

'WE'VE GOT TO GET RID OF GORE,' SAID ONE POLITICAL BOSS

Witness for Mrs. Bond Admits He Said So; Another Said: "We'll Get Gore Yet!"

(United Press Special Wire.) Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 13.—The prosecution rested its case here today in the suit for $50,000 damages instituted by Mrs. Minnie Bond against United States Senator Thomas F. Gore of Oklahoma. Mrs. Bond alleged she was attacked by Senator Gore in a Washington hotel last March. The first witness called today was Deputy Sheriff Ezell. He told of the difficulty he had in serving Senator Gore with a subpoena when the suit was filed. E. A. Ballinger, Mrs. Bond's father, was the next witness. He swore that his daughter had been on the verge of nervous collapse since last March, the time of the alleged attack. Mrs. Ballinger offered similar testimony regarding her daughter. The prosecution rested at 3:45 o'clock. Dr. J. H. Earp, president of the Jacksonian club, who testified yesterday of alleged efforts by Senator Gore to hush up the affair, was recalled by the defense. He admitted telling D. M. Beatty that "we have got to get rid of Gore yet."

Thaddeus Robertson also was called by the defense. He was asked if he had not admitted in the presence of others that the Hotel Winston incident was a frameup. He replied that his objection to this question was sustained. The defense read into the record a deposition by Miss Ina Emery of Washington, with whom the plaintiff discussed the case. She said she advised that the incident be suppressed, but that Mrs. Bond replied that the affair "would be spread broadcast."

NO EVIDENCE OF "FRAMEUP" IN THE GAME COMMISSION

(Continued From Page One) Fund was found in the custody of the game warden for which the committee failed to find any authority in the new game code. The report intimates that this fund should have been turned over to the state treasurer instead of being used in the way it was. This money was kept in a local bank on private deposit, and it was not checked out by sworn voucher as is customary with other funds. Prietion was also found between Clanton and Pliny, the investigators allege, but of late seems to have been satisfactorily adjusted. Dissensions of the old board appeared to be irreconcilable, the report asserts. The committee interviewed members of the anglers' associations, commercial fish men, members of the old commission, wardens, deputies, hatcherymen and many others formerly connected with the situation in some way.

Lack of Harmony Alleged. Commercial men branded the commission as inefficient, owing to lack of harmony and maintained that commercial fish interests should be properly represented on the board. Sportsmen, on the other hand, contended that at least two members of the board should be composed of those directly interested in angling and game. The real primary cause, alleges the report, is due to the lack of harmony at headquarters, you can hardly expect other than the same condition to exist among subordinates," the report asserts.

Men for service on the board can only be secured from three classes, it is asserted. They must either have a distinct financial interest, a commercial fisherman's interest, or be directly trained for the position. The committee believes that the commission should be made of persons directly interested in commercial fishing, and men who have game interests closely at heart. An ideal commission, consisting of two commercial fish men, two game men and one from a biological department of an educational institution is suggested.

The working organization of the body should be changed and a regular meeting once a month is declared essential. It should be obligatory that a financial committee of three should be at least meet if the commission is unable to, in order to pass on bills and sign warrants. The recommendation of the committee that a chief clerk or secretary be appointed has since been carried out with the naming of Theodore Opaunder to that position. This clerk should compile working budget and should keep complete reports of meetings in addition to having finances in such shape that they could be easily looked into. The committee found the Bonneville hatchery in excellent condition, it reports. Some physical improvements, in rearrangement of ponds, are suggested, in order to make the plant more efficient. The committee disagrees with the policy now existing of handling fish. The committee says the present method of liberating all fry in one or two places means "crowding the pasture."

Hatching Plan Doubted. The hatching of Alaskan sockeyes at Bonneville is also questioned on the part of commission employees. It is adapted to the swift cold waters of this state and because it is believed the fish, when mature, return to their natural spawning home in Alaskan streams and lakes. Insufficient knowledge of successful hatching and feeding conditions is also alleged on the part of commission employees. The committee went into this question from a scientific standpoint and at considerable length.

Purchase of eastern brook trout eggs for Oregon waters is ill advised, the committee believes, because the eastern fish is not adapted to the swift, cold Oregon streams. The committee believes sufficient trout of native varieties can be procured for all the fry needed for liberation.

This Clatskanie hatchery, down near Astoria is criticized as being undeniably located with respect to natural conditions for raising young salmon. The commission regards the hatchery work as so important as to require an official for its exclusive superintendence.

The hatchery superintendent, the report states, should have a home provided for him at Bonneville, and he should have exclusive control of all hatcheries of the state, commercial and game. The committee distinctly defines its ideas as to the duties of each of the officials named and believes that adherence to such definition will work a material expense reduction and efficiency increase. Twice as much should be spent in the game policing work as in the commercial fishing police work, the report asserts. Officials should not be allowed to employ relatives, and the recommendation is made that the state's men cooperate closely with the representatives of the government fisheries bureau in this district. The committee reports that the government, in 1912, expended $1,500,000 put out $1,000,000 fry, and doubts if the state ever made this good a showing.

The recommendation is made that Finley turn over to the state treasury at once, the balance of his private account, mentioned above.

SUIT AGAINST CASHIER COMPANY IS FRAMEUP, DECLARES ATTORNEY

this indebtedness. He further charged that Mr. Birrel had admitted as much to Dr. Nichols. Attorney Skulason denied Hume's connection with the case at hand and stated that Birrel's suit was solely in the interests of a stockholder of the company, and that other stockholders were prepared to enter the suit.

Skulason further charged that the company's projected removal to Indianapolis and the formation of a new company in Indiana to be known as the International Money Machine company was solely for the purpose of evading the Blue Sky law of this state, that the company existed solely for the purpose of selling stock, had no valid patents that would enable them to sell machines on the open, competitive market because all basic patents were held by other individuals, and charged further the company patents' rights, which have been valued at $450,000 were practically valueless.

State Refuses Permission. He stated further that the company had petitioned the corporation commissioner of this state to be allowed to do business in Oregon, and that it had been refused because of the poor showing made. This statement Judge Calkin had earlier anticipated and denied, saying that no such application had ever been made and that the company could comply with any blue sky law in the country.

Judge Calkin stated that the removal to Indianapolis was solely in the interests of the stockholders, and read a score or more of telegrams from stockholders in all parts of the country, expressing the move. He stated that the reasons for removal were purely ones of business expediency and search for more suitable industrial conditions. Skulason, on the other hand, disputed this statement on the ground that the removal involved further stock-selling which would be impossible under the Oregon law and pointed out that Indiana has no blue sky law.

Scoffs at Statement. He stated that of the nine directors of the new company, five lived in this state, and scoffed at Judge Calkin's previous statement as ludicrous, saying the present suit would cause the Indiana company to rescind the contract between the two companies. He further charged that two of the directors on the Indiana company's board were stock salesmen under Menefee, and therefore amenable to him. Skulason read largely from an affidavit of James S. Birrel. It was alleged in the affidavit that while salaries may not have been paid to the officers of the company, large sums of money were given in their stead, and that the real estate taken in return for stock was largely in the hands of Bilyeu and Menefee. Alleging the patents worthless, Skulason said the company had sold none of its product, with the exception of two machines, because it had nothing to sell. He further stated that the company's foreign rights, which have been assessed at $400,000, were without value, because of a previous English patent which antedated the Bilyeu patent and by reason of an international agreement held good in 26 different countries. He charged that millions had been spent for two machines and by reason of the company was "broke," and demanded in the interests of the stockholders to know what had become of the money. Birrel in his affidavit further stated that he did not begin suit for the benefit of R. A. Hume. Judge Calkin in his statement pleaded that the suit should never have been filed if Birrel was really working in the interests of the stockholders, and that by attempting to prevent the removal to Indianapolis, Birrel was striking at the "very heart blood of the business."

CAUSE OF ILL HEALTH
Nine Times Out of Ten It's the Kidneys.
The subtle and delusive character of kidney disease often leads people to believe they are suffering from neuralgia, rheumatism, pleurisy, heart weakness and other acute forms of disease. In reality all such troubles sometimes arise through failure of the kidneys to properly perform their functions of removing the poisonous matter from the blood. Unmistakable signs of kidney disease are pains in the head, swelling under the eyes, dry skin, dull complexion, tired feeling, loss of energy, etc. Many physicians say that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy is the only medicine that treats with certainty the frail tubular structures constituting these important organs. It soothes and heals the inflamed parts and gradually restores them to their normal condition. For sale by all druggists in 50c and $1.00 bottles.
