BACHELORS HELD IN A MATRIMONIAL NET

As might be suspected from the title, "Our Wives" has something of a feminine twist and unless one does not mind being laughed at, the Baker is a good place for the fair sex to avoid this week. The tale has to do with four bachelor friends who have been quite content for years in the society of each other. Then the seeming inevitable occurs and one evening three of them bear tidings of "the dearest girl in the world." Of course they are married shortly and come for a reunion banquet with their wives at the apartment of the one remaining bachelor, Frank Bowers, a librettist.

STEREOPHON USED TO ILLUSTRATE SERMON

Stereophon views were used last night by the Rev. Robert N. McLean, pastor of the Anselm Presbyterian church to illustrate his sermon on "Blind Bartimaeus." The sermon was the first in a proposed series on the "Miracles of Jesus." "Blindness is entirely relative," said Mr. McLean, "and a judgment concerning it is a comparative judgment. The man who has no conception of the future is more blind and more wretched than he who has no idea of the present. There are those who can cure blindness. Jesus Christ who is the final author of our redemption, things spiritual can if you will place yourself in his hands teach you to see God."

CHOOSING A CAREER

A great many young women seem to think that all you need to make a good living by writing is an introduction or two to newspaper or magazine editors. I don't suppose anyone would imagine she could become an illustrator on the same simple terms. Yet one profession is as difficult and requires as much training as the other. You can't sit down and write like a professional before you are even an amateur.

What's more, there probably is not another profession so crowded as this same one of writing and because so many think that it must be such nice, easy work thousands who have no real bent for it go into writing. They shuffle along somehow, and pitiful are the stories that occasionally come to one's attention of the makeshifts and struggles that girls endure who have come to the city "to write."

I get tired asking me whether the writer cannot make money writing stories and articles; letters that are often badly misspelled, ungrammatical, and slipshod, and the work of persons who have not the faintest preparation for the career they want to follow. As well expect to make a success as a typewriter with no knowledge of shorthand and typewriting or as a telephone operator if you've never even seen a telephone as to think you can sell the things you write to an editor when you are entirely untrained in the very rudiments of the work.

If the girls of whom I speak will only realize that a tremendous competition exists in this business of writing and that those who make any kind of success work at it as a skilled man works at his trade, indefatigably with all the advantages of severe training back of them, and that even then it is often a mighty hard job to make a living, many heartbreaks and worse could be spared them. If the time spent in writing utterly hopeless stuff were given to real productive labor in some field where the would-be author could make good there'd be many a comfortable living made where now there is only waste.

W. C. T. U. Meeting. The Willard W. C. T. U. will hold their Frances Willard memorial as an all-day meeting at the house of Mrs. Gillett, corner Jarrett and Twenty-second streets, next Tuesday.

Next Wednesday Will Be "Red Letter Day"
