By Vella Linner.

WITH the biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Chicago closed after an interesting and busy session of several days, the calm of the usual summer vacation spirit is settling down over cludiv throughout the country. The past year has been a busy one, yes, even a strenuous one, with organized womanhood both east and west; never before have so many women been identified with the cultural, social and civic movements of the day and a cessation from the many demands will be given to the leisurely majority of women. For the principal officers in large clubs and organizations, the summer does not mean a total rest, the threads of organization cannot be dropped entirely, but the demands will be less exacting for the next two months. The majority of women's organizations of Portland are closing their year's work to a close and nearly all of the others will hold final meetings this week. July will mark the season to go to the coast and neighboring resorts, and not until September will everyone be back home again ready to take up the work of the winter.

Women's Political Science Club.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Women's Political Science club Tuesday afternoon at Central library, Mrs. J. Alexander McCord gave some very interesting information on "Woman's Building," and Postmaster F. S. Myers read a paper on "Parcel Post." McCord said: "The time has come when women have interested themselves in the many problems of the day, and in order to do this, they have had to have some place to meet and talk matters over. I think the women of Portland need not hesitate in undertaking the financing of a woman's building, and in doing so, I want to improve upon them, and that is the necessity of selecting a site in the heart of the city." Mrs. McCord told of the Colony club of New York city, which has a membership of 900 women, with a waiting list of over 350. The Twentieth Century club of Pittsburgh was financed and built during the panic of 1901, and Mrs. McCord added that this club has been able to pay off all indebtedness and has also a large waiting list.

At Nehalem.

The Psychology clubhouse at Nehalem, the summer home of many members of the Portland psychology club and their friends, is already the center of considerable interest and inspiration for a number of people who have gone down to the coast to enjoy the first real summer days. The clubhouse is being operated on a co-operative plan, and is proving a real home for all fortunate to be able to enjoy its hospitality. The woods are full of singing birds at this season, and the tramping and rowing are equally strong attractions, which those who are guests at the club house are enjoying. Mrs. H. E. Monson, Miss Elva Ellis, Mrs. M. J. Overturf, Master Jim Overturf Jr., Mrs. Francis I. McKenna and Mrs. Alice Weister.

"America's Literary Women" was the subject of a highly interesting paper given at the meeting of the Coterie last Wednesday by Mrs. B. T. Soden. A brief synopsis of the paper follows: "It has been said that Americans do not appreciate their artists and that one to be appreciated must go to Europe, where they are hailed as a distinguished American author or singer as the case may be. So while many of the authors mentioned in the review may appear as strangers to us Americans, they would readily be recognized in Europe as women of ability. "Sarah Margaret Fuller was among the first women writers of America. She lived in Emerson's time and was closely associated with him and Brook Farm and later became interested in 'The Dial,' an important publication at that time. Mrs. Fuller held the position of editor of this paper for two years. "Harriet Beecher Stowe, who we think of instantly as author of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' was a writer of social and political reform as well as an interested mother and home maker. Her most important gift to the people was the invention of a new side of the slave question. Living in the heart of a slave country, she had an excellent opportunity to understand all phases of the problem. Her imagination and with a mind full of valuable information she produced 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.' Though written in a careless, chaotic style, the essence is valuable and so stimulating that it has influenced the minds of so many in a light such as it had never been seen before. "Elizabeth Stuart Phelps began writing novels at the age of 20, her first production being, 'The Gates Ajar.' Her use and appreciation of the English language was inherited from her father, who was very intellectual. Writing did not appeal to Elizabeth and in giving advice to literary aspirants she says, 'Write if you must, not otherwise.' "Mrs. Burton Harrison was an artist-actress who wrote colonial stories. Her graceful manner, her practical temperance and her practical and romantic life are breathed throughout her works. Her poems and novels of the south are read as much today as they were when first written and the fact alone gives evidence of the worth. "Mrs. Amelia Barr was 33 years of age before she became interested in writing. Her efforts were prompted by her necessity to earn a living after the death of her husband and three sons. She wrote advice columns and a series of 'Jan Vedder's Wife' was her first great success and has been translated and read in many countries since then. "Frances Hodgson Burnett is well known for her novels, 'The Secret Garden' and 'The Little Lord Fauntleroy.' "Mary Johnston's 'To Have and To Hold' and 'Prisoners of Hope' established a record in sales. "A California writer of fame is Gertrude Atherton, whose first work was 'What Dreams May Come,' followed by 'The Dooms Woman.'
