

HEINTZ TO PAY PART PENALTY FOR DELAY UPON COURT HOUSE

Manager of the Pacific Iron Works and County Commissioners Agree.

APPROVAL OF ARCHITECT

Claims Against Two Other Companies For Penalties Yet to be Settled by Interested Parties.

A compromise was reached yesterday afternoon between O. E. Heintz, proprietor of the Pacific Iron Works, and the county commissioners, by which the latter will penalize Heintz $1000 for delays in the erection of the steel work of the east wing of the court house. The commissioners had held up $12,250 yet due on the contract and the $1000 will be subtracted from that and the balance paid to Heintz.

The settlement was agreed to by Architect Whidden, who was in charge of the erection of the court house. Claims for penalties against the Herzog Iron Works for $2400 and the Stewart Iron Works for $2250, which amounts are being held up are yet to be settled. The former installed the ornamental iron work and the latter erected the jail.

protecting his investments or developing his resources. We paid $7,200,000 for Alaska in 1867; $12,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase in 1803, and in 1848, we paid $15,000,000 for California, Arizona and New Mexico. In every one of these cases we made a good buy but in the case of Alaska we have not only failed to develop her resources but by inexcusable delay we have retarded her development and caused red-blooded pioneers and home makers to go to Alberta and British Columbia where titles can be secured to land with certainty and dispatch.

Alaska Compared.
Alaska has 596,884 square miles of territory. The 13 original states have an area of about 249,845 square miles. You could cut Alaska up in 472 states the size of Rhode Island; you could make 12 states from it as large as Ohio. It is larger than Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales combined. Norway, Sweden and Finland, in the same latitude as Alaska, have a population of over 10,000,000, yet they have no gold, coal nor copper and their fisheries do not compare with those of Alaska. The coast line of the United States on the Pacific Gulf and the Pacific waters is approximately 22,000 miles where over 20,000 miles of Alaska's 33,000 miles of coast line are washed by the Kuro-Shiwo or Japan current.

Time to Unlock Storehouse.
Fisheries, agriculture, mineral wealth, forests, oil, no wonder President Wilson says it is time to unlock this rich storehouse.

Not only has Alaska a coast line of 33,000 miles with a wealth of inlets, gulfs, bays and land locked harbors but it also has over 6000 miles of navigable inland waterways. The Yukon discharges at least 23 per cent more water than the Mississippi and one can travel by steamer from Whitehorse to St. Michaels at its mouth, a distance of 2164 miles. The Tanana is navigable for 275 miles, the Koyukuk for 620 miles, the Kuskokwin for 530 miles, the Iditarod for 220 miles, the Inupiat for 270 miles, the Kantishna for over 200 miles. Then there are the Porcupine, Stickine and many more.

Possibilities of Reindeer.
We talk about the era of the reindeer being gone, yet Alaska can support not less than 2,000,000 reindeer. In 1900 while in the government service, I was a fellow passenger with Governor John G. Brady and Dr. Sheldon Jackson on board the transport Lawton, now the Rose City, which with the Bear and Beaver ply between Portland and San Francisco.

We came from Nome to Udalta together. Dr. Jackson had with him some families from Lapland, reindeer herds, men. Governor Brady, Dr. Jackson and myself talked for hours each day about the early history of Alaska, and its development. Dr. Jackson told me about his visits to Lapland and Siberia to procure reindeer for Alaska. The first animals were brought from Siberia in 1891.

In 1911, 20 years later, 18,750 pounds of reindeer meat was shipped to Seattle and sold at a good price. On June 20, 1913, there were 47,266 reindeer in the 62 herds of Alaska.

The government owns 3853; the rest belong to natives. The reindeer never requires feed as it is a browser, eating moss, and lichens found abundantly on the tundra land of Alaska. Possibly Alaska may solve the high cost of living problem by furnishing us with reindeer meat.

The popular conception of Alaska is of a country of eternal ice. From May 20 to September 1, southern Kansas and Oklahoma have 1500 hours of sunlight—while in the Tanana valley in latitude 65 degrees north they have during the same 100 day period 1800 hours of sunshine and on June 21 there is a day of 22 hours of sunshine.

"Land of Sunshine" Out-shined.
Even California will have to take off its hat as the land of sunshine to Alaska during the long days. Sitka has a mean annual temperature of 43 degrees. Umeath, 42; Christiana, Norway, 41; Stockholm, Sweden, 42.

As southwestern Alaska is exporting peltry and turnips it seems to prove that farming can be carried on there successfully.

The census for 1900 shows that Massachusetts has a population of 348 persons to the square mile. You can travel for days and weeks in Alaska and not see a house. One-third of Finland's area is agricultural land and on this they support 60 persons to the square mile. Finland lies between the sixtieth and seventieth parallels of latitude, just as does Alaska. Finland exports butter, cheese and beef. Alaska richer by far, can support 500 times her present population.

Alaska Big Dividend Payer.
The total cost of Alaska to the United States from the date of purchase to January 1 last was, including the purchase price and all other disbursements, $41,560,168.82.

During the same period Alaska returned on the investment the following sums:
Gold, $228,512,471;
Copper, $14,074,825;
Fur seal skins, $52,042,528;
Fishery products, $182,569,625.

These with the silver, gypsum, marble, tin, coal, whalebone and other products, amount to $525,688,327.72.

Put it another way, the report of the collector of customs shows that the total trade with Alaska for the year 1912, what she bought to eat and wear and live in and work with, amounted to in round figures, over $22,000,000, while she sent out over $25,000,000 worth of canned salmon.

halibut and other products and over $16,000,000 in gold. The total trade with Alaska for 1912 both to and from, amounted to $72,741,060.

What This Means to Portland.
What has all this to do with Portland? It has this to do—the building of government railroads in Alaska will involve the spending by the government of $35,000,000. Why should not the freight for this line be shipped from Portland? Why should not Portland's wholesalers furnish the supplies to be used? Why should not Portland's boat line handle this freight?

Why should not Portland's merchants cultivate a territory as rich as Alaska? Are they going to do it? It is up to Portland. What is the answer?

Highest Types of Men Are Required

American Transportation Men are More Highly Developed Than Others. Says Frank W. Robinson.

"American transportation activities call for the highest type of men the world produces, because transportation in the United States is more highly developed than anywhere else."

Frank W. Robinson, assistant traffic manager of the Q.-W. R. & N. company, made the statement yesterday at the bi-weekly luncheon of the Portland Transportation club at the Multnomah hotel, declaring that a great revolution had taken place in the business of hauling freight.

Nowadays, railroad officials realize that if they are to compete fairly with other lines, they must do so fairly and must utilize high intelligence and personal integrity, he said. He must know his line, and be able to show the shipper his wares, just as would a salesman for a shoe house or a grocery jobber.

Mr. Robinson noted a gradual disposition on the part of the public to look upon the railroads more tolerantly and he urged the club members to use this opportunity to demonstrate that the railroads are trying to serve the public honestly and as fellow business men.
