

WHITE WOLF ELUDES HIS PURSUERS, LOOTS TOWNS AND CARAVANS

Bandits Operating Along the Border Between Kansu and Shensi Provinces, China.

CHIEFTAIN GETTING ARMS

Revolutionary Agents Keeping Him In Touch With Dr. Sun Yat Sen and Other Opponents of Pres. Yuan.

(Continued From Last Week.) Shanghai, June 12.—After again eluding the soldiers who were reported recently to have him surrounded in southern Kansu province, White Wolf, the bandit chieftain, is now more active than ever, according to up-country advices received here today.

Whether the troops really had the bandit force surrounded was uncertain, but the two armies—for the outlaws were several thousand strong—unequivocally were in touch, since all accounts agree that they had several brisk engagements in which the White Wolves had much the better of the fighting, beating the soldiers back and killing many of them.

The bandits are operating at present, it appears, along the border between Kansu and Shensi provinces, looting and burning towns, entering caravans and massacring all who resist them. They are said to show a disposition to gather recruits in preference to killing, however, wherever they can get good and willing ones, and this has tended to strengthen the belief that their leader is trying to build up an overwhelming following with a view to overturning the present government.

He is understood to be honestly a republican in his views and to hold that President Yuan Shih Kai has undone all the work of the recent revolution and established a despotism of his own in place of the Manchus. Revolutionary agents are said to be keeping him in constant communication with Dr. Sun Yat Sen and other anti-Yuan republicans who are reported to be buying arms and ammunition with money provided by his plundering and to be smuggling them into China as fast as possible.

His men are generally armed, well disciplined and make very efficient fighters.

Brookline Man Succeeds Farlow

Judge Clifford F. Smith Elected Member of Christian Science Committee on Publicity.

Judge Clifford F. Smith of Brookline, Mass., has just been elected by the board of directors in Boston to succeed Alfred Farlow, who recently resigned as member of the Christian Science committee on publicity for Massachusetts. This committee is manager of all other committees on publication situated elsewhere.

Mr. Farlow served as committee on publication for thirteen years and upon resignation took up the work of healing and teaching. Judge Smith has lectured in Portland last spring and gave several lectures in different places in Oregon.

All Cows Included. Los Angeles, June 12.—James Porter, sideshow exhibitor of a fat legged cow, was arrested for violating an ordinance prohibiting the keeping of cows within 25 feet of a residence.
