*P. M. report of preceding day.

When You Go Away
Have The Journal sent to your Summer address.

Left Doors Open to Safe.—Currency to the amount of $400 was left in the unlocked safe of Backus & Morris, hardware store, at 223 Morrison street yesterday, even the door to the store being unlocked and partly open. Special Officer Yost found the door open in the evening when making his route. He went inside and found the door to the big iron safe partly open. The special officer then called W. F. Backus, senior member of the firm, to the store, where the amount of money was found to be $400. Nothing had been disturbed. The safe had been left open by mistake, as had the door to the store.

Very Latest in Fashions.—Models of the very latest patterns in hats and gowns as soon as they appear in New York are offered in "Our Mutual Girl," the popular serial photo play attraction which is shown for three days each week at the Columbia theatre, beginning Sunday. Women should see these latest styles worn by Margaret and the models in order to keep up to date. Margaret also visits many places of interest and meets numerous notables. Irvin S. Cobb, the popular humorist and story writer, is writing the scenarios for this production. (Adv.)

Will Speak on Surtax Measure.—H. D. Wagnon will speak to the department of revenue and taxation of the Oregon Civic league at its next meeting on the Surtax measure, to be voted on in November. The meeting will be held at noon in the college room of the Hazelwood, Tuesday, July 14. There will be a discussion of the measure and all interested are invited.

Portland Postoffice Clerks and Letter Carriers have joined forces to give an excusion to Bonneville Sunday, July 19. Plans are being made to make this the biggest event of its kind this season. Fare $1. Trains leave Union depot 9 a. m. (Adv.)

Woman Charged With Theft.—Miss Lillian Jordan went into the restaurant of Elihu Katiah, 249 Burnside street, to have the restauranteur serve her a crab. While he was doing this, the young woman stepped behind the counter, and, according to the charge, took a pocketbook containing $50 and disappeared. This happened Saturday night. Sunday morning the restaurant man complained to the detective bureau. As the Jordan girl was known at the restaurant the detectives traced the loss to her, making the arrest yesterday afternoon. A charge of larceny had been filed against her in the municipal court.

Verdict for $2150.—H. J. Bigger was awarded $2150 attorneys' fees in his suit against Green C. Love by a jury in Circuit Judge Kavanaugh's court, Judge Morrow opened the sealed verdict returned last Saturday night, as Judge Kavanaugh did not return from the beach until noon today. Bigger sued for $3166.50, alleged due for services rendered in litigation over Love's share of the million dollar estate of his father, Lewis Love. Love alleged that a part of the fee claimed was contingent and that the work was never brought to a successful termination. The remainder, he asserted, should not be charged, as Bigger abandoned the work. Bigger denied Love's allegations.

Will Wind up Revival Tonight—Joe the Turk will wind up his series of revivals in this city with a sacred concert at the mission, 207 Salmon street, at 8 o'clock tonight. Captain Garabed will play the numbers himself on the zonophone, saxophone and cornet and will also exhibit the only electric umbrella in the world. The umbrella is his own invention and is an ingenious representation of Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty together with portraits of well known Salvation Army leaders, past and present. Tomorrow night Joe the Turk will talk to the Swedish branch of the army and then make his way through southern Oregon and California.

Given 30 Days in Jail.—When T. Svetgi, logger, awoke this morning in his room at the Panama rooming house he found a strange watch in his vest pocket. While he was dressing Detectives Swenness and Moloney entered the room, having gone there upon complaint of S. Pedoff, who said his watch was stolen some time last night. The lost watch proved to be the one Svetgi found in his pocket. The latter was arrested. Circumstances surrounding the case resulted in a charge of larceny against Svetgi, for which he was found guilty and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Rotarians Meet Tomorrow.—Rotarians at their luncheon in the Benson hotel tomorrow will learn more of the "Back to the Home" movement from A. F. Flegel. "Come and hear something of every father's responsibility and duty to his children," reads the invitation. "A duty that is being sadly overlooked by most fathers of today. A wonderful subject by a wonderful man. Don't neglect this opoprtunity of becoming better acquainted with your children."

Brings Prisoners in Auto.—Sheriff Word is returning by automobile from Sacramento with P. D. Gregg and Charles Chambless, according to word received by his office, and will reach Medford today. The party is expected to reach Portland Wednesday. Gregg was arrested on a charge of passing worthless checks here. He is 24 years old and Chambless is 19. With another 19-year-old boy and three young girls they started some time ago from Spokane for a trip, but the girls and the other boy turned back before they left the state of Washington.

Money for County Fair.—The county commissioners this morning ordered a warrant for $5000 drawn in favor of J. W. Clise, president of the Pacific International Livestock exposition, in accordance with the statute granting the exposition that amount of the county fair fund. The exposition officials will be required to submit vouchers to the county treasurer that he may be assured that the money is used for premiums on exhibits only, as provided by law.

Accused of Selling Morphine.—Charges in the municipal court against William Hutchings and William Miles for selling and having morphine in their saloon at Broadway and Davis streets will be heard Tuesday afternoon by a jury. The case against Frank Williams for having a morphine outfit in his possession will also be heard tomorrow. Attorney Adolph Lowenthal was taken into custody as a witness against Williams.

—Fined for Auto Speeding.—E. R. Winchel was fined $35 this morning in the municipal court for auto speeding Saturday on Sandy boulevard. G. H. Wildmann was fined $30 for speeding at the same place. Winchell testified he was making 32 miles an hour, although Motorcycle Officer Bewley testified he was going 35 miles an hour. Winchell announced he would take an appeal to the circuit court.

Will Serve on Rockpile.—For striking his wife and son Saturday evening in their home at 181½ First street, A. G. Cushing was sent to the rockpile for 30 days this morning by Municipal Judge Stevenson. Mrs. Cushing told the judge her husband dragged her down stairs, then struck their young son when the latter attempted to interfere. Mrs. Cushing is employed in a restaurant.

Gas Explodes in Kitchen.—An accumulation of gas in the kitchen of the Comford restaurant at Second and Couch streets exploded shortly after midnight, wrecking the rear of the restaurant. The gas pipe leading to the stove sprang a leak early in the evening. No one was injured. The fire department responded and the neighborhood was aroused.

The Mazamas go to the north side of Mount Rainier for their annual trip this year, August 1-16. An information and registration headquarters has been established on the mezzanine floor at the Hotel Multnomah, Eleanor G. Sheldon, registrar in charge. Visitors welcome. (Adv.)

This will be precedent to consideration of the new housing code which has been submitted to the commission for passage. Some of the housing conditions demanding correction will be revealed at a public meeting Wednesday evening in the central library. Pictures have been obtained and will be reproduced as stereopticon slides and explained by Dr. Calvin S. White, state health officer, Father E. V. This meeting is to be open to all and will be held under the auspices of the housing committee of the league.

Reed will be chairman of the day. Addresses will be delivered by H. B. Miller, director of school of commerce, University of Oregon; Eric W. Allen, director of the university school of journalism; R. OVERSEA FLIGHT MEANS TRAGEDY, SAYS BEACHEY ant Porte's ability as an aviator, I am convinced that no one man can perform this feat, particularly a man of Lieutenant Porte's unproved caliber. Even the assistant on the "America" must be far and away above the average as an aviator.

It is one thing to drive a machine for 10 hours, 15 hours, over a stated course over the land. It is an entirely different thing to drive this machine over water, over the boundless ocean, for that length of time.

Helplessness Will Appall.

In the first instance the aviator is always in sight of good old mother earth. In the other, when a man is faced with the endless expanse of water, out of sight of land, the loneliness, the sense of helplessness, will be awful. The very enormity of nature will be overwhelming. And most important of all is the necessity of the pilot possessing an intimate knowledge of navigation. I understand that Lieutenant Porte is hardly grounded in the rudiments of this exacting science, which must be infallible once land is lost sight of.

I believe that the mental tension will be more wearing than the physical tax of handling the wheel. I do not believe that any man in the world can, without training, stand the terrible strain. Long and constant practice alone can fit a man for such a feat.

To be sure, Lieutenant Porte will have with him a capable mechanician, but he should have another seasoned aviator, one who has stood the gaff, and who should alternate with him in four or five hour tricks at the wheel. He should have an experienced overwater aviator, like either Charlie Witmer or Frank Coffyn.

Those on the America will quickly become accustomed to the roar of the propellor, and absolute physical weariness will induce—even force—sleep. Observing Lieutenant Porte as a fellow passenger on the Lusitania coming from Europe last April, I know him to be susceptible to the wiles of Morpeus, to be inclined to drowsiness. Frequently I had difficulty in arousing him from his deck chair slumbers to go in to luncheon.

Boat Not Swift Enough.

Regarding the machine, there has not been enough preparation. I believe that speed has been sacrificed too much to sustaining power. The machine that successfully flies across the Atlantic will, I believe, be one that will travel like a blue streak, that will not falter.

The America has been constructed in a hurry. Building a great automobile, bringing forth a splendid breed of dogs, even the gentleman of highest civilization, is a performance of "progressive destruction." The first types, weak and insufficient, must be done away with. Their successors must contain none of these weaknesses. Their strength is strengthened, their weakness banished, wherever real progress is shown; but it is only by actual tests and comparisons that these strong and weak points are determined, and the America has never been given even a half hearted real tryout.

Machine Not Thoroughly Tested.

The so-called tests that are being announced from Lake Keuka are merely experiments that tell nothing. They should be continued through a period of at least a year. True enough, the machine has lifted itself from the water and has flown—but for how long? Does anyone think that a leap through the air lasting a few minutes proves efficiency for a Transatlantic flight?

Right here in the United States we have the Great Lakes. One can very easily get out of sight of land in crossing them. Wouldn't it be the part of wisdom to try the "America" out in a long, continuous flight over the Great Lakes, or even over the 30 mile long Lake Keuka, putting it through a test of at least one half the time and mileage and severity required for the real journey?

Automobiles Held as Proof.

One does not have to confine himself to matters of the air to form a conclusion regarding durability. Take automobiles, instead. For two years our leading automobile builders have failed to produce a car for the Indianapolis 500 mile race capable of going the entire distance in close competition with foreigners. The home product gives evidence of speed and durability for a while, but a stop at the pits, for even a slight repair, is always sooner or later necessary. And a stop at the pits in a motor race is vastly different from a drop into the ocean a thousand miles from land. There are no "pits" in mid-Atlantic.

But when a machine is built in a hurry from paper specifications and figures that seem to prove every point, there is only one answer—the burning out of some vital part—for that is what always happens at Indianapolis.

Terrible Mental Strain.

On my longest flight of three hours the mental strain was terrific. What will it be for the man at the wheel when hour after hour is reeled off, when a man's eyeballs are burning and aching in spite of serviceable goggles, when every muscle is strained to the breaking point?

I believe that there will be tragedy or fiaso. I fear that aviation in the United States will receive a body blow. In the "America" there should be at least two seasoned, hardy aviators—and the "America" should be a seasoned, hardy machine itself. It should be thoroughly tried out, and be able to "go like hell." There should be auxiliary power, so the "America" would go, go, go!

N. H. DIRECTORS ARE BLAMED FOR JOY RIDING

bar of public opinion for their failure to do the things they should have done, the lesson to directors who do not direct will be salutary."

"Financial joy-riding" was one of the expressions used in description of the directors' methods.

There was also a long recitation of "marked features and significant incidents in their loose, extravagant, improvident administration of finances."

"The Westchester deal," said the report, "is a story of the profligate waste of public funds."

The road, it was declared, was "unnecessary as part of the system," because it parallels its other lines.

The purchase of the Rhode Island Trolleys were referred to as an instance of "millions wasted on acquiring property bringing in an annual deficit instead of a surplus and constituting a debility to the New Haven system."

The acquisition of the Boston & Maine was also condemned, with the additional comment, "there is reason to believe that this railroad, in the hands of its former management, would have continued to pay dividends."

Huge Suit Prepared.

Boston, July 13.—Preliminaries for a "restitution suit" for a fabulous sum threatened by the present directors against the ex-directors of the New Haven railroad, were completed here today.

Enforcement is sought against those who were in control of the road during the period covered by the Interstate Commerce commission's report in Washington, of liability for $94,000,000 of the system's money on one count and of $115,000,000 under another interpretation of the testimony taken by the commission.

The law firm of Whipple, Sears & Ogden was asked to press the case.

The Interstate Commerce commission's report was filed with the senate.

It's Kind.

"Was her new waist V-shaped?"
"No, but the bill was."

Socialists Having Inning in France

Ruling Factor in Chamber of Deputies Have Chance to Make or Break Party in Next Four Years.

Paris, July 13.—The eyes of the civilized world will be on France during the next few months. The revolutionary socialist party has practically gained control of the chamber of deputies for the next four years. Of the 136 Socialists in the new legislature 55 are union men leaders in the General Federation of Labor, thus promising the workingman a better run for his money than in any law making body got together in France since the Revolution.

The rule of the Bourgeoisie, or middle class is dead, or dying, and the day of the social reform classes arrived, according to impartial opinion, and this question is on every lip: What will the Socialists and the labor members of the chamber make of their chance? It is generally conceded that the next four years will tell the tale in France, so far as Socialism is concerned. They will either make or break their party as a governing factor.
