ATTENDANCE AT CORN SHOW IS INCREASING. From all parts of the Columbia river basin there are displayed at the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company's corn show in the New Fallington building this week, samples that show the feasibility of producing corn in the Pacific northwest.

"And this is just our first year," said C. L. Smith, high priest of the new faith. To transform corn into hogs, and what the hog means to the farmer in dollars and cents is the burden of the lay that greets the ear of each visitor. Yesterday the number who attended the show exceeded that of any previous day, while the throng which was present this morning indicated that the record again would be broken. The show, which will close tomorrow night, is free to the public.
