THE OREGON DAILY JOURNAL, PORTLAND, THURSDAY EVENING, JANUARY 8, 1914.

The Beaver, Gantain Mason, arrived was likewise reported as leaving San Ainsworth dock yesterday after. Pedro harbor, northbound, noon at 4:45. She brought 162 passengers and close to 1000 tons of the West Oregon Lumber company's freight. Captain Mason says he reached mill for St. Helens this morning, and the bar at about 6 o'clock yesterday will leave for sea before Saturday. morning and was well inside when the Having completed her grain cargo

STORM WARNINGS REMOVED Wind Abates, Sea Moderates and

River Begins to Fall. Removal of all storm warnings, fair weather predictions all over the Northwest and the passing of all danger of high water in the Willametre marked the final breaking of the storm which has tied up shipping successfully here for the past six days, Act. ing District Forecaster Theodore F. Drake predicts fair weather for all Northwestern points for the next few days. Reports from North Head show that while the sea is still choppy the wind has moderated and attained a velocity of but 10 miles an hour this morning. number of ships were reported either inward or outward bound and Astoria and other lower Columbia river valley points were expecting relief from the damages the storm had brought about.

river steamer Beaver up from for Portland. Clatskanie reported that a large consignment of horses which she was to have brought up this trip are still tied up in the hills back of Clatskanie. The Henderson of the Shaver fleet of towboats reported at the Shaver dock last night without the raft of logs from Deep river which she had gonafter several days ago, but will return to Deep river tonight and bring the raft up in the morning.

In the local harbor towboats and pilots were busy moving the new arrivals and those ships which had delayed loading for fairer weather and a number of them will leave down tofor the ocean. The Willamette rose only .3 of a foot during the past 24 hours, and Forecaster Drake predicts that it will fall slowly during the next few days.

BANGOR HAD STORMY VOYAGE

Norwegian Steamer Brings Cargo of 1,090,000 Feet of Oak Logs. Nineteen days out from Otara, Japan, the Norwegian steamer Bangor reached Portaind early this morning. She immediately commenced discharging her cargo of 1,000,000 feet of oak logs at the Emerson Hardwood Company's wharf. Contrary to the experience of the
