

BATTLE IN OKLAHOMA
PENTITENTIARY ENDS IN DEATH OF SEVEN MEN

Three Mutineers Secure Revolvers, Kill Guards, Are Shot Dead While Escaping.

(United Press Leased Wire.) McAlester, Okla., Jan. 20.—With seven men in the morgue and two men and a woman in the hospital as a result of the rioting late yesterday in the penitentiary here, a rigorous investigation was in progress today to learn how the three ringleaders of the uprising obtained the firearms with which they did such deadly work before they were themselves killed by the guards.

The 500 odd remaining prisoners were sullen and unruly. They were heavily guarded and closely watched in the fear of fresh trouble. But for the fact that yesterday's outbreak was so sudden and so soon over that the mass of convicts did not realize quickly enough what was afoot to come to their leaders' aid, it was agreed that a wholesale delivery would have been inevitable.

The mutiny occurred just at the end of work for the day. Jim Reed, Tom Lane and Charles Koonitz, serving respectively two years for horse stealing, five years for forgery and 40 years for manslaughter, took the opportunity to approach the door of the tailor shop, where they worked, and told Turnkey John Martin they wanted to see the parole officer. As Martin turned to open the door they suddenly drew revolvers. Reed shot the turnkey through the cheek and then beat him down with repeated blows on the head with his pistol barrel.

Get Turnkey's Keys.

Seizing the turnkey's keys and shouting to the other prisoners to join them, the trio then dashed into the yard and toward Warden R. W. Dick's office. Assistant Deputy Warden Patrick Oates tried to stop them and was shot through the heart before he could draw a weapon. Guard F. C. Godfrey rushed up firing and was shot instantly dead. Superintendent H. H. Dwyer of the Bertillon department was killed by a chance shot through the door of his office. With the confusion at its height, Judge John R. Thomas, a former federal judge in Indian Territory and at one time an Illinois congressman, who had been waiting in the office of Warden Dick to keep a business engagement with the latter, stepped to the door to learn the cause of the firing and was riddled by a volley, dying soon afterward.

Reed next ran for the prison telephone switchboard to prevent an alarm from being sent out. There he found Miss Mary Foster, the operator, dragged her into the yard and held her before him as a shield as he made for the outer gate.

Telephone Girl Wounded. By this time the guards were firing furiously into the yard. Miss Foster was hit in the leg and fell. One of the convicts' bullets pierced Guard C. L. Wood's arm.

Despite the fusillade the three men reached and unlocked the gate, rushed into the street, leaped into Warden Dick's buggy, which stood outside, and lashed the horse into a gallop. Prison officials pursued them hotly. Reed stood up facing to the rear and emptied his revolver at them. The horse was hit by a bullet and fell. Guards swarmed up on every side. The mutineers lay dead in the buggy bottom, each riddled by shots.

In the meantime the other prisoners had been herded back to their cells. There was wild disorder among them for a time and the night with their yells and hammering at their bars, was a wild one in the penitentiary.

FAINT HOPE FOR WATER ON OWYHEE ARID LAND

Congress Must First Approve Millions to Extend Reclamation Work.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, Jan. 20.—Congressman Sinnott is hopeful that something may be done by the government in the way of reclamation on the Owyhee irrigation district and providing an otherwise fertile and promising locality with water, provided congress gives $100,000 for the extension of the reclamation service. This, as Journal readers may remember, is advocated by Secretary of the Interior Lane, who was greatly impressed, only his recent visit to the country with the splendid possibilities for developing Oregon lands.

Acting in behalf of his constituents, Sinnott called recently on Congress Ryan of the reclamation service and placed before him the desires of the settlers in the Owyhee irrigation district for government aid. Ryan, who is a western man, having been in the newspaper business in Washington and California, expressed interest in the project and sympathy for the settlers, but he said that the interior department had no funds available for taking up any new projects. He said he looked up the Owyhee project with favor and suggested that in case congress should, in its wisdom, see fit to adopt the suggestion of Secretary Lane and appropriate $100,000 for the reclamation of arid lands, the department would seriously consider Congressman Sinnott's request for government action in the case of Owyhee.

Ryan suggested that the parties interested should file with the secretary of the interior a petition setting forth in detail the facts in the case, the size of the farm units, the quantity of government land embraced in the project, and any other pertinent details and arguments why the government should take it over. This, he said, would give the project and petition an advanced place on the department's docket.

RICH FIELD AHEAD OF PHILANTHROPISTS IN ALBANIA, HE ASSERTS

American Traveler Says Condition of Natives Is Pitiful; Deserve Consideration.

London, Jan. 20.—Cold weather, together with a lack of food, clothing and shelter, is causing intense suffering and distress among the refugees whose homes were destroyed by Serbian troops in the mountain region of Albania last October.

Men, women and children by scores are dying of hunger and cold. The population is helpless and for the destitute refugees there is no relief in sight.

William W. Howard of New York, who has just reached London on his return from a journey partly on foot through the devastated regions of Albania, says 30,000 refugees, mostly women and children, are either starving or freezing to death.

These sufferers are in the Gashi and Krastice districts in northern Albania and in the Goloborda district, middle Albania, and the district of lower Illyria. All are in high altitudes where the winter is severe. No help is reaching these people because of their remoteness from the coast and the difficulties of travel. Mr. Howard estimates that there are 15,000 who need food, clothing and shelter.

"At present," said Mr. Howard, "Albania is in a state of chaos, and civil war between Essad Pasha and the provisional government is in progress. Essad Pasha is the self-proclaimed ruler of Middle Albania. His avowed purpose in this civil war is to get control of all Ghegeria north and east of the Shkumbi river. The last information I have is that he is making some progress. Dervish Bey is his ablest lieutenant."

New King Holds Back. "Prince Wied of Germany, who has been selected by the powers of Europe as the king of Albania, seems to be waiting for financial guarantees. Many Albanians told me they did not want a king to whom they must pay money. They want a king who will bring money into the country and utilize its resources. In my mind Prince Wied will have a stormy time in Albania."

"My own solution of the Albanian problem is that the country should be taken over by a committee of American philanthropists and administered on a common basis until such a time as the Albanians are able to set up a stable government for themselves. "I went to Albania expecting to find savages. I found everywhere nothing but courtesy, kindness and hospitality. Intrinsically they are a fine race. They have been suppressed nearly 500 years. They need schools and churches. Albania today is the greatest mission field in the world with only two American missionaries in it. "If there be an American of means who will come to the rescue of Albania in this hour of her distress, he or she can make a name that will live in history hundreds of years after the givers of libraries, schools and institutions for scientific research have been forgotten. Lacking this future, Albania is blood red."

LEBANON MAY VOTE ON PLANT FRANCHISE

Company Seeking Foothold Offers to Bear Expense of Special Election.

(Special to The Journal.) Lebanon, Or., Jan. 20.—A petition containing the names of fully 20 per cent of the voters of this city, will be presented at the council meeting tonight, asking that body to call a special election to determine the question of a 20-year franchise to Scroggins & Washburn, owners of the Lebanon Lumber Mill, for the erection and maintenance of an electric light and power plant within the city limits.

The question was introduced at a previous meeting of the council by way of a bill for an ordinance intended to grant such franchise, but was lost by a tie vote, the mayor, under the provisions of the charter, having no voice in the matter. There is considerable opposition to the proposed franchise, especially on the part of the Lebanon Light & Water company, and a close contest is looked for at the special election if one is called.

Scroggins & Washburn have offered to bear the entire expense of the election.

RADIUM ORE LANDS
SUBJECT OF DEBATE

D. R. Kelly of Baltimore Says He's Arranging to Establish Plant in Denver.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Washington, Jan. 20.—The house mine committee yesterday considered whether the government should reserve radium bearing lands. It seemed certain that the committee would decide affirmatively and frame a bill accordingly. The Colorado congressmen were fighting the proposition hard, however.

In connection with the discussion of plans for governmentalizing radium production, D. R. Kelly of Baltimore announced that, backed by New York capital, he was arranging to establish a plant in Denver to extract the mineral from carnotite ore. He promised to donate to the government an extraction process upon which he is working.

Radium's present high price, he said, is due partly to its producers abroad. He explained that it "melts" cancer cells "like sunshine from heaven or like a million microscopic knives. "If we had enough of it," he added, "we could attack this disease with a 12 inch gun instead of the little pistols we are compelled to use now."
