soil of Oregon formed the larger part of an agricultural display shown by the Northern Pacific in the southwest last month, At the International Dry Farming congress at Tulsa, Okla., the car of the Northern Pacific immigration department was so attractively displayed with fruits, grains Democrat. Especially warm is the praise of these papers regarding the products

Much interest was also evinced at bringing forth expressions of the warmest admiration. Preserved in glass, as ural and lifelike as when they were at home in Oregon waters were sockeye salmon, mountain trout and from the ea, large clams and Olympia oysters, the last named attracting especial at-great success. C. E. Arney, western hibits shown by the road. The Northern Pacific was the only road to show products of the northwest at any of the southwestern fairs this fall.

News of County Board

The order creating a county civil service advisory board was amended that County Commissioner Hart, who has returned from a California trip, might name the third member instead of having that member selected by the other two members. Mr. Hart named J. W. Peddicord as his choice. Commissioner Holman named L. J. Goldsmith when the order was made on Oc-tober 12. Commissioner Lightner has not named his choice. The board will draw up a system of civil service for unskilled employes on the bridges and ferries, and in other departments of the county government.

RELIEF FROM SHORTAGE OF CARS IS BEING FELT

that have prevailed throughout the Oregon lines of the Southern Pacific is beginning to be felt, according to Assistant General Freight Agent J. H. Mulchay, who stated today that the movement of freight is proceeding with greater uniformity, though the volume is not appreciably decreased.

Mr. Mulchay believes the condition is due to a natural adjustment to the car service situation now that the first congestion attendant to the movement of crops is over. Shortage, however, is still complained of by the lumber concerns of Klamath Falls, one of which has had to close down because it could not secure cars to ship its output. Gradually, however, Mr. Mulchay says the various local sit-uations are being met, and with the release of equipment in one quarter, the needs of others are being attended to.
