

CARRANZA INSISTS HE MUST DICTATE TERMS OF PEACE MEDIATION

He Has Named Representative and Realizes He Holds the Upper Hand Anyway.

RECOGNITION IS POSSIBLE

President Wilson Believed to Agree With Carranza That Only Huerta Has Anything to Lose.

By John Edwin Nevin. United Press Staff Correspondent. Washington, June 5.—Only on his own terms will General Carranza, leader of the Mexican constitutionalists, participate in the Niagara Falls mediation conferences. This information was today transmitted to Secretary of State Bryan. Carranza will send word to the "A. B. C." mediators early next week that he has named a representative to confer with them. He will state in his communication that he has always been willing to confer on all internal questions affecting Mexico. He will reiterate his former declaration that the internal affairs of Mexico are that republic's own concern; that he represents an overwhelming majority of the Mexican people and that he and those whom he represents are the persons to decide on any new plan of government—not the mediators or the United States.

Wilson Approves of Reply. Secretary Bryan admitted tonight that he has been informed of the tenor of the proposed Carranza reply. It is believed that President Wilson indorses the major portion of it. The administration, it is declared in high official circles, is now satisfied that the constitutionalists are certain to triumph if forced to the final test of arms. Officials who should know say President Wilson is in sympathy with Carranza's insistence that he should not be required to agree to a cessation of hostilities against Huerta now that the dictator is admittedly at the last ditch.

While the president and Secretary Bryan would greatly regret any break-off at the present time of the mediation conference, it is declared in high official circles, is now satisfied that Carranza is about to triumph anyhow and that if a break-off should occur, it is not necessary of the United States resorting to its armed forces to eliminate Huerta and the cause he represents. Instead they are convinced, high officials say, that should the Carranza delegates raise unanswerable objections to the details of mediation in an effort to line the mediators up against Carranza, the United States will justify the United States in recognizing Carranza as the head of the de facto government in Mexico.

Wilson Holds the Card. Yet in the face of this report, such recognition is known to be the one card that President Wilson holds on the table in front of him, face downward, until played. If his hand is held by Huerta, Carranza can—those who know him best say he will—openly recognize Carranza's government as the provisional government of Mexico, and Huerta will be left with the burden of the Texas border. Such recognition, it is believed, in diplomatic circles, would be copied almost immediately by Great Britain. This would mean untried funds for Carranza, and financing of an army of adventurers to aid the army already in the field would be a comparatively easy task. It is absolute knowledge of these facts, officials say, that Carranza here agree, that is responsible for the feeling of confidence prevailing in administration circles. They think Huerta is up against an unbeatable game. If he does not agree to the plans of the United States he will be crushed by Carranza, while the army of the United States can hold idle and immune from a war that could never be popularized in the opinion of practical politicians. Because he believes as that Huerta will eventually yield, Secretary Bryan is suppressing anything that might cause a popular uprising against Huerta.

WOMAN'S COOLNESS PREVENTS A POSSIBLE PHYSICAL ENCOUNTER

Deputy Prosecutor and W. H. Chapin Came Near Blows in Courthouse.

A near physical encounter between Deputy District Attorney John Collier and W. H. Chapin, who is charged with the prosecution of the Carranza case, was averted by the coolness of Mrs. Chapin, who coolly stepped between the two men, and soothed her husband's ruffled feelings. Chapin was angered at a neat little trap which Collier had led him into during cross examination and after securing a damaging admission, had left the reality man high and dry with no chance of explaining, by cutting off the examination and excusing the witness.

Attorney Lays Trap. It was toward the close of the afternoon. Chapin had been on the stand since forenoon and was wearied. He had denied in detail all allegations that the $3500 secured from Mr. and Mrs. William Grace by the Chapin Herlow Mortgage & Trust company in 1912 had been given with the understanding that it was to be invested in mortgages. Instead he said the money had been loaned them, and he considered it a straight loan. Collier had cross examined him at length and his story had remained unshaken. "And now," said Collier in conclusion. "If you and Herlow got this money as a loan and everything was aboveboard, why is it that you are going to unusual lengths to show that you were sick, and unable to attend to business at the time, in order to fur-

School Principal Is Given $25 Fine

Municipal Court Considers Slapping Too Severe Punishment for School Boy Aged 12.

The use of the strap or switch for an unruly school pupil is all right, held Municipal Judge Stevenson yesterday afternoon, but slapping on the side of the head is not the best form of punishment. This sentiment was expressed in the case against Melville W. Dickson, principal of Hudson school, Montaville, charged with assault and battery upon Arthur Dether, a pupil. The pupil is about 12 years old. He reported to his parents that the school principal slapped him, exhibiting a mark on the chin as material evidence. The father took the matter up with Deputy District Attorney Delch, who issued a complaint against the principal. Another pupil testified he was running in the school room, close behind the Dether boy, when he saw Principal Dickson administer the slap. Dickson told the judge several of the pupils were under suspicion of putting soap in the drinking fountain, and Judge Stevenson said he was adverse to interfering with school discipline, sanctions the old-fashioned use of strap and switch, but could not approve of slapping, therefore fined Dickson $25.

Chapin himself with an excuse for not having had anything to do with this money. Chapin hesitated, then said: "Well, I guess a man has a right to defend himself, hasn't he?" "That's all," snapped Collier, grinning as he realized the disadvantage he had put the witness to.

Woman Gives Testimony. Recess was then declared and Chapin, his face flushed, rushed up to the witness stand and said: "If I was a low-down — like you fellows I'd —" Mrs. Chapin, who stood near by, walked between the men and whispered something and Chapin turned on his heel and walked away. Mrs. Chapin was the last witness for the defense before it rested its case. She was very nervous and when the clerk asked her to swear to tell the truth she responded, "Maybe I will and maybe I won't—but I guess I have to say 'yes'."

Her testimony for the most part was in regard to his illness which terminated in an operation last February. She declared she never had heard of the $3500 for her own excitement, as alleged. Fearing she would collapse, the prosecution did not cross-examine her.

It is expected that the arguments will be made Monday and by afternoon the case will go to the jury. Chapin's first trial, two weeks ago, resulted in a disagreement after the jury had been out 44 hours.

GENERAL PETROLEUM DEAL IS BLOCKED BY BIG LONDON FAILURE

Chaplin, Milne, Grenfell & Co. Ltd., Private Bankers, Fail for Big Sum.

SPECULATED IN STOCKS

Western Ocean Syndicate Had Contracted for the Refinancing of General Petroleum Co. of California.

San Francisco, Cal., June 6.—The unexplained reason for the extraordinary hitch in the consummation of the deal through which the General Petroleum company was to be taken over by the General Petroleum, Limited, of London was made public today, through dispatches from London announcing the fact that Chaplin, Milne, Grenfell & company, Limited, private bankers, had suspended.

Arthur Grenfell, the junior member of this old established London banking house, was managing director of the Western-Ocean Syndicate, Limited, the corporate body which had contracted for the refinancing of the General Petroleum company of California.

Also, Arthur Grenfell is the son-in-law of Earl Grey, executive head of both the Western Ocean Syndicate, Limited, and the British Union Oil Syndicate, the latter of which has recently negotiated the purchase of the Union Oil company of California. Today's dispatch stated that the failure of this old time firm of private bankers was attributable to large operations in Grand Trunk issues—chiefly the stocks.

About a month ago, the dispatch stated, it was believed that the over-extension of the firm had been temporarily adjusted through assistance furnished by the British nobility. If such an adjustment was made, the result afforded did not prove permanent for the dispatch concluded with the statement that the firm's failure "shook the stock exchange today."

Further advice from London confirmed the supposition that the failure was a heavy one, involving liabilities ranging from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000.

The offices of the General Petroleum company today it was said that Arthur Grenfell had resigned as managing director of the Western Ocean Syndicate about 60 days ago, when his financial difficulties first began to attract attention.

Since then Andrew Weir has been carrying on the business of the syndicate, through the expenditure of his own funds.

TELLS OF HIS WEALTH, THEN BORROWS SUM OF $5 FROM INTENDED

Girl Makes Full Confession When Both Are Arrested in Portland.

With a crippled wife in Tacoma, Frank McCoy entered into a contract with Miss Margaret Deltrich, 193 1/2 First street, to marry her, also setting aside $2000 for her personal use during the honeymoon. McCoy also gave the girl a wedding ring which, it is said, developed, belongs to his crippled wife.

Friday night the couple was arrested by Detectives Heliyer, Tackaberry and Goltz, with the investigation yesterday revealing a peculiar state of affairs on the part of McCoy. Letters and telegrams in the possession of the department of safety for women show McCoy recently came from Tacoma, where his wife now lives. While in Tacoma, McCoy telegraphed the Deltrich girl in Portland that he was very ill in the hospital and needed money. These messages bore the signature H. Brown, supposed to be a friend of McCoy, but they were really signed by McCoy.

Daily telegrams told the girl of McCoy's fight for life and contained requests for money. When she sent the money McCoy gained rapidly and was soon able to come to Portland. Arriving here, McCoy submitted a typewritten agreement to the girl in which he offered marriage and agreed to give her $2000 for her own exclusive use. The girl says McCoy told her he had $25,000 in notes and mortgages, $500 in cash being due in a few days. On the strength of the $500 due, he borrowed $5 from the girl.

When arrested by the detectives, the girl made a complete confession. McCoy attempted to deny everything, but when confronted with the tele-
