

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF PEACE WILL BE WELL CELEBRATED

One Hundredth Anniversary of Treaty of Ghent to Be Observed.

New York, Jan. 19.—In an effort to arouse greater interest in the plan to commemorate the one-hundredth anniversary of peace among English speaking peoples which has obtained since the treaty of Ghent was concluded, the American committee in charge of the affair has issued the following letter to the people of the United States.

On Christmas eve, 1814, Messrs. John Quincy Adams, James A. Bayard, Henry Clay, Albert Gallatin and John Russell, on behalf of the United States, and Lord Gambier, Dr. Adams and Henry Goddard, Esq., on behalf of Great Britain, signed the treaty of Ghent, which ended the war between the two countries.

Shortly thereafter John Quincy Adams expressed the hope, so wonderfully realized, that the peace thus restored should be enduring, saying, "May the gates of the temple of Janus closed here never be opened during the century."

A few months later peace societies sprang into being in both America and England; and within three years, by formal agreement, the boundary line between the United States and Canada became a more political limitation, like the peaceful boundaries that separate the states of the American union, instead of a series of armed camps between two nations mutually distrustful of one another.

Believing that the blessings that have followed in the train of the peace thus established cannot better be brought to the attention of the world at large than by a fitting celebration, the American committee at its initial meeting, held in New York City, formulated a plan for this purpose. The proposal was soon thereafter laid before the peoples of Great Britain and the self-governing colonies of the British empire.

The American committee was animated by a patriotic impulse and the belief that through an adequate worldwide celebration of a century of peace great good would be accomplished towards the rational settlement of international disputes. And it hoped and hopes to effect this through the creation of a sentiment which shall lead the peoples of the world to regard forbearance and mutual understanding as virtues to be cultivated by governments and nations, as well as by individuals.

Mutual Understanding Desired.
The committee also considered that through the association of the peoples of many nationalities in a common commemorative celebration, friendly relations would result increased acquaintance, friendship and mutual understanding which are essential to permanent peace.

Therefore, the undersigned, a special committee acting for the American committee, a body whose many thousands of members are representative of every walk in life, and of every profession and calling, and of the different elements and from which our population is drawn, invite and urge co-operation throughout the United States, and the active, sympathetic interest of the citizens or subjects of all countries.

It is sincerely hoped that all will take part with the American committee, or with similar committees in other lands in the preparation and execution of an adequate and fitting program that shall signalize, as no other occurrence in the past would enable us to do, the realization of Mr. Adams' prophetic wish that the twentieth century might find the peace still unbroken.

Perpetual Peace Is Hope.
That our country has been such an active factor in this wonderful achievement prompts us to celebrate the event—for peace as well as war is an event that has shaped the history of the world. The hundred years which have passed since the treaty of Ghent was signed on Christmas eve, 1814, may be not only the precursor of a perpetual peace between Great Britain and the United States, but the promise of a broadening era of enduring peace between all nations.

LABOR SITUATION IN JAPAN GROWS SERIOUS AND FAMINE IMPENDS

Southern Japanese Join the Northerners in Descent on Tokio, Searching Work.

Tokio, Jan. 19.—Between the famine in northern Japan and the damage wrought by Sakurajima's eruption in and around Kagoshima, the labor situation in Japan grows serious.

For weeks northern Japanese workers have been pouring into Tokio and Yokohama, women almost as numerous as men, willing to sell their labor for whatever they could get, with the result that the already meager wages paid in local industries began slumping heavily.

By itself, the throwing of thousands of skilled workers out of employment at Kagoshima would not have been so serious, but coming suddenly on top of the famine situation, it seemed today to have capped the climax of distress among the industrial classes.

Wages had reached a point where it seemed that if the workers could live on them, and from a governmental standpoint the outlook was serious. Nor is the national treasury in such a condition that public relief measures can be taken on the necessary large scale.

The widespread suffering has incidentally greatly swollen the population of the Tokyo and Yokohama Y. S. shiwa licensed quarters, thousands of girls having been sold into servitude by parents who were no longer able to support them.

Grant Files at Salem.

Salem, Ore., Jan. 19.—Frank S. Grant of Portland, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, is the first to file his declaration with the secretary of state. His declaration was filed today. His slogan is, "Will devote entire time to official and endeavor to give conscientious service."

CLAIMS LAW OF SEX IS DISCOVERED BY HIM

Boston Physician Says Rigid Rule Must Be Adhered to to Gain Results.

(Special to The Journal.)

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19.—Dr. Arthur L. declares that he has discovered what scientists for many ages have sought—a law of control of sex. Dr. Lane states that his law has worked without a single error in 50 cases.

Mrs. John O'Brien of Holliston last week became the mother of a baby whose sex Dr. Lane and the mother and father agree was predetermined, that it was settled upon in advance.

Mrs. O'Brien planned to have a girl baby. Her husband agreed upon a girl baby. Dr. Lane's rule was followed. Behold! A girl baby was born. "I believe," says the doctor, "that two years—have learned to understand each other perfectly—no couple should have children."

Dr. Lane observes the law of sex control for one full month prior to the removal of the plan into effect, a couple should remain apart in order to date the birth of the child. If conception occurs during the five days succeeding the mother's ending of that month the child will turn out a girl. If it takes place from the eighth to the fourteenth day from the ending of the sex of the child at birth will be male.

"Of course, this rule cannot be made to apply if it is not followed to the very letter of the law. Another month should transpire during which the couple should remain apart. If this rule is strictly observed, and if the mother is healthy, there is no question concerning the results."

NO INSURANCE WHEN HUSBAND IS FOUND

Man, Believed 8 Years Dead, Found Working in Platinium Mine.

Aberdeen, Wash., Jan. 19.—With the dismissal of a suit instituted by Mrs. Kate Cogdill of Hoquiam to collect $3000 life insurance on her husband's policy with the Independent Order of Woodmen, it came to light today, that the husband of Mrs. Cogdill, supposed to have died some eight years ago, is still living and working in a platinum mine in northern California. Cogdill, it is said, is in good health.

Cogdill disappeared from Hoquiam under mysterious circumstances, and though his wife gave him up for dead, the suspicion existed that he was alive. When application was made for the insurance money the application was held up, and suit was then instituted. Detectives were engaged and the missing man was finally located.

Cogdill was supposed to have lost his life in the woods near Waldo, Or. He was then a timber cruiser.

SENATORS OF OREGON TWO OF BUSIEST MEN IN THE UNITED STATES

This Is Statement of United States District Attorney Clarence L. Reames.

That the Oregon senators at Washington are two of the hardest working and busiest men at the national capital was the statement today of United States District Attorney Clarence L. Reames, who arrived in Portland this morning after a month in the east.

"The senators are not only working every day, but they are putting in extra time at night and on holidays," said Mr. Reames. "We had Christmas dinner with Senator Chamberlain, and worked most of that day at his office."

"Senator Lane is particularly interested in the Portland postoffice and wants to get its construction under way as soon as possible," he asserted. "I also found Senator Lane much interested in Indian affairs and in securing for them absolutely fair and just treatment. As a member of the committee, he insists on the strictest accounting in the Indian department."

Chamberlain to Remain.
"The vigorous discussion of the Alaska railroad bill in the senate upon the reconvening of congress proved Senator Chamberlain's wisdom in during the stay in Washington during the holidays, showing that the opposition to the measure is strong and that a stiff fight will be put up right along the line."

Senator Chamberlain was fortunate in getting his bill placed on the calendar for consideration before the anti-trust legislation came on the boards. Up to this time the anti-trust and currency legislation has occupied all the time of the new congress, and while this is in reality an administration measure, its importance to the whole country is not recognized in the east by any means as it is to us of the west.

Interest Is Keen.
"It is a very difficult matter to impress statesmen who have not lived here that we have vast resources and great necessities, but this Alaska development question of the way that they are being stirred up to do something for that much-neglected country."

"While the senate is waiting for the tariff bill, Mr. Chamberlain spent much time in seeing to it that comprehensive legislation were had, in carefully revising the draft of the bill in the committee, and finally in reporting this Alaska bill favorably to the senate. He is now waiting for the calendar for consideration of the bill."

"As chairman of one of the most important committees of the senate, that on military affairs, Senator Chamberlain is conducting before him the conduct of legislation that at this particular time is both pressing and difficult, requiring as prompt action as is consistent with the deliberation."

"The volunteer army bill, which is being introduced by the house with expedition, but is found to contain no provision for the enlistment of the country to enlist for foreign service in time of war, except as individuals. This condition would cause considerable delay and confusion, because unless the members of the National Guard could offer themselves for this service as organizations, they would have the same standing as volunteers who had previously had no training, and would be inefficiently divided up, hampered and demoralized. To remedy this condition is not easy, because constitutional and legal questions have to be decided, and questions of the repeal of some laws while retaining others."

Daily Correspondence Heavy.
"Of the many measures to increase the efficiency of the regular army, the one to properly revise the law of war is not the least important, and this of course will entail the settlement of many seemingly unimportant details. Hearings must be held too on the volunteer officers' retirement bill and other measures, and all this is in addition to the hundreds of honorable discharges for individual veterans and the vast number of army appointments and promotions referred to the committee. But with it all the appropriation bills for the coming fiscal year must be gone over in detail and passed upon."

"At the same time Senator Chamberlain's daily correspondence is heavy, covering not only the matters already mentioned, but in addition the appointments being made from time to time in the state, appropriations for rivers and harbors, railroads, departments, etc., in Oregon, individual cases before the Washington bureau, constant calls for documents, and many other matters that one could not appreciate unless they were on the ground and saw just what was being accomplished."

"With all these things and his duties as a member of the appropriations, agriculture and forestry, commerce, territories, and other committees of the senate, our senior senator is tremendously busy, but always finds time to welcome visitors from Oregon, who average more than one per day and often have matters needing attention."

UNCLE SAM TO BEGIN PROSECUTION IN LAND GRANT CASES SOON

Federal Grand Jury to Consider Alleged Violations, Says Attorney Reames.

Clarence L. Reames, United States attorney, arrived home from Washington, D. C., this morning, and announced that the government would at once take up prosecution of those who have been looting, with false representations as to the title they would secure, people on the grant lands of the Oregon & California railroad, now forfeited to the government.

"I am thoroughly satisfied and assured that this office will be backed up and assisted in every way in these prosecutions by the department of justice and the attorney general," was Reames' statement.

The trip of the past month has been spent almost entirely on this business, Mr. Reames said.

The federal grand jury meets tomorrow, and after a few old cases hanging over from the previous session are disposed of, the locator cases will be investigated. Indictments in these cases are expected within a month. Nearly a hundred men, lawyers, real estate dealers, surveyors, farmers and even homesteaders are among those of every standing of life involved in the investigation.

Mr. Reames left Portland December 16. At Chicago he was in consultation with the United States attorney there, and with the postoffice inspectors. He was in Washington 12 days in constant consultation with officials of the land department and with the attorney general.

After leaving Washington, he was in the eastern cities for several days, then swung south through Memphis, Tenn., and thence to Los Angeles. At nearly in Washington 12 days in constant consultation with officials of the land department and with the attorney general.

SINNOTT WORKING FOR BETTER MAIL SERVICE

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)
Washington, Jan. 19.—Congressman Sinnott is trying to help the people around Pendleton get better mail facilities. He has recently had a conference with the fourth assistant postmaster general regarding the petition of the Pendleton Commercial club for the establishment of rural routes between Baker and Richland, and Baker and Miller. He suggested that an inspector be detailed to make a report on the advisability of improving the local service.

The fourth assistant postmaster general suggested to Mr. Sinnott that more data be furnished the department. He promised to advertise for bids for the proposed new routes and also for continuing the present routes, and to compare the two sets of bids before deciding on what course to adopt. Should it seem to be advisable, he told Mr. Sinnott, an inspector will be sent to look over the ground. Before taking final action he will again call Mr. Sinnott into conference.

New Trial Is Denied.
United States District Judge R. S. Bean this morning denied Dr. H. E. Curry of Baker a new trial on the charge of using the mails for the purpose of exploiting a forbidden medical practice. Dr. Curry was convicted before Judge Bean more than two months ago. He has been ordered to appear in the courts here Saturday morning and receive sentence.
