FORMER S., P. & S. HEAD DENIES LATEST RUMOR

Joseph H. Young Not to Join New York, New Haven & Hartford.

Official denial of rumors published here that he had allied himself with the New York, New Haven & Hartford steemship lines was made by J. H. Young, who has resigned as president of the North Bank railway, in a private telegram to The Journal today. Mr. Young states that he is not yet ready to announce his new connections, but would do so as soon as the outside ar-rangements have been completed.

No official announcement as to the successor of Mr. Young in the North chiefship has been announced St. Paul, headquarters of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, joint owners of the S. P. & S., but the impression is strong in Portland railway circles that L. C. Gilman is to be the man. The facts that he has been in St. Paul for some time in conference with the Hill line chieftains and that he has been "groomed" for an executive position for several years to such a point that he was made assistant to President Gray of the Great Northern, Rome, Dec. 17.—The pope was not are pointed to as significant. SCHOONER DURING FOG

New York, Dec. 17 .- Badly damaged er Mattie Bassett, the Bay State line steamship Tennessee made port here today, landed 500 passengers and was sent to drydock for repairs.

The Tennessee was steaming from here toward Boston when it crashed with the Mattle Bassatt in a dense fog in Long Island sound. The passengers were thrown into a panic, many women became hysterical and the officers had hard work in reassuring their charges, as the boat, too badly crippled to finish its voyage, turned backward, The steamship had a hig hole smashed in its side, and the promenade deck, pilot house and several staterooms were wrecked. It was its third accident. The schooner's bowsprit and jib were carried away.
