

HAWLEY'S RECORD IN CONGRESS IS SAID TO VARY FROM CLAIMS

Open Letter Calls Attention to Inconsistencies, Particularly on Labor Matters.

STATEMENTS QUESTIONED

Complexity of Statement to Voters Asked to Square Assertions With Stand Taken by Legislator.

Charging that the information respecting Congressman W. C. Hawley, contained in the Republican voters' pamphlet for the first congressional district does not coincide with the congressional records, S. W. Starmer of Roseburg has addressed an open letter to its compilers, pointing out some of Mr. Hawley's inconsistencies. Mr. Starmer takes particular exception to Mr. Hawley's record on labor questions.

The paragraph in the campaign pamphlet to which the Roseburg man takes exception reads as follows: "As a national leader he (Hawley) has promoted safe, honorable, practical and active legislation for the public good, such as direct election of United States senators, railroad rate legislation, corporation tax, income tax, white slave, enforcement of the anti-trust laws, postal savings bank, parcel post, anti-scambling in farm products, labor, national contract practice, bureau of mines, Panama canal (with free tolls for American coastwise ships and excluding railroad owned ships), creation of a department of labor, and children's currency, national eight hour law for laborers and mechanics and many other acts of great national importance."

Mr. Starmer's open letter follows: Statement Said Not to Coincide. "I wish to know where the information contained in the voters' pamphlet was obtained, as the congressional records given below do not coincide with your statements."

"On May 13, 1912, the popular election of United States senators bill was before the house. Mr. Hawley is recorded as not voting. This is the first claim you make in the pamphlet regarding Mr. Hawley's activity in the making of good laws. You also claim much labor legislation, but did not state what kind, whether for or against labor. I am submitting the following from the Congressional Record of Mr. Hawley on labor questions, which shows how much interest he has taken in the welfare of labor."

December 17, 1908. Compulsory investigation of labor disputes. This bill was opposed by labor. Mr. Hawley is recorded as not voting.

June 23, 1910. To recede from amendment to appropriations bill preventing prosecutions of unions under anti-trust law. This bill was opposed by labor. Mr. Hawley voted in favor of it.

March 23, 1912. Phosphorus match tax, to prevent phosphy law. This bill was favored by labor. Mr. Hawley is recorded as not voting.

Record on Popular Election. "May 14, 1912. Popular election of United States senators. This bill was favored by labor. Mr. Hawley is recorded as not voting."

July 11, 1912. Regulating contempt of court proceedings. This bill was favored by labor. Mr. Hawley is recorded as not voting."

December 17, 1912. Immigration restriction bill, containing literacy test for immigrants. This bill was favored by labor. Mr. Hawley is recorded as voting against the bill."

February 13, 1913. Immigration restriction bill, containing literacy test, over President Taft's veto. This bill was favored by labor. Mr. Hawley is recorded as not voting."

March 1, 1913. Workmen's compensation bill. This bill was favored by labor. Mr. Hawley is recorded as voting against it."

February 4, 1914. Immigration restriction bill, with literacy test. This bill was favored by labor. Mr. Hawley is recorded as voting against it."

March 4, 1914. Convict made goods law. Favored by labor. Mr. Hawley voted "yea."

"As spaces will not allow comment on all these bills I will only mention a few facts (which the records will substantiate) on one of the most important bills, namely, the immigration bill. On December 17, 1912, the immigration bill, containing the literacy test for immigrants, which was favored by labor, was before the house and passed by a vote of 201 yeas to 61 nays. Mr. Hawley is recorded as one of the 61 nays."

Hawley Did Not Vote. "On February 19, 1913, the house took up for consideration the passage of this same bill over the president's veto, and it failed to carry by the necessary two thirds vote for such an overruling, the yeas being 219 and the nays 114 against, only lacking a few votes. Mr. Hawley is recorded as not voting."

"On February 4, 1914, the bill was again before the house. On the motion to recommit the bill, with instructions to strike out the literacy test (which labor opposed) Mr. Hawley voted to strike out the test. This amendment to strike out was defeated by such a decisive vote that it was apparent to all that the bill could not be defeated. The final vote on this bill was 232 yeas to 126 nays. Mr. Hawley voted for the bill. The majority with which this bill carried evidently convinced him that it was useless to oppose it."
