

SENATORS DON WHITE GARB IN RECOGNITION OF SUMMER'S ARRIVAL

SENATOR FLETCHER OF FLORIDA

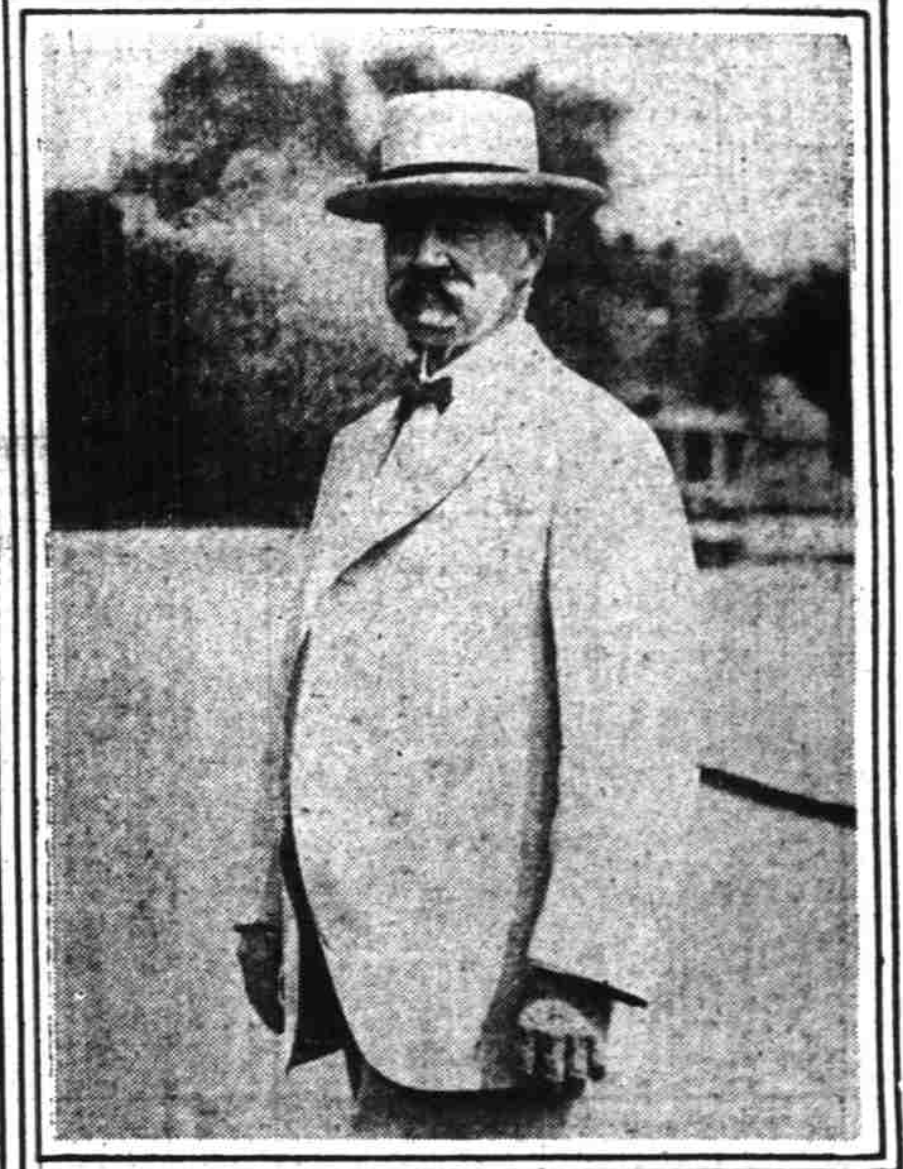

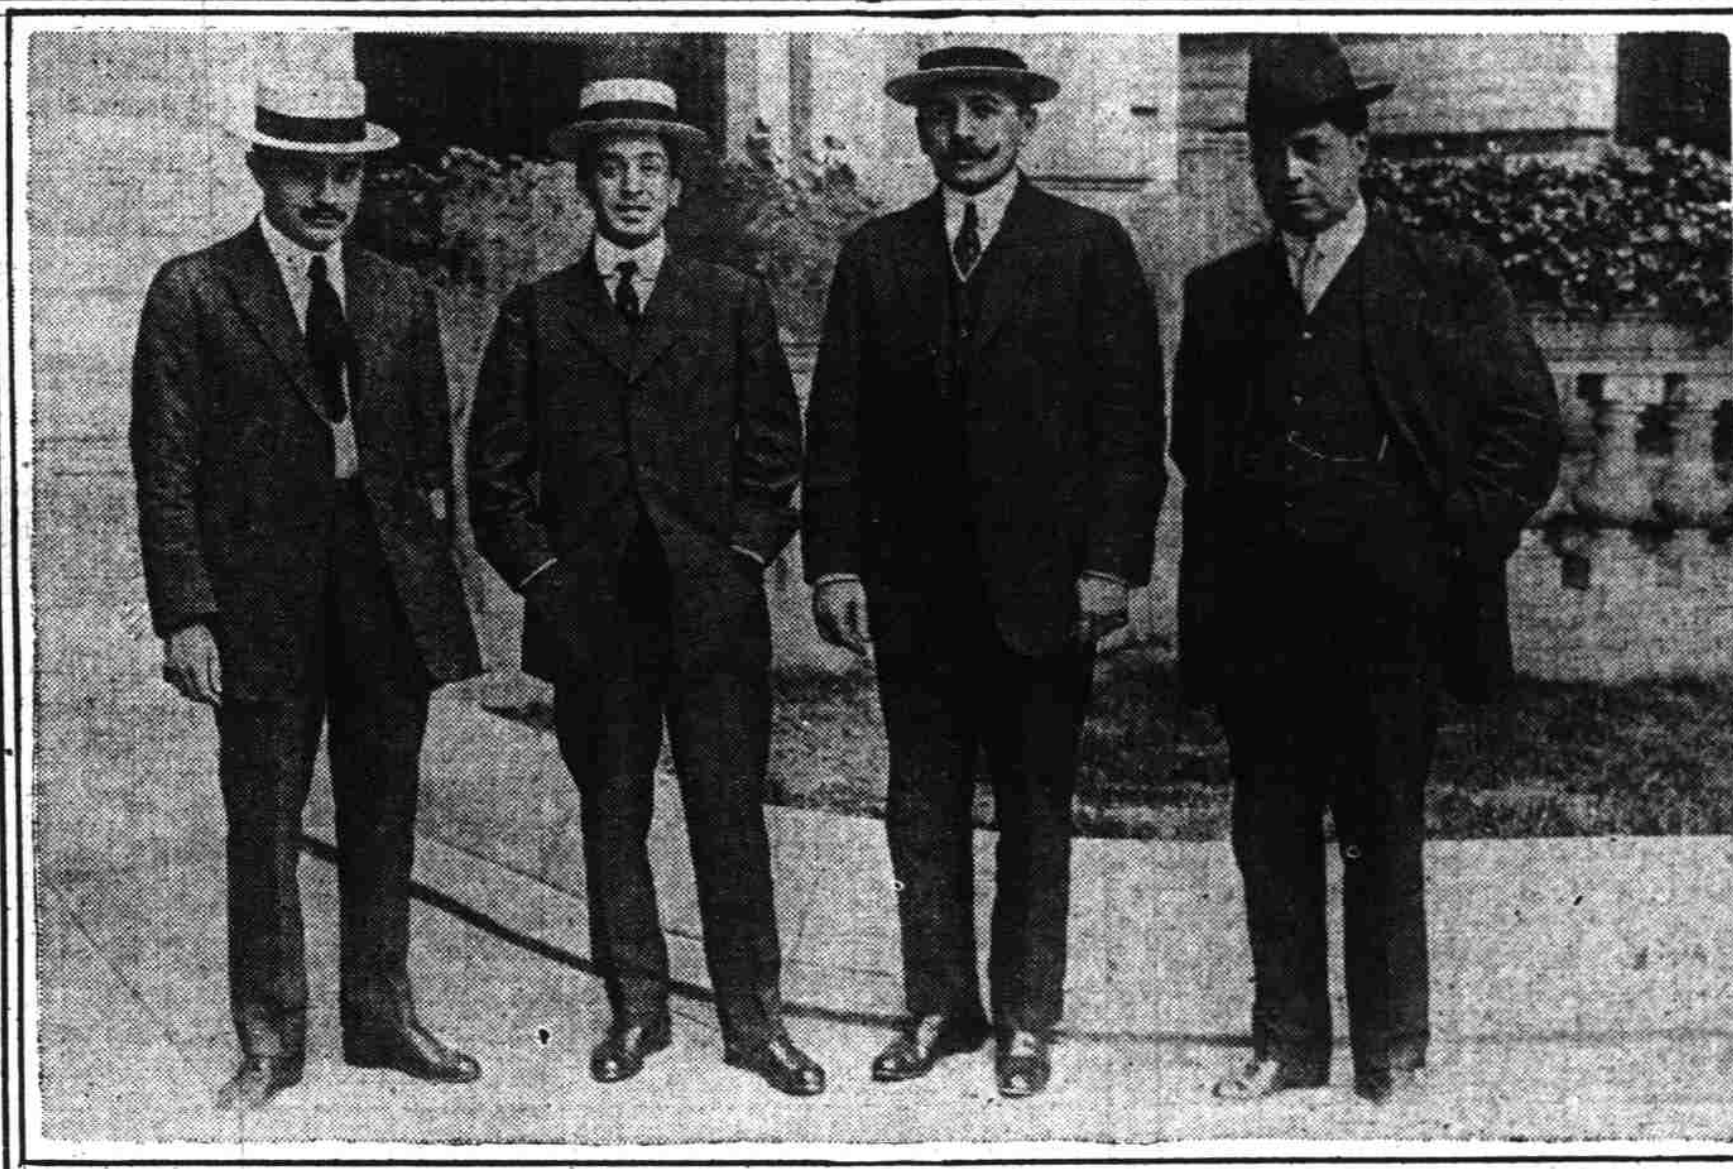

SENATOR POMERENE OF OHIO

SENATOR REED OF MISSOURI

SENATOR BORAH OF IDAHO

SENATOR O'GORMAN OF NEW YORK

Walking through the United States capitol these days, one is impressed with its summery aspect. Stately senators, members of the "greatest deliberative body on earth," who are ordinarily garbed in the long black coats and shiny silk hats of statesmanship, are now seen about the building dressed in the lightest of summer wear. Electric fans are whirring, ice water tanks are everywhere in evidence, and even the pages have doffed their coats. Much legislation confronts the upper house, and even the most optimistic in regard to an early closing will not venture to predict that this session will end earlier than August 1st. The house has a comparatively easy program before it with only two appropriation bills and the trust legislation. After these are passed, it will merely "mark time" until the senate has concluded. (Harris & Ewing.)

SENATOR OVERMAN OF NORTH CAROLINA

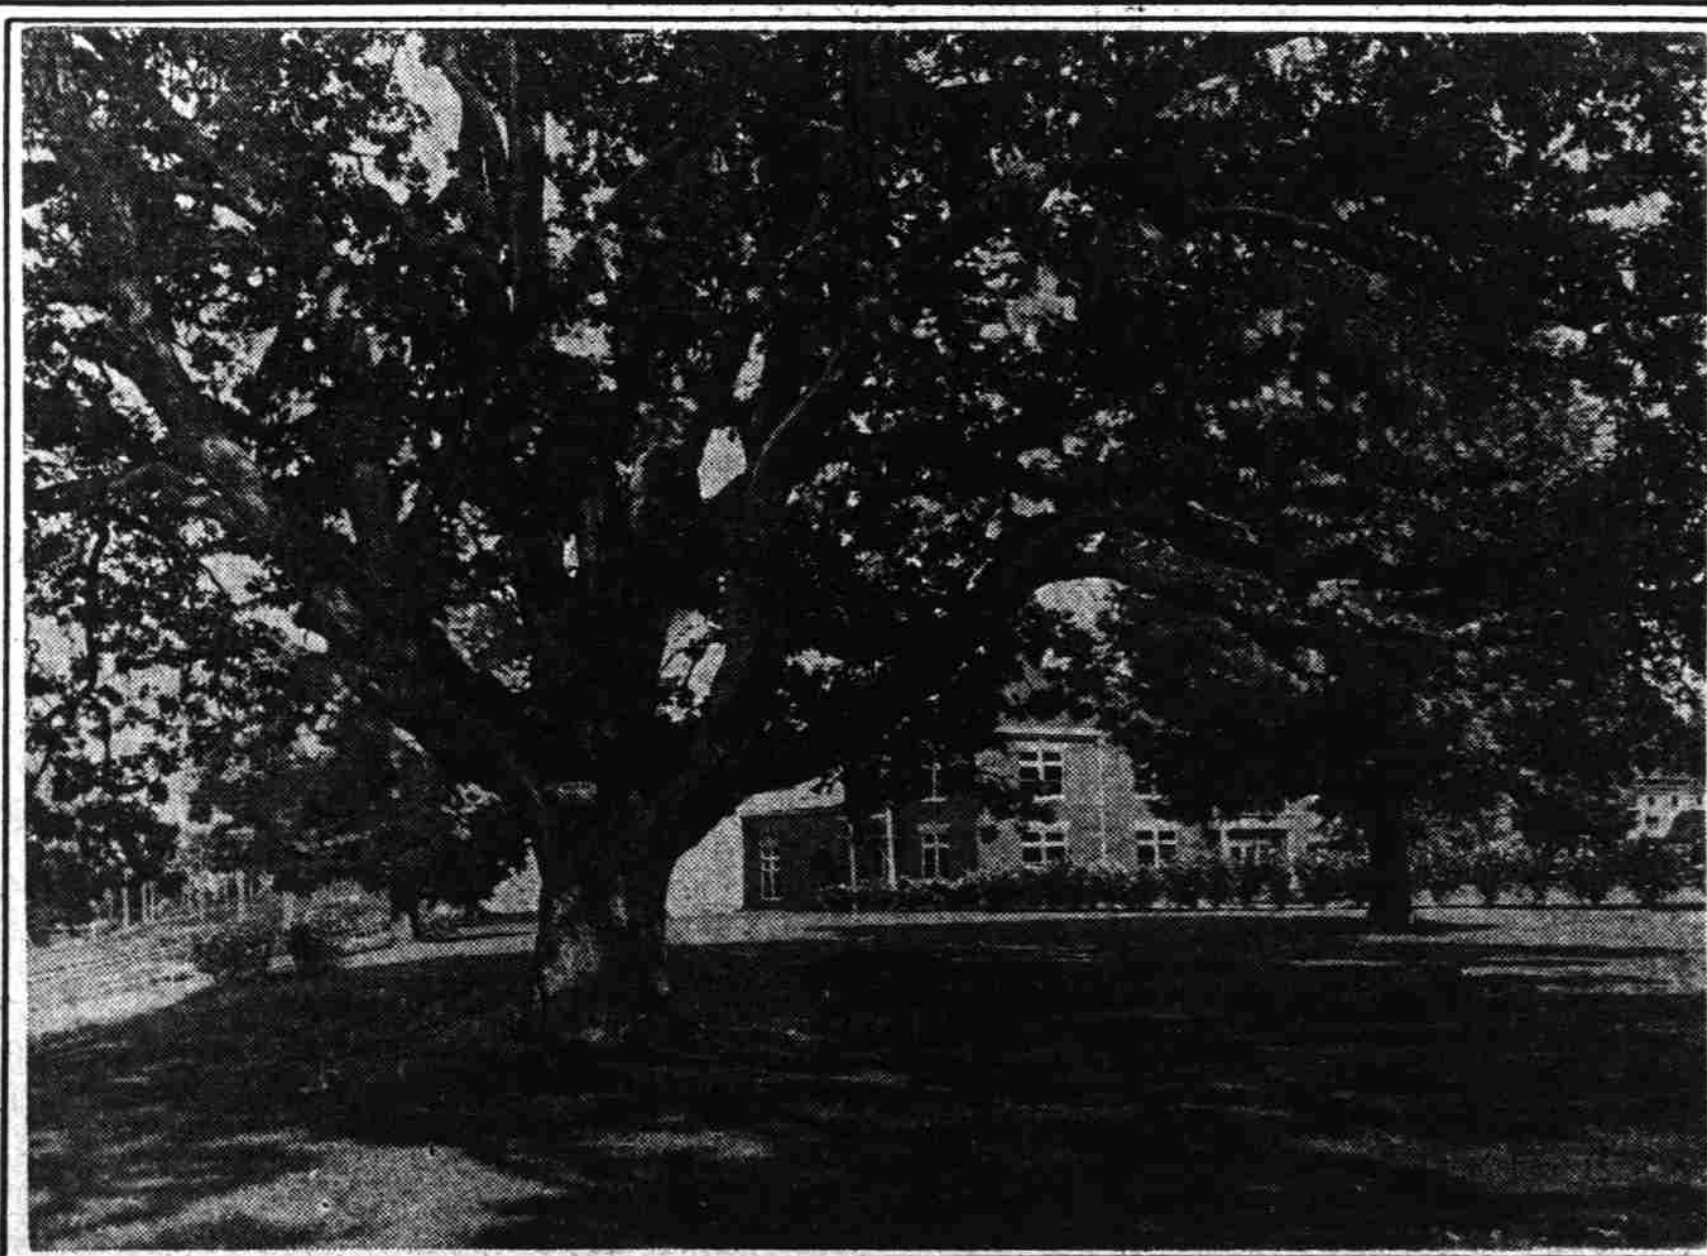

Senator Lee Slater Overman of Salisbury, North Carolina, is nearing the close of his second term in the upper house, which he entered in 1903.

SENATOR ALBERT B. CUMMINS OF IOWA

Senator Cummins' high rank in Republican councils insures him a prominent part in the efforts made to restore the party to power. (Harris & Ewing.)

AN ATTRACTIVE SCENE ON THE UNIVERSITY OF OREGON CAMPUS AT EUGENE

Few universities in the country have a more beautiful campus than the university of Oregon. With the coming of commencement week, when approximately 125 men and women will be graduated, the campus will be the scene of the many activities that ever mark the close of the college year.

With its three miles of waterfront, flanked by wooded hills, and with adequate facilities for boating, bathing and fishing, Oswego Lake is attracting larger throngs of picnickers than ever this season. Its accessibility is a large factor in its popularity as a midsummer recreation place.
