

HEAVY CLOTHING IS GIRL'S LIFE-PRESERVER

Albany Waitress Jumps 75 Feet Into Willamette but Is Rescued.

(Special to The Journal.) Albany, Or., Jan. 9.—Climbing to the top railing, nearly in the middle of the steel bridge here, Hazel Hewitt, aged 20, a waitress, yesterday attempted to commit suicide by jumping 75 feet into the Willamette river. Dependently over ill health is given as the reason. Hitting the water face downward, the girl remained beneath the surface for a few seconds, and then, because of heavy clothing and a heavy overcoat, she floated in the rapid current, unconscious with her head and legs under water. She was fished out by workmen and hurried to St. Mary's hospital. She was revived and physicians say will recover. Miss Hewitt is the daughter of Mrs. A. Ward of this city, formerly of Benton county. The girl came here three months ago from Curvian, it is said she was married to a man named Ridgeway, but that they have separated, and she was known here under her maiden name.

DEMOCRATS TURN JACKSON BANQUET INTO JOYOUS EVENT

(Continued From Page One.) party and instigator of the principle of "Jeffersonian simplicity." In golden words of prophetic phrase, in crystal reading and silver tongue, he led the way to Woodrow Wilson at some future date, as yet unknown, was ascribed the honor of being the third of the party's patron saints. Mitt Miller canonized him last night.

Wilson and Bryan Applauded. The names of Wilson and William Jennings Bryan were signals for outbreaks of continued applause throughout the evening. Three gubernatorial candidates were present. They were: Dr. J. Smith, Colonel R. E. Miller and John Manning, while a Milton A. Miller boom was launched at the conclusion of the latter's speech on "The New Era." Senators Chamberlain and Lane were induced for second terms, and Victor Moses of Astoria, who spoke briefly, was introduced as a possible candidate for congress. The general comment on the banquet was that it was the most successful and enthusiastic in the history of the organization.

Getting Back to Ideals. "For many years," he said, "we have been telling what Jefferson and Jackson did, but we did not do so ourselves; but now, under Woodrow Wilson, we are coming back to these ideals. Our troubles today in Oregon and throughout the country spring from selfish interests. Organized vice and organized wealth are the roots of evil. We are doing everything for the man who has money to pay but nothing for the man who has not. Thought must be given to cut out the cancer at the roots. We are in control today, and we are carrying out our party pledges, thank God! Our duty is not done until every pledge is fulfilled and everything in the interest of good government is done, and not before.

West's Motives Honest. "I've been in office three years and I am now as honest as the day I got the bit in my teeth and it's going to be a pretty fast quarter. I have tried to do my duty as I saw it. I have made many blunders and mistakes. But the people are always ready to forgive mistakes if only once in a while you do something worth while. The greatest crook in office today is not the robber of cash, but the man who sits still and does nothing. An active crook is better than a passive saint.

stition all a man can do is to put his back to the wall and fight. I have never asked for quarter from anyone and I have never given any. "I want to assure my successor my hearty support, provided he is clean, honest and upright. I hope he will be a Democrat."

New Order of Things. Milton A. Miller, collector of Internal Revenue for this district, was introduced as the "sage of Lebanon." He spoke of the increasing interest of people in government and of the government in the people.

There is a new higher order of things at the head of our government today. No man ever graced the White House purer than Woodrow Wilson. No cabinet has ever come nearer to the people.

Mr. Miller reviewed the progress of the administration thus far in its career and voiced encomiums on the tariff and currency acts. The latter he praised as the greatest piece of legislation ever passed in this country.

In the absence of Postmaster F. S. Myers, his place on the program was taken by Walter M. Pierce of Union City and currency expert. "We Won't Go Back on Woodrow," and made this his thesis for the evening.

"We Democrats have a duty to perform and that is to send back to the United States senate a man who won't go back on Woodrow. Chamberlain may have his shortcomings; I am not honest with the people. They have been honest with the people. I want to see Chamberlain sent back to uphold Woodrow Wilson, for whatever may be said of him or mine, there is not enough money in Wall street to buy either of them. Taking the tariff off wool and meat made my heart ache, but I won't go back on Woodrow. And Bill Hinkley won't go back on Woodrow, even though there is free beef."

Attitude of Women. Dr. Esther Pohl-Lovejoy followed Mr. Pierce, speaking of the attitude of the woman voter to the Democratic party. She was followed by Municipal Judge John S. Stevenson, who spoke a short eulogy on Andrew Jackson.

Colonel C. E. S. Wood with the topic, "The Administration," said that Mitt Miller had stolen his stuff and that he was forced to speak on something else. He deprecated the condition in the American governmental system which permits of a congress of the opposite political faith than its executive, praising in contrast the English system wherein the commons is always of the same party as the prime minister.

That Woodrow Wilson was making history was voiced by Mr. Wood in a reference to the Mexican trouble and other acts of the present administration.

"This country," he said, "will not use the blood of its young men and the money taken from its toilers to collect the debts of the moneyed interests. This stand of the administration will go down in history in letters of living light.

Peace Must Be Established. Peace must be established and intellectual men will come to submit their differences to arbitration. This is the beginning of a new era, the beginning of a day of humanity and consideration for the masses."

Others who spoke were Claude C. McCulloch, John F. Shields, Thomas O. Haver, and William H. Hanley. Telegrams and letters were read during the course of the evening by Secretary Wilbur S. Snyder from Robert Owen, senator from Oklahoma, Joseph H. Daniels, secretary of the navy, Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, Ben Davis, chief clerk of the department of state, Governor Lister of Washington, Hugh McLean of Maryland, Charles Beaumont, federal district attorney, Senator Harry Lane, Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, Representative Oscar Underwood, Speaker Champ Clark and Senator George B. Chamberlain. The latter's letter follows:

Senator Chamberlain's Letter. "I am in receipt of the cordial invitation of your committee to be present at the annual Jackson Day dinner to be given on the eighth proximo under the auspices of your club, and to respond to the toast: "The Administration." I assure you I appreciate to the full the distinguished position implied by your invitation, and regret exceedingly my inability to accept. The fact is, I have been honored by having had placed in my charge the bill now pending in congress for the construction by the government under the direction of the president of a railroad in Alaska, a measure of the greatest moment to our state and to the country.

"It is on the calendar as the unfinished business in the senate, and will come up for consideration automatically as soon as congress reconvenes. Under these circumstances I can not leave my post without sacrificing the interests of the state, and this obligation to duty alone prevents me from availing myself of the pleasure of being with you. I can not let the occasion pass without a word of commendation of the efforts which have been made, and are now being made by you and your associates to keep alive the memory and achievements of one of the patron saints of Democracy, the immortal Jackson.

Name Arouses Patriotism. "His was and ever will be a name to arouse the enthusiasm not only of Democrats, but of loyal Americans of all parties throughout the length and breadth of the land who believe in a government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

"The seat which Jackson filled with such distinguished honor and with such loyalty is now occupied by a president who has in less than one short year done more to bring the government back to the people than any man who ever lived. The name of Woodrow Wilson will go down to history linked with those of Jefferson and Jackson, the first as the father, and the latter as the great expounder of Democracy in its highest and truest sense.

"What has been accomplished by the present administration under the leadership of the illustrious president? First and foremost, this administration has redeemed to the letter its pledge to revise the tariff downward, and to relieve the masses of the people from an unjust burden of taxation that has been enacted by this administration is perfect would be unfair. In the very nature of things there had to be, and was in many instances, compromise and adjustments to meet the varied sections of the richest country in the world. But in the final analysis the measure redemptive of the pledge of the administration, loosens the hold which legislation had heretofore conferred upon special privilege, and will destroy under its wise administration monopoly which was enabled to flourish because of the unjust measure of protection accorded to the privileged classes.

Markets of World Opened. "It will set us up in the markets of the world and bring to the product of those nations without interfering with or crippling our own industries. It represents in truth and in fact the new freedom of commercial, agricultural and industrial enterprise.

"As a supplement to this legislation, and as more important, the present administration is responsible for currency legislation, fundamental and constructive in its character, to meet the demands which have been made by the people of the United States for more than a generation. Heretofore when the people have asked for bread they have been given a stone in the way of financial reform.

"The measure that has ever been attempted to meet these demands was the Aldrich currency bill, which was so vicious in its character and in its tendencies that practically no man in public life other than the author of the bill had the hardihood to defend it. It is peculiarly fitting that this measure should be mentioned at this time, because it meets and overcomes all the objections which he had to a great central bank and places the finances of the country practically in the hands of the people.

"It marks a new era in the financial history of the country, and I think that it is safe to say it is the greatest piece of constructive legislation of the century just passed. It would be out of place for me to undertake to discuss the measure in detail, and I only refer to it as one of the accomplishments of the present administration.

Trusts Are Surrendering. "Those of you who have been watching the news from Washington have doubtless observed that one by one the great trusts and combinations are surrendering to an administration which has proven not only its knowledge of the needs of the people of this country, but its ability and determination to compel obedience to the law by the highest as well as by the lowest citizen of the land.

"There is much yet to be accomplished and much still to be accomplished without disturbing the business conditions of the country, and I predict an era of prosperity unparalleled in the history of our time.

"Under the present administration the west will have an opportunity to develop, the public domain will be placed within the reach of the honest homesteader and settler, with an able, energetic secretary of the interior who is familiar with the conditions and needs of that magnificent section of the country, reclamation of arid lands will be proceeded with expeditiously as is consistent with a sound administration, a safe and sane conservation policy will be maintained, and the west particularly is to be congratulated upon having held out to it the hope of prosperous and better times.

"I wish I might be with you to discuss these matters at length, but I content myself with this brief outline of some of the work that the administration has done and contemplates doing, and in expressing the hope that the work which you are doing together may be a most delightful one."

PENDLETON CHURCH TO HAVE NOTE BURNING. Pendleton, Or., Jan. 9.—To rejoice at the lifting of the heavy debt which has hung over the church since the new building has been completed, the congregation of the Christian church of Pendleton will hold a jubilee meeting Sunday morning, at which the note of $350 which has been outstanding for six years will be burned. After a diligent campaign extending since October 1, Rev. Tolbert F. Weaver and his associates have succeeded in securing enough subscriptions to liquidate the note. The churches in Athena, Helix, Milton, Walla Walla and Dayton have all assisted in the campaign and will send delegates here Sunday.

Tie Man Is Arrested. Salem, Or., Jan. 9.—Corporation Commissioner Watson has been advised by District Attorney Kelly, of Medford, that he has caused the arrest of Edwin P. Hughes, agent for the Universal Metallic Tie company, a Utah corporation, for selling stock in this state without a license. The corporation department refused to grant the concern a license or approve its stock.
