

Oregon Journal

COMIC SECTION

PORTLAND, OREGON, SATURDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 8, 1913

MR. CROSS-PATCH GETS OUT OF DOLLY'S BOOK

"The door is locked," says Dolly Dimple. "How shall I get in?"

"Of course!" a voice snaps. "Always trouble! You might have let me spin!"

And out a snarling figure tumbles, and turns and lifts the latch.

(It's name is CROSS. O best beloved. It's other name is PATCH.)

"There now! Go in!" it says. And Dolly, with thanks, goes in—inclined

A great deal more to be locked out with some one who is kind! —