

SALOON INTERESTS FILE SUIT IN EFFORT TO KEEP SALEM IN WEST COLUMN

No Election Is Alleged and Charges of Violation of Corrupt Practices Act.

(Special to The Journal.) Salem, Or., Nov. 12.—Based chiefly on the allegation that a local option election cannot be held legally at any time except on the day of regular general state election or on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, when that day is the date of a regular city election, the saloon interests have filed the expected suit to contest the verdict of the people in voting Salem dry November 4.

BRITISH PAPER CITES OREGON SENATOR AS CRIMPING AUTHORITY

(Continued From Page One.) "Involuntary servitude" imposed by foreign countries upon their own seamen while in American ports. Every American consul in the United Kingdom and in the self-governing colonies at British is aware, and can inform the secretary of state in Washington, that there is no such voluntary servitude on board American ships so far as the British dominions are concerned. An American seaman can desert his ship, and the American consul at the port of destination is bound to receive him and to issue a passport for him to return to his home country. But we are suspicious of the connection with the "advance notes" which are given to the seaman to enable him to make allotment of wages to those dependent upon him for a living. We are glad that the former governor of Oregon is at this time a senator in congress, and we would even so far intrude ourselves as to express the hope that President Wilson will consult the senator, especially in respect of crimping, for perhaps no member of the second chamber has had more experience and wider knowledge of this indefensible practice than Senator Chamberlain. We are glad that the former governor of Oregon is at this time a senator in congress, and we would even so far intrude ourselves as to express the hope that President Wilson will consult the senator, especially in respect of crimping, for perhaps no member of the second chamber has had more experience and wider knowledge of this indefensible practice than Senator Chamberlain.

SECRETARY OF LABOR ABUSED BY MINE MAN

McNaughton, of Calumet & Hecla, Says Wilson Is a "Peanut Politician"

(Special to The Journal.) Calumet, Mich., Nov. 12.—Or Secretary Wilson's Seattle speech before the American Federation of Labor condemning the policy of the copper mining companies of Michigan in the copper strike, General Manager James McNaughton of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company said in part: "Mr. Wilson, through reports of his department, made a thorough investigation of strike conditions. Upward of twenty of the mining companies answered a series of 119 questions each: "Mr. Wilson's criticism of the mines in this district is based on the reply of one company to two of these questions, those pertaining to capitalization and to dividends. Evidently Mr. Wilson could find no fault with the answer to the other 117 questions asked the Calumet and Hecla Mining company or to the 118 questions asked each of the other companies. He selected for the purpose of his confidential advance statement answers to two questions which had no bearing whatever on the controversy. Such political buncombe is worthy only of a peanut politician. A man of Mr. Wilson's position should be above it. "Mr. Wilson's statement that the mining companies refused to meet committees of workmen is absolutely false. Mr. Wilson offered his services as mediator in the strike in Michigan, and such services were declined. The good judgment displayed by the mining companies in declining his offer must now be apparent to the public."

DELEGATES ASK FOR CLOSER ORGANIZATION IN PRINTING TRADES

Seems Little Hope That Differences in Ranks of Electrical Workers Be Settled.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Seattle, Wash., Nov. 12.—After listening to an address on the workmen's compensation act by John H. Wallace of the Washington insurance commission, the reading of an invitation from President Moore of the Panama-Pacific exposition to hold the 1915 convention in San Francisco, and transaction of routine business, the American Federation of Labor convention adjourned at noon today until tomorrow, to allow committees time to work on the many resolutions presented. Wallace told the delegates that the United States is behind every so-called civilized country in the world so far as industrial insurance and workmen's compensation laws are concerned. Prior to the session a report was given by the auditing committee. All accounts of the organization were found correct. James Duncan, chairman of the committee on resolutions, scored the delegates for not attending to business. He declared that only one delegate appeared before his committee last night, although there are a dozen or more members, and demanded an early hearing. A communication from the Tom Word Recall League of Portland was read in which the league sent greetings to the federation, and stated that the recall of Word was sought because of his brutal treatment of women strikers at the Oregon Packing company's plant. In the letter from A. L. Caldwell, accompanying the invitation from President Moore of the Panama-Pacific exposition, Caldwell said there would be the greatest exhibit of interest to labor at the 1915 exposition ever gathered together. Exhibits Numerous. The keynote of the exposition will be social service, Caldwell said. There will be exhibits on the regulation of factories and mines; on women and child labor; on organized labor; on organized employers; statistics will be shown covering wages and the cost of living, industrial disputes, accidents, workmen's compensation, welfare work, cooperative institutions, recreation, and public institutions. The question of the next meeting place will be voted on next week. The five delegates representing the allied printing trades at a public banquet last night declared for a militant federation, combining all the trades employed in the printing industry, a radical step in the direction of industrial unionism, and affecting more than 200,000 men.

EARTH EXPERT ADVOCATES MORE SCIENTIFIC FARMING

Attention Is Also Called to Beneficial Effect of Land Speculator.

Education is learning how to do things; education isn't learning how to escape work," said Perry G. Holden, corn and alfalfa expert, today after he had visited the Woodlawn school garden there. He had visited the site of the proposed agricultural high school on Fowell Valley road at East Forty-third street and listened to Superintendent Alderman's description of the plan to make earth education a part of the school course and to give city students as good an opportunity to learn how to farm as any other profession. "No city excels Portland in school garden work or in practical education," he said. "At Lincoln high school last night Holden addressed a large audience on the importance of the new movement to farm intensively, grow diversified crops and use science as well as tradition in bringing about results. Today at noon he addressed the members of the Progressive Business Men's club, Howard E. Wood, a classmate of Holden at Michigan Agricultural college, president. Complete Special Term. He and the teachers of Woodlawn school were guests of Miss Alice Joyce at dinner in the Hazelwood restaurant yesterday evening. Mr. Holden has just completed a seven weeks special train tour of the inland empire, spreading the gospel of alfalfa. He says speculation has been the bane of the great country which has recently been decreasing in products and population. "Some real estate men—not all—hold up sandbagged, deceived purchasers, took all their money, dropped them in the middle of a country with nothing to work with and thus created an ill report," he said. "Others of the first comers settled in the country, tried to live in town, farm shallowly by moving tents out to the ranches, had little else in mind beside holding on to the land until it increased in value, then sell out and live comfortably in town meanwhile—these are having their day of reckoning. "They have found they can not do one-crop farming. They have discovered that they must be on the land to make it pay. Though they hate it bitterly they have found they must go to work real work. The banks have carried them as long as they can. "To them it must seem a misfortune. Better things will come, a more permanent development, better farming, diversified crops, better methods, a more substantial people. The day of the speculator is about over. He has been the chief deterrent to development. "Change for the better will come more quickly than in other districts in former times, when the opportunity for learning how to avoid failure and mistakes by taking advantage of methods was lacking. Today anyone who wants to know may know, and few there are who resist knowledge. The new type contrasts with the old, who wanted nothing better than they had been doing all their lives." Holden is here and inclusive in his

PEGAUD IMITATES ME, SAYS AVIATOR BEACHEY

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—Lincoln Beachey, the aviator, is here on his way to San Diego, where he says he is going to perfect flying upside down and looping the loop with an airplane. "It is not true that Pegaud invented the loop the loop. He simply imitated an elaborated feat of which I was the inventor. I originally described a letter Z with an airplane and he twisted this into a letter E."

SLEEVE CAUGHT IN JET, COUPLE ASPHYXIATED

San Francisco, Nov. 12.—Daniel Sullivan, a retired painter, and his wife, Mrs. Hannah M. Sullivan, aged 64 years, were found dead of an asphyxiation at their home here today. It was believed that in turning off the electric lights a sleeve of Mrs. Sullivan's night dress caught on the gas jet and partly turned it on.

Will Discuss Oregon Laws. At the regular weekly luncheon of the Realty Board to be held at the Commercial club tomorrow George E. Collins of Collins & Munton will talk on the Oregon laws affecting the agent in the business of buying and selling real estate for a commission. He will also quote extensively from the decisions of the Oregon supreme court in cases affecting real estate agents. W. B. Brown of the Peninsular Industrial company is to be the second speaker of the day.

Slade Calls on Senator. Washington, Nov. 12.—Charles F. Slade, special called on Senator Chamberlain today.

Perry G. Holden.
