BANCROFT'S SPIKES KNOCK GLOBULE OUT OF BOLES' FINGERS

David Scores by Streak of Good Fortune After Umpire Had Waved Out.

EVANS TIGHT IN PINCHES

The Rube Is Hit Often But Has Only One Real Bad Inning; Triples Roll Off Bats Before Jack Ryan.

When Dave Bancroft's feet, the ball and Walter Boles' hands arrived at the same spot at the same time in the eighth frame, something had to happen, and luckily for the Beavers it happened in their favor. The ball was knocked from Boles' paws and Bancroft tallied the winning run of a 4 to 3 game, which was full of features and which was twice tied up. Lefty Evans was opposed yesterday to old Jack Ryan and the Beaver southpaw, who has had a lot of bad luck, managed to get into the win column.

Ryan is usually the jinx of the Beavers but they hit his offerings hard when they did manage to connect and that was responsible for the victory. Ty Lober's pretty throw in the sixth inning saved the Beavers from trouble in the only bad inning Evans had, the sixth. Rube Ellis had a perfect day at the bat, getting three out of three.

Portland started off in the lead when Rodgers tripled to center with two out and scored on Doane's drive through Abstein.

The Angels tied up the count in their half when Ellis singled to center and went around to third on Moore's single to right. The Rube scored on Metzger's out, though it is doubtful if a double play could have been made with Moore as the first victim.

Angels Bunch Doubles.

Los Angeles took a liking to what Evans served up in the first half of the sixth and by the way Ryan was then going it looked as if the leaders would break their losing streak. Gedeon opened with a double to left. Maggert cracked a double down the third base line. McCredie chased Reiger out to warm up. Zowie! and Abstein followed with a double to right that scored Maggert. Ellis sacrificed and then Moore lifted a fly to Lober. Abstein tried to make it home but Lober had the ball waiting in Fisher's hands before Ab was two-thirds of the way to the plate. Whereat, Pop Dillon emitted a loud groan and reflected on the boot he made when he traded Tyrus to McCredie.

Bancroft managed to work Ryan for a walk in the Beavers' half of the same frame, and the champions came up with true fighting spirit. Derrick straightened out a slant and it went into center field for three bases with Maggert making a terrific try to head it off. Rodgers smashed the pill across second and Derrick was in for the run that evened the count for the second time. Rodgers was the victim of an old trick, Maggert bluffing on missing the ball and then throwing Bill out while trying to take second.

Bancroft walked again in the eighth and Derrick sacrificed. Rodgers raised a fly to Moore and Doane singled through short. Ellis made a throw that came bounding into Boles' hands, but Walter was unable to hold the ball and Held waved Bancroft safe, though a fraction of a minute before he had thumbed him out, showing how close the play was.

Ellis managed to hit and steal in the ninth, but Evans was too much for the Dills and they were quickly retired.

Jack Powell Given Release by Venice First Time in Life

Los Angeles, July 17.—After 20 years of active baseball life, the majority of which were spent in the big brush, Pitcher Jack Powell is a free agent today, having been released by the Venice club. Jack's discharge yesterday was the first discharge he has received in his long diamond career.

Officially, Powell was released to keep Venice within the 20 men limit. This was necessitated by the return to the game of Frank Decannier, who had been on the suspended list.

Powell came to the Tigers from Louisville in exchange for Catcher Sterrett and Infielder Patsy O'Rourke.

AFTERMATH OF BOUT PROMISES MATERIAL FOR MONTHS OF TALK

American Contingent Characterizes Decision of Corri as an Outrage.

REFEREE OUT IS CAUSE

Had Official Been in Ring Blow of Gunboat Could Not Have Been Planted on Frenchman's Neck.

London, July 17.—The aftermath of the battle for the white heavyweight world's championship here in which Georges Carpentier of France was awarded the decision over Gunboat Smith of California in the sixth round on a foul promised today to furnish material for controversy for months to come. The American contingent outspokenly characterized the outcome as an outrage, while undoubtedly English ring followers regarded it as further proof of what they considered the unfair tactics of American boxers.

Referee Eugene Corri decided that Smith fouled his opponent by hitting him when he was on his knees. Technically, even Smith's warmest supporters admit that he did hit Carpentier, but they assert that the blow was entirely unintentional and that it barely grazed the Frenchman's neck. Smith had just floored his opponent with a hard right uppercut. Carpentier rose to his knees and began to straighten up. Smith started a terrific left for his jaw to catch him when his knees were clear of the floor. At that instant Carpentier dropped to his knee again. Smith apparently tried to stop the blow but could not and it landed on Carpentier's neck. Just what happened to the Gunboat's last punch is sure to cause an everlasting controversy.

Ringsiders Disagree.

Even those closest to the ringside disagree widely. Some say that it jolted Carpentier's spine hard at the back of the neck; some that it grazed his neck and others that it missed entirely.

The consensus of opinion today seemed to give Carpentier the better of the fight on its merits, particularly in view of the knockdown he scored in the fourth round, but there was always the possibility that Smith would have won in a few more rounds. Undoubtedly the English boxing rules bothered the American. He was cautioned several times to hold up his hands. With a referee in the ring, as is the American custom, to step between the men when one is knocked down, the foul likely never would have been committed.

Smith's manager, Jim Buckley of New York, was not slow to express his opinion of the decision. "It was highway robbery," he declared. "Smith knocked Carpentier out with a right on the point of the jaw. The Frenchman went down, and Smith, in making another punch, could not pull himself back, and just hit Carpentier's face.

"After the first two punches I saw that we were going to get the worst of it. Corri kept telling Smith to keep his hands up, although they were up all the time. He wanted to bother Smith. We have evidence that this was intentional and that he wanted Carpentier to win."

Smith issued a challenge to fight Carpentier again within two weeks, or at any time.

Smith Cries Robbery.

"If ever a man was robbed on a technicality," Smith said, "I was robbed last night. I may have hit Carpentier, but it was unintentional and because he dropped back after he was getting to his feet. I can whip him every day in the week and all I want is a fair chance to demonstrate it. If Carpentier will give me another match, either in London or America, I will give him all the side bets he wants. I was beating him and knocked him down just before the so-called foul."

"While I regret the ending of the bout," Carpentier said, "there was nothing else for the referee to do. Smith didn't knock me down. I slipped after trying for a swing. Then he didn't wait. He rushed me and landed a punch before I had a chance to defend myself. However, I was winning at the time and was scoring all the points. I am faster than Smith and that I have a punch was proved by the way I knocked him down. Smith is a hard hitter. After the fourth round I expected to win. I missed a heavy right swing and slipped down. I am anxious for another match with him."

Most of the London newspapers today agreed that the blow for which Smith was disqualified was intentional. Boxing experts were unanimous in the opinion that Smith did not realize he was committing a foul, and some of them were emphatic in stating that Carpentier's distress was simulated.

A match between Carpentier and Jack Johnson for the world's title was being discussed today.

Excitement Greatest Witnessed.

Such a scene of confusion and excitement as that enacted at the end of the bout was never before witnessed in London, and it was some time before the crowd realized that Carpentier had been awarded the decision on a foul.

No count of 10 was made. Several ringsiders claimed they heard Referee Corri shout to Smith as he jumped into the ring, "That's all right." Carpentier's manager, Des Champs, scrambled through the ropes at this point, shrieking at the top of his voice. Buckley and others in Smith's corner shouted protests to Corri, claiming that Des Champs' entrance into the ring should disqualify the French boxer. Others shouted to Smith's seconds not to enter the ring. Smith stood with outstretched arms to resume the fight. Then Corri declared Carpentier the winner.

London Sporting Life said today:

"Perhaps it would have been better had Referee Corri announced his decision more promptly."

FRISCO SPORTS ARE BITTEN ON DEFEAT OF GUNBOAT SMITH

San Francisco, July 17.—San Francisco sportdom was in mourning today. Barely recovering from the shock of Willie Ritchie's loss of the lightweight title to Freddie Welsh, came the news that Gunboat Smith, another California fighter, had lost on a foul to Georges Carpentier, the French light-heavyweight in London.

Interest in the heavyweight bout was even greater than when Ritchie risked his crown and lost. Smith was a 2 to 1 favorite here, and there was some heavy betting. Betting commissioners said that most of the backing for Carpentier came from the ordinary run of "short end folliwers," and that very few Frenchmen appeared to support their countryman.

FRAMBACH GETS WILD IN FOURTEENTH AND TIGERS MAKE TALLY

Colts Take Lead in Ninth but Coltrin Boots and McMullen Gets Hit.

SOME WALLOPING GAME

Thirty-Five Hits Made off Two Pitchers and 17 Runs Gathered by Each Team in Weird Contest.

Tacoma, July 17.—Fighting a hard battle all the way the Tacoma Tigers won a 14 inning game from the Portland Colts yesterday, 9 to 8, the defeat being chalked against Fred Framback, who pitched the final frame for the Colts. Pat Eastley pitched 13 innings for the visitors. "Izzy" Kaufman traveled the whole distance for the Colts.

Portland made one run in the ninth and drew into the lead momentarily, but Coltrin's boot and McMullen's pinch bingle evened up the count.

The Colts managed to put a run in the 13th inning, but the Tigers held on tenaciously and surprised the fans by tying up the count again.

Brottem singled in the final frame and Stokke sacrificed. Framback then uncorked a wild pitch and West came through with the pinch hit that won the game.

Melchior got a home run by hitting a ball through the gate leading into the clubhouse yard in the first inning. It was a case of swat all the way through, the locals making 19 hits and the Colts 16. Terry McKune and Cy Neighbors took occasion to increase their batting averages when they gathered in four hits out of six trips to the plate.

GOLFING HINTS

By "Straight Drive."

The ball.—With such a wide variation in the kind of balls which may be bought and used in the game it is not strange that some players keep changing from one to another in their quest for the ball that will fly and roll the longest distances and yet always find the bottom of the cup when lowered with a putter.

It will be noticed that the leading pro and amateur seeks a ball which can be depended upon for the approach shot and on the putting green rather than one which may have the greatest resilience. As a rule, too, they play balls of full size rather than the smaller size, said to fly farther against the wind.

A full sized ball is easier to hit through the green, because it does not snuggle quite so near the grass roots, and its center, no matter how placed, is easier to hit than the smaller variety.

As a rule the putter is used for about half the actual strokes made on a round, so a preference for a full-sized dependable-putting ball shows sound judgment.
