SHORT STORIES TELL DELAYED NEWS

Resume of the Events of Friday Afternoon and Night; Paragraphed for Quick Digestion by Journal Readers.

Eastern.

John G. Bowman resigned as president of the state university of Iowa. He gave as a reason that a professor had been discharged without a hearing. He said this was in violation of an agreement with the board.

The First Congregational church, of Montclair, N. J., burned, with a loss of $200,000. The edifice is the largest of the kind in the city.

Mayor Mitchell, of New York, has agreed to allowing the cabaret grills to remain open until 2 o'clock a. m. The former time for closing was an hour earlier.

The gift of $50,000 by John D. Rockefeller to the Young Men's Christian association, of Springfield, Mass., has been announced.

Ex-President Taft favors the retention of the present anti-trust law, and would make whatever additions thereto necessary. He fears bad results from any repeal of the law which he says has stood the test.

The appellate division of the supreme court severely scored Henry H. Rogers in a suit brought against him by the Messiah Home for Crippled Children. The suit was over the title to the home on which Rogers said he held a $600,000 mortgage.

Frank E. Vogel, partner of the bankrupt firm of Henry Siegel & Co., New York, refused to appear before United States Commissioner Alexander Gilchrist Jr., to explain matters in connection with the defunct institution. He explained that he was too ill to leave his home. He will be adjudged in contempt of court if he fails to appear by next Monday.

The agreement by which the receivers of the St. Louis & San Francisco road cancel an indebtedness the road of nearly $4,600,000 and relinquish of two subsidiaries in Louisiana to the syndicate that promoted them, was approved by United States Judge Sanborn, at St. Louis.

A conductor foiled a robber who was bent on robbing the passengers of the Ohio-Florida special near Floville, Ga. The robber had drawn his gun but the train official pulled the bell chord and the bandit took fright and ran.

The ancestral home of George Washington will be restored to its former state. The sites for the statues of Washington and Lincoln in London will be chosen in the near future.

Opening suddenly, the earth swallowed two men and a work shanty on the mountainside at Shenandoah, Pa. It was found that they had plunged into an abandoned coal mine, probably falling several hundred feet. Weeks might be required, experts said, to find them.

The first National bank at Gallatin, Tenn., near Nashville, Tenn., was robbed of $32,000. It was reported here that the burglars worked the safe's combination.

City Treasurer McCoach offered a reward of $1000 for the return of Warren McCormick, a 7-year-old boy, who disappeared at Philadelphia. So far the police have been unable to get the slightest clue to the boy's whereabouts and it is believed he was kidnaped. Dozens of suspects have been arrested, but all were released.

Pacific Coast.

Judge Campbell, of Sonoma, Cal., held court in his automobile and imposed a fine of $10 on A. N. Cadeglia for shooting meadow larks. The judge, in company of two deputy fish and game commissioners, came upon the hunter on the road, and the arrest and trial followed in short order.

Mrs. Elvida Cheng, wife of a Chinese physician of Boston, was granted a divorce at San Francisco. The woman said she did not know her husband was a Chinese, but thought he was a Hawaiian. The doctor is well to do.

Mary Blehm, after having been three times married to her husband, Philip, has decided that she will get a divorce now and abide by it. On each former occasion she went back to live with him, but she says he has failed to "make good." Suit has been filed at Walla Walla.

An attempt to have grave-diggers come under the workmen's compensation act, because of the dangerous nature of the work, is being made at Olympia, Wash. The use of explosives to blast out the graves is held as a menace to life.

Following the discovery that Fireman George Hunter had smallpox, 15 firemen at Walla Walla, Wash., have been vaccinated.

Ex-Senator Clark, of Montana, narrowly escaped death in New York, when a 14 ton iron girder fell at a new building there of the Equitable Life Insurance company. The strength of the bridge over the sidewalk saved his life. One workman was killed and two injured.

Mrs. Eugene J. Murphy and her daughter, Miss Iva Murphy, suffered severe cuts from flying glass at Oakland, Cal., when their big touring car crashed into a Key Route electric train. The accident occurred when Mrs. Murphy swerved the machine to avoid a head-on collision and unconsciously pressed the foot throttle, increasing the speed of the car.

A. J. Taylor, C. G. Reay, John McDeough and Manuel Joseph, customs guards, and Yung Gai, a Chinese, pleaded guilty to smuggling opium into the port of San Francisco. Their plea followed conviction of Max Miller, another guard, on a similar charge.

The forest fire which swept over four miles of territory near the California Redwood Park was controlled. The flames destroyed much timber belonging to Judge J. H. Logan, of Santa Cruz, the Western Shore Lumber company and others.

Charged with bombarding a choir meeting of the San Jose, Cal., Baptist church, with firecrackers, Jack Bailey, Earl Bobo, Chester Moore and John Pinn were arrested. The dress of one of the women members caught fire, and she was slightly burned.

Foreign.

Torrential rains and heavy winds descended on France, causing a great amount of damage. Four aeroplanes were wrecked and fields in the northern part of France suffered extensively. Ships were unable to leave Brest.

The large military dirigible balloon Zeppelin V got away from its holdings at Johannisthal, Germany, and soared off into space. The balloon narrowly escaped destruction in clearing the grandstand. The ballast was sacrificed to save the balloon.

Emperor William of Germany is said to have written a letter expressing strong anti-Catholic views. The missive is attracting a great deal of attention. The letter is said to have been found among the papers of the late Cardinal Koppe.

The tomb of Robbert Lewis Stevenson, on Mount Vaea, is said to be in good condition and to need but little attention, by Mrs. Isobel Strong, the stepdaughter, who has arrived at Honolulu.

Fear that Colonel Arguelles and 116 federal soldiers under him, captured by rebels near Monclova, have been executed in retaliation for the execution by federals of 149 mutineers at Jojutla, were expressed in Mexico City by War Minister Blanquet. The mutineers intended to cast their lot with the rebels and the latter were said to have taken their punishment as a challenge to themselves.

President Huerta at Mexico City agreed to let the United States embassy receive arms and ammunition consigned to it by the Washington government for use in case of an anti-foreign uprising.

Executive.

The congressional committees which have been investigating strike conditions in Michigan and Colorado held a joint secret conference at which they discussed the desirability of subpenaing John D. Rockefeller. They did not make public their decision.

Influential Japanese residents of Detroit were planning to call Ambassador Chinda's attention to a refusal by Probate Judge Henley to allow Ito Kotsomura, a rich Christianized Japanese, legally to adopt an orphaned American child. The judge based his refusal on racial grounds.

A favorable report on the Taylor bill creating 10 mining experiment stations, one to be located in Alaska and the others in western metallurgical states, was returned by the house mines committee. Each station, by the terms of the bill, will be allowed to spend $25,000 annually.

Senator La Follette laid before the upper house a protest from the International Seamen's union against approval by the lawmakers of the findings of the recent London conference on safety at sea, together with a request for passage of the Nelson seamen's bill. It was asserted that orientals are driving white men from the ocean.

Congressman Mann of Illinois, the Republican floor leader, wished with much emphasis in the house that the country "had a Roosevelt or Jackson to deal with the Mexican situation." The congressman discussed President Wilson's request for repeal of the exemption of American coastwise shipping from Panama canal tolls, denouncing the proposition strongly.

In the sundry civil appropriation bill, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo included today a $115,000 item to buy more land for the Oakland, Cal., post-office and custom house.

"General" Rose Is Released.

Los Angeles, March 21.—"General" Morris Rose and 27 of his unemployed "army" received the surprise of their lives today when they were released from jail on their own recognizance, informed that they might establish a temporary camp in the bed of the Los Angeles river, bowed into police automobiles and whizzed back to the camp that the police broke up two days ago.

The action of the police indicated that they have attempted a new solution of the unemployed army problem. According to Rose, he was given tacitly to understand that he might do all the organizing he pleases in the river bed without police molestation; in fact, that the police would aid his mobilization plans. After all of which, Rose is to march his army out of town. He intends to lead them to Sacramento to join Kelly's band at "Liberty City."

Rose has called mass meetings of unemployed for tonight and tomorrow at which he will ask for recruits. He is confident that he will gather more than 2000 men for the march.

Hood River Will "Swat."

Hood River, Or., March 21.—A systematic campaign to "swat the fly" was launched in Hood River yesterday by the Woman's club committee on civics, high school pupils under the direction of Professor Crites, and county school children under the direction of County School Superintendent C. D. Thompson. Circulars announcing the campaign and the best methods of extermination have been mailed to all the homes in the city and valley. The local merchants are supplying "fly swatters" free.

Malheur Dam of Peculiar Shape

Distance From Railroad Makes Hauling Expensive So Builders Shape It With View to Economy.

Salem, Or., March 21.—A dam 90 feet high and only 9.2 feet thick at the bottom and three feet thick at the top will be the most remarkable dam in the state when completed, according to State Engineer Lewis.

This dam, which is the property of the Malheur Livestock & Land company, in Malheur county, was built three years ago to a height of 55 feet and the company has now made application for a permit to raise the dam to 90 feet.

The present dam stores 1300 acre feet of water and the enlarged dam is to store about 2400 acre feet of water. The proposed enlargement will cost about $30,000. The dam is located about 80 miles from the railroad and freighting in cement is epensive, which accounts for the unique design of the structure. State Engineer Lewis said the dam is risky, but theoretically is amply strong enough, and as it is far from a settled country he will approve the application for a permit to enlarge it.

Hoff Will Enforce Rulings.

Salem, Or., March 21.—State Labor Commissioner O. P. Hoff stated today that he would take steps to see that the rulings of the industrial welfare commission, the legality of which has been upheld by the supreme court, are strictly enforced. He said in Portland this work will be handled from his office at 250½ Third street, which is in the charge of C. F. Caulfield, deputy labor commissioner. The commission's rulings regulate the hours and wages of women workers.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Or., March 21.—Officers of the United States war department have notified the college authorities that inspection day this year will be held Friday, May 8.

NEW ARRANGEMENTS FOR HANDLING HOOD RIVER'S APPLE CROP

Announced That Organization Looking to Greater Protection of Grower Formed.

(Special to The Journal.)

Hood River, Or., March 21.—The methods and manner of handling the Hood River valley apple crop that have been employed in past years through the organizations of the Apple Growers' union, Apple Growers' association and Davidson Fruit company, will be revolutionized this season in the handling of the valley's output of approximately 1,000,000 boxes.

Through the efforts of A. W. Stone, manager of the Apple Growers' association, a growers' association will be formed that will own and control all of the properties of the several shipping organizations in Hood River, amounting to approximately $750,000, and this year's crop will be handled on a non-profit sharing basis instead of a dividend paying basis as has been the custom heretofore. Concerning the plan Mr. Stone says:

"In order to attain the best results in the shipping end of the Hood River fruit industry, this feature of the business should be solely and wholly under the control of the fruit growers who are shippers through the organization. The growers should control the entire business. As it is now there are a number of growers who hold large voting power in the present associations and private concerns, who do not ship their fruit through these concerns, yet they assist in electing directors and in shaping the policy of the shipping institutions. This feature should be eliminated, and only those who ship through the concern should have a voice in the elections and matters of governmental control.

"I think there should be a premium placed upon loyalty to the shipping concern in the shape of giving the shippers a bonus or financial reward in the form of an increased interest in the holdings of the concern, according to the tonnage marketed by them, and also give them privileges in the purchase of materials from the shipping organization.

"At present a grower can cancel his contract one year and renew it the next without suffering any apparent disadvantage. All this is to the detriment of the shipping concern, and no permanent organization can be maintained upon such a basis. Disloyal members should be disciplined by forfeiture of some substantial benefits of the organization, or the payment of a substantial fee when seeking readmission.

"Some method of permanent financing must be evolved in order to increase the purchasing power of the organization, so that the materials used by the growers in their orchard work can be supplied them at minimum cost. Close cooperation upon the part of the growers will assure the permanency of a shipping concern that will net the shippers of fruit the best possible results."

Much Activity in Cornucopia

Indications Are That Mining Game Will be Better This Season Than for Years Past, Though Roads Are Bad.

Baker, Or., March 21.—The Cornucopia mining district of Baker county is looking forward to a busy season as the present activity is greater than anything since boom days. The Union-Companion company, a steady producer for several years is adding to its equipment and working force, as is the Bowlder Creek company, operating the old Underwood placers, a few miles below the Companion on Pine creek. The Woodard, and Lane and Wilson group of nine patented claims on East Eagle creek was recently bonded for approximately $80,000 and leased to William Slade of Reno, Nev., and the same operator has opened negotiations for the lease of the Simmons group, both properties to be developed and worked the coming season. The Basin mine near Sanger was leased last week. An effort will be made to open the highways in the district, which will be a great help to its development.

Valley Editors Hold Meeting at Salem

Program Includes Papers of Interest to General Public as Well as to Craft; Entertainment Features.

Salem, Or., March 21.—With a good attendance on hand, the Willamette Valley Press association is meeting here this afternoon. A program of papers of interest to the general public as well as to the craft is being given at the Salem Commercial club, which is acting as host to the visiting newspaper men.

Following the program at the club rooms, the visitors will be shown over the city in automobiles and this evening they will be the guests of the club and the Salem newspaper men at a banquet at the Marion hotel.

Services for Young.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Or., March 21.—Funeral services were held yesterday over the body of Fred Byron Young, who died of typhoid-pneumonia, in the Presbyterian church, under the direction of the cadet regiment of the Oregon Agricultural college. Practically all of the students in the college and the entire regiment were present at the services. The regiment formed the escort of honor, Company H, with which Young was affiliated, being the special escort.

Dr. J. R. N. Bell read the services. The body was sent to Portland. Interment will be made in Lone Fir cemetery.

Eugene-Coast Line Probable.

Eugene, Or., March 21.—There are prospects of the building of a through telephone line between Eugene and Coos Bay, along the new Willamette Pacific railway. W. J. Van Houtte, district manager of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company, is now on a trip to the lower Siuslaw country to look over the situation. None but farmers' lines are now in operation between Eugene and the coast, and the service is poor because the lines are down much of the time.

BLACK LANGSHANS BECOMING POPULAR

By Thomas J. Keenan.

A variety of fowls to become popular with the people, must have something special to commend it. It must be a good layer, or a fine table fowl, and if it unites these two advantages with hardiness, docility and beauty, it is bound to become a favorite. Those who have bred the Black Langshans know that they have all these characteristics in a preeminent degree.

Langshans are the smallest and most active of the Asiatic class, and their fair laying and other excellent qualities make them profitable for the farmer and city poultryman. Although the Leghorns have been considered the greatest egg machines on earth, and have been raised extensively on many of the large egg farms, the recent egg laying contest which was held at Mountain Grove, Mo., under government supervision, developed the fact that two of the heavier breeds of fowl have led all the other breeds in average egg production for the year. In this contest the Wyandottes led, with an average of 160 eggs per hen, while the Langshans were a close second with an average of 156 eggs. Both breeds consumed 35 pounds of grain per hen, but the Langshans consumed about 12 pounds more dry mash than the Wyandottes.

The average Langshan hen will lay 12 to 13 dozen eggs a year, and will always give a good account of itself when eggs are scarce and prices are the highest. The chicks are hardy and mature early, but do not make as good broilers as the Rocks, Reds or Wyandottes, as they are taller and more rangey, and not so plump at the broiler age.

The quality of the flesh of the Langshan is excellent, being fine grained, tender and nicely flavored, and there is no better table fowl when matured, as the skin is delicately white and fine, the breast, legs and thighs well covered with choice meat, and the carcass when dressed is very pleasing to the farmer's wife, who is proud of her poultry.

One of the most noticeable characteristics of the Black Langshans is their docility, which feature is a very valuable one, as a bird with a quiet, gentle disposition will thrive better in confin
