

Little Stories for Bedtime

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS

Fourth Adventure of Little Mite.
Little Mite, the smallest and smartest of the four babies of Danny Meadow Mouse, who had run away to see the Great World, wished with all his might that he never had thought of leaving his dear, safe home. He had been so sure that he was smart enough to take care of himself, and now already he had had three dreadful adventures, and the fact that he was still alive was not because of his own smartness, but because of good fortune. He had been lucky; that was all. The Great World, which, as he had peeped out at it from the safety of his home, had seemed such a wonderful place, now seemed a very dreadful place.

First he had had all his breath knocked out of him by Bossy the Cow. It was an accident, but he didn't know this. Then he had been caught by Black Pussy, and had escaped only because the Mole had helped him. He didn't know this, either. Then Miner the Mole had almost caught him when he had taken a nap in Miner's underground house. Now he wondered what would happen next. He had begun to think that there wasn't any safe place anywhere for a little Meadow Mouse, he wasn't doing any harm to anybody or anything and yet it seemed as if the whole Great World had turned against him. He shivered with fright as he wondered what he should do next, and what would happen to him next.

"The first thing to do is to find a safe hiding place," thought he, "and I believe I'll do it at once." This was the very wisest thing that little Mite could possibly do, and it showed that at last he really had begun to learn. He was just about to start out to look for a hiding place when he heard footsteps. He picked up his little ears and listened with all his might. He wondered if it might be a friend who would help him. The trouble was he didn't know who were friends and who were enemies. Nearer and nearer came those footsteps. Somehow they didn't sound like the footsteps of a friend, because—well, because they had a stealthy sound as if whoever was making them was trying to make no sound at all.

Nearer and nearer they came. Little Mite didn't know what to do, so he did nothing. He just sat still, his heart going thump-thump-thump, thump-thump-thump. Now, it happens that sitting still was just the wisest thing to do. Nearer and nearer came the soft, stealthy footsteps. Then quite suddenly something big and red loomed up right in front of little Mite. He didn't know for sure who it was, but he guessed. You see, that handsome red coat was enough to make Mite quite certain. And then there was a smell that somehow made him quite sick with fear.

"It's Reddy Fox," thought poor little Mite. He was quite right. It was Reddy.

out, in and out, as he breathed, and he could hear Reddy lick his chops every few minutes. It was a perfectly dreadful situation! Here he was so close to one of those he most feared, the very one who had almost caught him. Reddy Meadow Mouse, had warned him against most, that he could touch the long hairs of his tail! He couldn't run, because there was no place to run to. He had to stay where he was, and he had to try to hold his breath. He wished his heart wouldn't thump so. He was afraid that Reddy would hear it.

What if Reddy should happen to turn around and look behind him? Mite made himself flatter than ever at the thought. He hoped that Reddy would be pricked by his own tail. It was that he was watching so intently. How he did wish for something to cover him up—something to hide under. And almost with the thought something did cover him up. What do you think it was? Why it was the great, plumy tail of Reddy Fox himself! He had swung it around so that it lay right over little Mite and quite hid him from sight. Was there ever such a queer situation? There sat Reddy Fox, who is never so full that he hasn't room for one more Meadow Mouse, and right under his own tail lay little Mite Meadow Mouse, and Reddy knew nothing about it. Little Mite held his breath and wondered if he ever would see home again.

Next story: "What Reddy Fox Was Watching."

Prohis Will Try to Elect Congressman

Party Will Concentrate Efforts in Belief of George L. Cleaver, Who They Believe Has Good Chance to Win.

Believing that George L. Cleaver, prohibition candidate for congress from the second Oregon district, has a splendid chance of election the prohibition party in this state has decided to concentrate all its efforts for the congressional campaign on his election. Most of the party's time, money and workers for the congressional elections will be given to his district. Campaign headquarters have been established at La Grande and S. W. Grathwell, champion collegiate orator who is now on the platform in the cause of prohibition, will be assigned permanently to the district. The sentiment is said to be "dry" in the second district and as no hopes are shown in eastern Oregon the prohibition forces feel that Mr. Cleaver's success is highly probable.

E. E. Taylor, state secretary of the prohibition party, returned yesterday from an extensive canvass of the situation and will return shortly to take up the campaign in earnest. The prohibition political pot is beginning to simmer. Next week W. S. U'Ren, candidate for governor, will start his real campaign, while Curtis P. Coe, candidate for congress in the first district, finished a three weeks' tour of the district yesterday and will go out again next week.

E. A. Rowell, city superintendent and publicity manager, has been campaigning for the "dry" amendment around Gladstone, Oregon City and Troutdale.

Scheme Declared to Be Bunko by Court

Judge McGinn Instructs Jury to Bring in Verdict for Plaintiff in Suit Over Sale of Stock.

"This is strictly and purely a high class bunko game," declared Circuit Judge McGinn yesterday as he directed a jury in his court to return a verdict in favor of M. Klinge against I. V. and E. A. Rawlings. The testimony indicated that Klinge, in answer to a letter from Rawlings, paid Rawlings and his wife $2000 in cash and a note for $2000 as half payment for a half interest in the controlling stock of the Underwriters' association. The Rawlings gave him a note in return for $1399 to protect him and agreed that at the end of six months he could draw his money from the business if dissatisfied. When he did attempt to withdraw, he alleged, they refused to pay him back and the suit followed. Answering a query by one of the jurors as to the assets of the association, Rawlings began to tell of the renewals but admitted there was "little else." This testimony led to the remark made by Judge McGinn that Charles J. Schnabel and J. B. Ofner were attorneys for Klinge.

will be made the occasion for celebration by the Randall family at the Old Randall home in Delano. The couple were married at Charleston, England, in 1839. E. J. Randall is secretary of the G. F. Sanborn company of Portland.

Big Shipment of Angoras.

Alva L. McDonald, editor of the Angora Journal and secretary of Northwestern Angora Goat association, will leave tomorrow for Marshfield with 600 Angoras. The goats are consigned to ranchmen in the Coos Bay district and were procured through the association. They were bred near Silverton.

"While this is a large shipment," said Mr. McDonald this morning, "it is only one of many the association has been making all year. Thus far this year we have shipped some 5000 Angoras and wish the supply was as big as the demand. The Angora goat is coming more and more in favor in this state due to the proven adaptability of logged off lands for goat raising.

"The 600 goats will fill three cars and will go by rail to Roseburg. We shall drive them overland with the assistance of dogs to Coos Bay."

S. A. Buck & Sons of Monroe, Wash., are going to begin the erection of a box factory at Eugene.

FOREIGN FASHIONS FOR AMERICANS

By Lillian E. Young.

Paris, July 15.—Stripes may be counted upon to figure importantly in midsummer models, both for gowns and tailored suits. Just at the moment the call is for the "mille-raie" effects—bustier stripes placed together—but the more emphatic patterns are becoming as popular.

Stripes are always more or less to be reckoned with, and it was only last spring that they were prominent, but this year they are being made up so entirely different that they seem very much a novelty. During the last two or three weeks there has been an inclination to use them rather lavishly in trimming effects, and there is still an interest taken in utilizing two varieties of stripes in one costume; that is, to trim a wide, definite pattern with one that is narrow or shadow like, or in reverse order, both treatments having proved very successful.

A great deal of the advantage of striped patterns is attributable to the fact that the colorings are far more varied and artistic than ever before, and not dependent, as they had very largely heretofore, upon a colored lining to give them character.

Perhaps the most attractive results of striped patterns are attributable to the fact that the colorings are far more varied and artistic than ever before, and not dependent, as they had very largely heretofore, upon a colored lining to give them character.

The first mentioned of these two methods is employed in the simple design of today's sketch.

Here the material is striped voile or marquisette in light brown and cream color, made over a plain cream colored voile or china silk slip and given a note of contrast in the pretty crease of a dragon fly green taffeta.

The neck of the blouse is quite open and runs to a point in front. It is finished with a cord that holds in both the fulness of blouse and the neck frill. This is of cream colored taffeta and cut with a raw tooth edge. The same taffeta is also used for the sleeve ruffles the three-inch heading above the centre, and for the covering of the buttons.

There is a shallow pocket set at either side of the front on the taffeta, and these are bound with a bias pling of self-material.

Simple design can be interestingly developed in stripes.

The centre is in two parts: that which in the form of a deep girde encircles the waist, and the other in the form of sash ends that are brought from over the top of the girde toward the front and carried down over the hips to tie in a flat bow in back.

Chinese Objected to By Colored Porter

Oriental as Caretaker of Special Car Incenses Members of Race Who Assert Rights of Prior Possession.

Chagrined at the heart strings of every colored cook, waiter and porter on the O. W. R. & N. system. Something ought to be done, they declare, but what to do has not yet been determined. It is all because William Bollons, superintendent of the second division at La Grande, employed a Chinese to look after the new office car recently assigned the operating official.

"Jobs like that belong to us colored fellows," explained one porter as he alighted from a transcontinental train yesterday after having passed through La Grande and seen the new car and its celestial caretaker. "They are gradually shutting off what jobs there are in favor of these Chinese. It isn't right."

"We can't cook in restaurants any more because the Chinese are doing it. The Chinese are running the small laundries and taking the work our women used to do. We can't black boots any more because the Greeks are doing it. We can't do the porter work around saloons and hotels because the Chinese and Japs are doing it. And now the railroad jobs—the only ones we have left—are getting away from us."

The protesting porter declared one economic feature of the tendency he complains of is that every cent the negro makes is spent at home, while the money the Chinese makes, except for his daily living-expenses—is sent back to China.

STEAMER FROM ROSE CITY SIX HOURS IN CANAL ON JUNE 18

minutes. The down passage, in which the steamer was accompanied by a canal barge, was through the locks, was accomplished in less than half an hour. The steamer was delayed owing to the discharge of passengers at Miraflores locks. The lockages were attended to perfectly by the canal employees.

The Santa Clara was placed at the disposal of the government in order that a thorough test might be made of the Pacific side. The government's large vessels are all on the Atlantic side of the canal.

"I desire to express my thanks to your company and to Mr. Theodore Wilde, the manager of your Panama agency, for tendering the vessel for this trial, which serves as a demonstration of the adequacy of the locks and their equipment for handling commercial traffic. Your assistance has been of material value to the canal, since, at present, it is not practicable to make such a trial with the larger vessels of the government's fleet, which are available only for trial at the Atlantic locks."

"You will find herewith, some photographs taken during the upbound passage, which I hope will be of interest to you."

(Signed) GEORGE W. GOETHALS.

Constructed especially for trade through the Panama canal to the North Pacific, the Santa Clara is one of the finest equipped freighters on the coast. With the opening of the canal she will also be used in the passenger carrying trade, having a number of excellent accommodations. Her dimensions are: Length, 420 feet; beam, 54 feet; depth of hold, 30 feet; carrying capacity, 10,000 tons. She has cold storage accommodation for 500 tons of cargo as well as 150 tons for ships' use. She has four large hatches, 32 feet in length, for the easy handling of lumber and other freight and carried a heavy cargo of Portland freight on this trip.

HOO'S HOO TODAY

By John W. Carey.

Who's fine and fit as any man that trots the well known globe, until he hears that Uncle Sam is getting out his probe?

Who suddenly is taken ill with measles—or a boil—on news that he must testify regarding Standard Oil? Who drags his good old wheel chair out and brushes off the rust when congress takes a notion it will rout the money trust?

Who gets a tummyache when he's subpoenaed to the bar to talk about the late N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R.? Who, like as not when Gabriel sounds forth his summons shrill will tell St. Pete he cannot come? Ye Oil, Kink's Brother Bill.

FRATERNAL NOTES

Moon Not Much in Evidence, but United Artisans Had Good Time.

The moonlight excursion of the United Artisans, Oregon assembly, last Wednesday evening, was a success in every way. There was not much moon, but there were over 200 people and a general good time.

The Knights of Columbus are making preparations through committee for their annual outing at Bonnevill, August 9.

Returns from Denver.

Mrs. C. C. Van Orsdall, grand guardian of the Women of Woodcraft, has returned from a trip to Denver in the interests of the organization of which she is the Oregon representative. She stepped on a rusty nail about two weeks ago and at one time he was in a very serious condition, though now recovering.

Mt. Scott Circle, Women of Woodcraft, has the peculiar distinction of having taken a member of the order during the ten years of its existence. It has over 75 members in good standing.

The Improved Order of Red Men in Arleta have secured over 100 members, but will hold its charter open a short time longer in expectation of securing 200.

The new tribe of Improved Order of Red Men in Tillamook is called "Kata," No. 55, and starts with 75 members.

New Chapter Instituted.

A local chapter of Royal Arch Masons was instituted in Klamath Falls Friday evening by E. E. Kiddle, of Island City, Union county, past high priest of the order. He and a party of friends went by automobile from La Grande to Klamath to be present at the opening of the new chapter.

W. C. Bristol, grand master of the Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of Oregon, instituted a lodge at Yoncalla, Oregon, Thursday evening.

Will Give Free Concert.

The free concert of the Hoberg Trio, under the auspices of George Washington camp, Woodmen of the World, at W. O. W. Temple, Eleventh between Alder and Washington streets, promises to attract a large audience Tuesday evening.

New Officers Installed.

Arleta, July 18.—Arleta lodge of Odd Fellows has installed the following new officers: noble grand, W. A.

Y. M. C. A. to Work For More Members

Effort Expected to Be Strengthened by Acceptance by W. A. Goss of Committee Chairmanship.

Membership work of Portland Y. M. C. A. is expected to be strengthened by the acceptance by W. A. Goss of the chairmanship of the membership committee. Mr. Goss is a director of the association and has been one of the most active members for a number of years. He was chairman of the campaign that completed raising $150,000 for the erection of the present Y. M. C. A. building.

A special effort will be made to stimulate interest in the special summer membership drive now being offered. More of these memberships have already been taken out than on previous years, but the membership committee feels that hundreds of other young men should take advantage of the privileges offered. The swimming tank is especially attractive at this season and the association tennis courts are in use almost constantly. The gymnasium classes, too, are keeping up unusually well, particularly the business men's classes.

Skamania county, Washington, Democrats held a convention at Stevenson, and for the first time in years put a full ticket in the field.

VACATION DAYS

By Paul West.

Only 7 weeks & 6 days to School! That certainly does fly round these parts, say we!
The Savages of the Wildwood!
When Chief Ex Brigham of the Savages of the Wildwood, which is the name of his band arrived down to the bridge this morning they were many fellers there to join the band, and we soon started for the woods, away back of Blaney's. Then Ex sed:

The first thing to do is to return to nature.

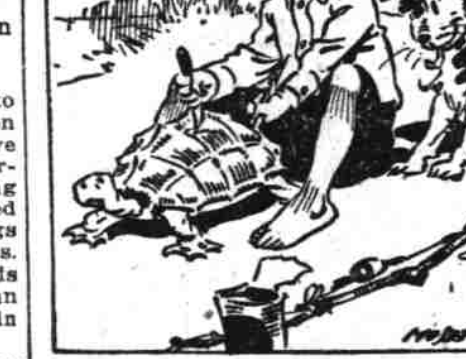

"Now the first thing to do is to cast off the trappings of civilization & return to nature, which means leave us talk off our close & pants ourselves up," so we dun so. Ex having brot a box of pants, and we looked very fine all stripes and rings & things like that, especially Patty Bellows. Several of us took turns panting his bak, it being more than a job for wun person & he was the handsomest in the band. Then Ex sed:

"Now we have gotter stop speaking the language of civilization, too, & frum now on any feller that wants to speek must use the old Ooglegooglego! That means I am heep big cheef! Go on, now, sum feller & say sumthing & mak sum sines when you say it!"

So, we all sed different things that sounded sumthing like Ex, & maid sines, & it was very fine, sum of the things being quite easy to understand, especially when Patty Bellows sed:

RESINOL CURED ECZEMA IN ITS WORST FORM

Feb. 25, 1914: "I had eczema in the worst form all over my face. It started with a rash like hives, and itched and burned so that I could not keep my hands off of it. I could hardly sleep. The more I rubbed it the worse it itched, and the more it spread. Blisters formed, and when opened had pus in them. I looked terrible. I would not let myself be seen. This lasted for about three months, and during that time I tried prescription cold cream, camphor, etc. But it still kept getting worse, until at last I tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. THE FIRST APPLICATION RELIEVED THE ITCHING AND BURNING. I purchased a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap, and by the time they were gone my face was entirely well—my skin is as smooth and clear as ever." (Signed) Mrs. Phoebe Cole, 1009 N. New labor-saving uses for Fels-Naptha Soap are being discovered every day.

The right way to use Fels-Naptha Soap is the easy way. There are a great many new ways to help women in their work nowadays. Lots of them are very good. One is the Fels-Naptha way. It helps in the weekly washing, in dishwashing, in housecleaning. Fels-Naptha Soap works for you and with you. It saves your time by working without you; if you put your clothes to soak in cool or lukewarm water with Fels-Naptha Soap, the dirt is loosened and ready to come right out without any hard rubbing, and your clothes do not need any boiling.

Mrs. Happywife Learns the "New Way"

Mrs. Happywife—"Oh, Anty Drudge, do come in and see the new vacuum cleaner that Harry gave me for my tenth anniversary present! I declare, if it wasn't for the washing I would just love my housework nowadays!"

Anty Drudge—"That's a fine present, my dear. But I am surprised to hear what you say about the washing. Certainly any woman who uses a vacuum cleaner knows the easy way to wash. I couldn't wait long if I washed the old-fashioned way. I use Fels-Naptha Soap, in the Fels-Naptha way, make my work easy, and get through in time to have a little pleasure."

Follow the directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.

Better buy Fels-Naptha by the carton or box.
