Scripture and Prohibition. Portland, June 6 .- To the Editor of The Journal-Every text cited by Mr. Speelman is either a command to certain men to abstain from wine, and many other things during a certain period, or else it is a condemnation of drunkenness, incapable of being twisted into a command not to drink. What will the Prohibitionist do with Deut. 14:26, "And thou shalt bestow that money for whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, for oxen, or for sheep. or for wine, or for strong drink, and thou shalt eat them before the Lord thy God, and thou shalt rejoice, thou and thine household." Is there a text in the Bible one tenth as strong in favor of the total abstinence theory as this is against it? . In the second of the two good examples of abstinence cited by Mr. Speelman, Jer. 35, it will be noticed that the Rechabites also abstained from building houses, sowing seed or planting vineyards, probably a little more abstinence that Mr. Speelman would care to indorse. Luke 1:15 is also one of his citations: "For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink wine or strong drink, and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb." John the Baptist was under the perpetual vow of a Nazarite and was an abstainer, but a man greater than John, speaking to the unbelievers, in Luke 7:33-34, said: "For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and ye say, He hath a devil. The Son of Man is come eating and drinking and ye say, Behold a gluttonous man, and a wine-bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners." I close with Colossians 2:16: "Let no man, therefore, judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days." From a biblical standpoint this verse alone damns prohibtion in no uncertain terms, since that which we are commanded to let no man do unto us we are certainly barred from doing unto him. The man Ross Read, formerly of Portland, now law fair trial. It has been said that this specific command can only be of Akron, Ohio, on "Theosophy and where there are "blind pigs" there consistent by repudiating the Bible. F. W. GOLDAPP.

During the present financial or business depression here, we are going to do something that we have never done before in any of our affices, and we hope we will never feel constrained to do so again—cut the price on Alveolar work 30 per cent off our regular price—and a still bigger cut on other dental work. There is no catch penny scheme about this. If you need dentistry and want the very best and classiest, here is your chance. Terms
