Social and Personal BY NONA LAWLER

Mrs. William B. Hare were joint hostesses this afternoon at a charming and unique bridge tea at the home of Mrs. J. Coulsen Hare in Caruthers street. All the appointments of the affair were carried out as a "Blue Bird" party, with decorations in blue, the iris and sweet peas being used with quantities of fern and greenery and dropping down amid their flowers on invisible wires were pretty little blue birds of celluloid, their vivid coloring making a charming effect. There were seven tables at bridge, and a dainty collation was served at the card

Three out of town visitors received with the hostesses, Mrs. Frank Settle-meir of Woodburn, Or., Mrs. J. W. Saddler of Aurora, Or., and Miss Fay Wade of Enterprise, Or. An especially enjoyable feature of the afternoon's entertainment were the violin selections by Miss Marie Chapman, accompanied by Mrs. R. A. Hollenbeck on the planc.

Mrs. Thompson Hostess at Bridge

Seven tables at bridge with a num ber of additional guests coming in for tea made up a most enjoyable affair of last Friday afternoon, at which Mrs. F. L. Thompson presided at her charming Portland Heights home. riotous combination of dainty hued spring flowers, for-get-me-nots, yellow iris and light pink rosebuds and carnations, made up the decorations of the rooms. Assisting about the rooms were Mrs. William A. MacRae, Mrs. Lewis hompson, and Mrs. John L. Hartman At the tea table the following matrons presided. Mrs. Holt C. Wilson, Mrs. William C. WORK FOR WOMEN

By Jessie Roberts. woman with a turn for art who has not the talent for painting and . who does not care for interior decorating might do worse than become a profesional photographer. There are several women who are making a good income at the work. It is one of the professions where a woman seed not fear the competition of men. she has only to show her fitness, Some women make a specialty of photographing children, either in their own homes or in the studio. It pays well. If you mean to take this work up you must first take a course in the technical part, and then experiment with the artistic side. The problems of light and shade, the possibilities of pose, the way to bring out retti Dowling, Earl J.
