Million Bushels Less but Barley Is Very Heavy.

By Hyman H. Cohen.

Weston, Or., July 7 .- Viewing the famous Umatilla county wheat fields many quarters of Portland that the from a high elevation above the city of Weston, the former normal school site which has an inclination to again become the seat of learning, one can see for miles and miles an almost unbroken stretch of wheat and barley.

This vicinity has offtimes been fustly called the one great wheat belt of Oregon, in fact it is one of the very few sections of the entire United States that has never been known to have crop failure. It is the old reliable wheat producing section of Umatilla county and together with the Athena section has made the county famous as a wheat producer.

Umatilla county will this seaso harvest approximately 5,000,000 bushels of wheat, perhaps 500,000 bushels less than a year ago. This is due entirely to one of those freaks of nature which has for years decreed that wheneve the season is most excellent for wheat production in the light land sections, it s usually less favorable for the heavier ands-or what are usually called the

Champerlain, transmitting a missive written to the will buy the property and turn it over senator by the secretary, there is no to the First National as part of its reason why the mills should not long ago have entered competition. The chamber has been trying to widen the local lumber market through government agencies and has asked the senator to help. This he has done by writing the heads of all the bureaus nd departments of government to put Portland on their mailing lists whenever bids for supplies are to be sought. Already several departments have been aligned and the chamber will get regularly copies of all specifications for lumber supplies wanted. Secretary Daniels writes: "As wide competition is the prime object of the department we would have been pleased to have received bids from Portland. In future, I hope such bids will be received."
