Sees No Remedy in Law.—Senator George E. Chamberlain has written C. C. Chapman, Oregon immigration agent, that a proposed bit of legislation aimed at fake land advertisers in foreign countries and the United States, who lure settlers on specious promises that are never kept, is highly inadvisable at this time. The senator explains that he doubts whether such legislation could either be enacted or, if enacted, defended in court. He admits the misrepresentations in many cases are flagrant, but suggests that if the present postal laws do not apply, he does not know how they can be reached.

Stableman Dies Suddenly.—Joseph Thomas, employed at the Hawthorne avenue stables, was found dead yesterday morning in the barn office. Death is believed to have been due to natural causes. Saturday evening Thomas returned to the stable, smoked a cigarette in a large chair, then fell asleep. B. P. Fulford, another employe rooming at the stables, heard the man enter, later he heard him fall from the chair. There was evidence of intoxication. Thomas was 39 years old, married, but separated from his family.

Frost, assistant secretary of the Milwaukee Merchants and Manufacturers' association, members of which will visit Portland June 9 on a tour of the country, has written the Commercial club asking for data about the history, scenery and accomplishments of the city. This house was raided a few weeks ago. This morning in the municipal court the judge fined Fred McDowell, Ray Simeon and Harry Gardner each $15 for violating the place. The women will be heard Thursday.

RAIN DOES NOT MAR EASTER PARADE OF PORTLAND FAIR ONES

Accommodating Weather Allowed Promenade to the Churches and on Streets.

HATS WERE MARVELOUS

Big Ones, Little Ones, Those With Plumes and Others Covered With Flowers, In Evidence.

Yesterday was Easter Sunday and the rain held off just long enough to avert a calamity. For being Easter Sunday it was also new hat and new clothes Sunday. The parade of the fair ones promenade to church; it held off when church was over; it even stayed as long as enough for the parade up and down Morrison or Washington streets. Then, it rained.

But the hearts of women were glad; the hats were shown to public gaze and Easter had been celebrated according to tradition. Portland's churches yesterday were a field of flowering hats, every conceivable design and creation of the milliner's art. Big hats, little hats and bonnets, hats with plumes and feathers. Hats with mysterious adornments strangely suggestive of pie a la mode.

There were hats that bent over and concealed the ears and hats that stood straight up in the air, but the newest and pettiest and most rakish of the lot was the hat resembling an inverted soup plate, worn at an angle of 45 degrees, with a little cobweb lace around the edges and a bud or two strewn carelessly on one side.

White stockings with patent leather pumps seemed to be ultra-ultra in foot-gear yesterday. One couldn't help seeing the stockings at least. And as for dresses, Madame Hobes at Manteaux turned out some wonderful things. The new gown with the alternate layers of material in ruffles was most in evidence.

Most of the churches were filled to capacity, many in the rear of the structures being unable to get seats. Late comers were furnished camp stools and chairs in the aisles, and were peeved. There is no profit in showing a new Easter bonnet sitting on a camp stool; nor is it fun to stand through a service in one's new Easter shoes.

While all the family, except the son-in-law, were out for an afternoon walk at 3 o'clock, the aged man took a revolver, went to the rear lawn, sat down on a wheelbarrow, and fired a bullet into his temple. The son-in-law heard the shot and called Dr. G. W. Tamslele. At 8 o'clock last night the aged man expired.

Wilson came to Oregon in 1876 from Missouri, settling near Hillsboro, where a large family was raised. Three months ago, he came to Portland to live with the daughter and for medical treatment. Yesterday morning, the family physician was called, but was unable to arrive until late in the afternoon. This delay appeared to worry Wilson. Dr. Tamslele was not the family physician.

The body was removed to the Pearson undertaking parlors from which place the funeral will be held, with interment at Hillsboro. No inquest will be held.

Saw No Need of Light.—Dr. Andrew C. Smith was before the municipal court this morning for not having his automobile lighted Thursday evening at the Orpheum theatre. The machine was left on the street during the performance. The physician explained that he considered the street so well lighted at that point that lights were not necessary. Under this condition no sentence was imposed.

Despondent Old Man Takes His Own Life. Sheburne Wilson, 83 years old, committed suicide yesterday afternoon at the home of his son-in-law, 752 Gantenbein avenue. Despondency over ill health is considered the cause.

While all the family, except the son-in-law, were out for an afternoon walk at 3 o'clock, the aged man took a revolver, went to the rear lawn, sat down on a wheelbarrow, and fired a bullet into his temple. The son-in-law heard the shot and called Dr. G. W. Tamslele. At 8 o'clock last night the aged man expired.

Explosion Mystery Is Still Unsolved

Many Hear Muffled Detonation and Police Maintain All Night Search Without Result.

A mysterious explosion somewhere on the east side last evening shortly after 8 o'clock has caused much speculation. What it was, no one has been able to learn. Residents from various parts of the central east side telephoned the police, inquiring the nature of the explosion, but investigation of various places fails to disclose any damage.

The first report came from East Eighth street and Hawthorne avenue. Motorcycle Officers Gouldstone and Nutter inspected this neighborhood, but found nothing. Members of the second night police relief kept up the search, but found no trace of the explosion. Some are inclined to believe the explosion was caused by sewer gas.

MISSIONARY WILL SPEAK

The semi-annual meeting of the Columbia river branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary society will be held at the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, East Ninth and Pine streets, tomorrow morning, commencing at 9:30 o'clock. Miss Laura Austin of Baroda, India, will deliver an address and Rev. F. L. Loveland, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Portland, will speak. A young people's missionary rally will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at Centenary church.

More Loot May Be Recovered Today

Detectives Continue Investigation of Thefts from Portland Business Houses.

Deputy District Attorney Robison and Detective Hyde who are in charge of the investigation of wholesale thievery from various stores by an organized band of women, expect to recover more wearing apparel and jewelry this afternoon. Throughout the forenoon today they spent their time checking up information against women who are known to have secured either clothing or jewelry from Mrs. Della Rhude or Mrs. Ella Crear, two of the five women held in the county jail as the leaders.

"We have information which leads us to believe that we will soon recover more stolen goods," said Mr. Robison. "Whether we will make further arrests is a question undetermined at the present time."
