Apple market prices have been so Apple market prices have been so high for good fruit generally throughout the world this season that shippers have been holding the local trade up to the full limits. They figured that they could market their off-grade stuff here anyway and as there was a sufficient demand elsewhere for the best quality at high prices, little of this was shipped here unless the distributing interests were assured of full values.

It is safe to say that the bulk of the ficient demand elsewhere for the best quality at high prices, little of this was shipped here unless the distributing interests were assured of full values.

ciation Reports a Shortage of Greater Extent Than Was Expected; Only 4,000,000 Boxes Held,

By Hyman H. Cohen.

There were approximately 4,000,000 boxes of apples in storage in the United States on December 1, or 2,500,000 boxes less than on the same date a year ago. The information is very startling, and is given on the authority of the International Apple Shippers' association, which is in a position to know exactly what the holdings of fruit are.

The apples in storage in Chicago show:

Nov. 24 Dec. 1

Nov. 34 1913. 290,000 300,000 Boxes 403,000 This means a decrease of 170,000 boxes of apples and 103,000 barrels of the same fruit, and by the time that the December holdings of this year in the Windy City are known, the shortage will be much greater.

the Windy City are known, the shortage will be much greater.

Considering this extreme shortage in available supplies of apples in the country at this time, the outlook for the market is much more favorable than had been generally anticipated. While it had been generally anticipated. While it had been generally expected that the holdings would be much less than a year ago, the shortage is even greater than any of the trade had anticipated. While it is true that the apple crop of the country was very short this season as compared with a year ago, it has been generally presumed that there was a smaller percentage of the crop marketed this season owing to the high prices that had been in effect this year as compared with the very low prices a year ago.

The holdings of apples in storage along the Pacific coast and especially in the Pacific northwest are much less than generally expected, although detailed figures are not yet available. All of the big districts are getting quite wall cleaned up of supplies and in the cattle market to-

Regarding Livestock Outlook.

The big fat livestock show will be in progress at North Portland during the coming week and it is quite likely that very little demand will be shown for anything except strictly fancy quality. For that reason the trade generally is advising Dec. 1 1912. Dec. 1 1912. 460,000 403,000 shippers to hold off their ordinary quality offerings until later date.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE BASED ON NEW LAW

The bond of Frank Melrose, who was arrested yesterday evening by the federal authorities on the charge of stealing a hand grip from the North Bank depot was fixed at $1000 today by U. S. Commissioner Cannon. Melrose was unable to furnish the required bond and was taken into custody pending an inquiry by the U. S. grand jury.

The charge on which Melrose was ar-rested is a novel one and is based on 7.25 0 7.70 law passed last February. It is the second time in Oregon that an arrest has been made under the law which makes it a felony to take baggage from a car or depot. The first arrest was made at Goble a few days ago.

Melrose denied that he was at the depot yesterday, but he was identified by three of the depot attaches as cattle trade for the day. the man they saw pick up a valise and ansas City cattle market ruled to whom they gave chase, overhauling him on Eleventh street. The grip was consigned to F. B. Holzban, Seattle.
