Sues for $10,000 Damages.
Gustav Weber was kicked by a horse called "gentle," according to his complaint in a $10,000 personal injury suit on trial before Circuit Judge Cleeton. He is suing the United States Bakery, by which he was employed. He alleges that the horse was vicious and unmanageable when unhitched and that he was kicked by the animal on the that Weber, through his method of handling the animal, contributed to the cause of the kicks.

Church Factions
Now Harmonious

Congregations Unite in Holding Religious Services at Taylor Street Methodist Church.
With not a trace of the old animosity remaining, the two factions of the First Methodist church, divided last fall when one group refused to abandon the old building at Third and Taylor streets to worship in the church at Twelfth and Taylor streets, merged into one body again yesterday at the old edifice.

At both services the attendance was overflowing. Dr. F. L. Loveland, the pastor who effected the plan of reconciliation, said the services were the most uplifting of any he had seen since coming to the Portland church.
Dr. Loveland's morning subject was "The Unselfishness of Christ" and the sermon was entirely appropriate to the occasion.
The separation came over the proposition to build a new church and discontinue services in the old structure.
The "insurgents" refused to leave the Third street place of worship, but a majority of the congregation went to the old Grace church at Twelfth and Taylor streets.
"The utmost good feeling prevails through the people of my congregation," Dr. Loveland explained yesterday.
"There are a few who are not entirely satisfied with the arrangement, but I have been assured they are all ready to fall into line and I do not anticipate any more trouble."

Lost Boy Restored
to His Parents

Youth Had Lost His Way When Trying to Find the City Park; Found Asleep Under Forch.
Eleven-year-old Herbert Mitchell, son of Mrs. Maud Mitchell of the Lacretia Court apartments, set out about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon to find the city park. When night fell he was on the heights back of Riverview cemetery. Four hours the boy stumbled around. In the meantime his frantic mother had notified the police and they were all ready to start a search. At midnight Dr. Dana I. Wadsworth, 1643 Fulton park boulevard, going up on his front porch, stumbled over something in the dark. Investigating, he found an utterly exhausted little boy, crouching, sound asleep, under a big porch rug.
The lad was brave and didn't cry a bit when awakened, although he shook with the cold for an hour afterwards.
Police Captain Harry Circle was notified about midnight, the police touring car made a swift run to Dr. Wadsworth's residence, and Herbert, swathed in the automobile robes, was taken to his home in the early hours of the morning.

DEMAND FOR MAPS OF
MEXICO IS INCREASED
BY EXISTING CRISIS

All Information Concerning Bellicose Republic Is Contained in Journal Atlas.
The eyes of the civilized world are today turned to Mexico and the occupation of Vera Cruz by naval forces of the United States is furnishing material for newspaper articles in every country of importance on the globe.
The offer of Argentina, Chile and Brazil, to assist in a plan of mediation between the United States and Huerta has introduced a new issue in the case.
Every bit of information concerning the republic to the south is being obtained. The Journal Atlas of the World, among other things, supplies a wealth of information concerning Mexico and South American countries.
This atlas is meeting with unexpected demand from the people of Portland and other points in Oregon and in nearby states where the journal is distributed daily through the mails.
The atlas is given away free. All that is necessary is to send $2.50, payment in advance, for four months' subscription to the Daily and Sunday Journal. For points outside of Portland the extra cost of postage is 13 cents. See coupon in today's paper.
Orders for hundreds of these atlases have already been received, and a war crisis giving an additional value to the pertinent facts regarding Mexico and the United States, which it contains.

The atlas shows every city and town of importance in Mexico. It shows rivers, harbors, mountains, plains and railroad lines. Distances from principal American ports to chief Mexican ports by water are indicated.
Possibility that a war with Mexico would cause the Panama canal to be used for the passage of our vessels to and from the Atlantic and Pacific oceans has caused the canal zone to be another center of attraction. Governor Goethals of the canal zone has already placed an extra guard of soldiers along the big ditch and if necessary the canal zone will be ready for our warships in a short time. A mass of information regarding the canal is contained in the atlas.
The atlas also contains a full explanation of parcel post, and colored maps of the countries of the earth.
