SWINE MARKET PRICES HAVE BEEN ENTIRELY TOO LOW AT PORTLAND SAN FRANCISCANS

FINANCIAL WORLD HAS EFFECT UPON PRICE OF

Money Conditions Abroad Are Not Favorable and Speculative Interest in American Cereals, There- said: fore, Is at a Very Low Ebb.

By Hyman H. Cohen. Financial conditions throughout the

While it is generally believed that most of the big exporting interests, are really more hearish in their ideas than is justified by facts, still money has been so tight abroad that there has been a great curtailment in speculative activity in grain futures.

Only the fact that the world will not justified as the fact that the world will not justified by facts, and there have seriously affected the iron and steel industry, that continuous agitation of business by anti-trust actions and legislation have also contributed.

many years when there was so little inclination among foreign interests as well as loome speculators to speculate to grains as at this time. To some extent the experience of the trade during the season now closing was the life feeter in causing the trade to go the trade to go the contradiction and depleted stocks are the best contradictions to the pessimistic views in the east.

"I have had a long conversation with a colleague in the steel industry in the west. He tells me that he left his Oats outlook is slightly more hopeful than barley, but it is too early to state with any degree of certainty what the crop is going to be and the size of the price depends upon the total yield of the country.

The great strength shown in the grain bag market can be attributed discountry.

rectly to the greater grain crops of California than anyone would have expected a few months ago. The cali for bags has been rather persistent from the south because the trade there purchased far less than probable re-unicements. quirements. Trading in the flour market is prac tically suspended. STEEL INTERESTS SEE SIGNS OF FAIR IMPROVEMENTSINCONDITIONSOFTRADE

New York, June 6.-The dawn of prosperity for American industries will come in mid-summer or early fall, according to the consensus of opinion expressed by many prominent leaders in the iron and steel industries, who attended the annual meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute in this city recently. W. F. Thomas, president of the Briar

Hill Steel company, Youngstown, Ohio, "The condition may be summarized by the statement that depression is based in the ratio of 25 per cent on real causes and 75 per cent on a falsely based sentiment. The warehouses Financial conditions throughout the world are causing much uncertainty of the railroads, jobbers, manufactur-regarding the future price of cereals and especially wheat at Pacific northwest points.

The war-nouses of the railroads, jobbers, manufacturers and retailers are down almost to rockbottom in stocks. They cannot continue to refrain from buying in exnot produce as big a crop of wheat this season as compared with a year ago will aid the growers from escaping from some of this bearing sentiment.

There has not been a season for the period of the depression, but I say that with the pendulum on the swing the leaders in all lines will soon recognize they are on the wrong track. Fundamental conditions, such as crops, monetary representations and depleted stocks are the big factor in causing the trade to go soffiewhat more slow in its operations.

Few of the exporting interests really made any movey on their foreign shipments last reason and some have and met his associates in this comended the year with a deficit.

The situation is perhaps worse in cumulated so rapidly that he is now regard to barley than in wheat or feeling more blue than the others. It oats. The enormous crop of Califoria is absurd that this is so because there oats. The enormous crop of California now being gathered has been offered to Europe at such low prices this season by speculative interests that there is likely to be only a few acraps of the trade left for the Pacific northwest growth. At the mongst there is little likelihood of any great activity in the movement of Pacific coast barley to the east; in fact, some of the leading interests liave come to the conclusion that there will be none at all. of Europe has exerted a depress-afluence on the industry as a our ann Mountain's Eruption Mystifies. Of course Mt. Lassen is creating a lot of excitement by its wholly unexpected activity after 200 years of good behavior, and a spirit of anxiety and unrest is manifest throughout the state. This unexpected eruption of Lassen brings vividly to mind the many times reports have gone the rounds in Oregon that Mt. Hood acting "peculiarly"-for Hood is on the same volcanic plateau. Many parties of naturalists and mountaineers of the Lassen disturbance and scientists from all parts of the country are headed towards California to study the phenomenon.
