

MILLION MEN WILL BE SENT INTO BELGIUM

France Hurries to Aid of Her Little Neighbor, Encouraged by First Defeat of German Attempt on Liege.

(United Press Special Wire.) Paris, Aug. 6.—After the brilliant showing made by the Belgian troops Wednesday in repulsing the German invaders on their way across the territory toward the French frontier, military authorities expressed the opinion today that France was safe against attack from that particular quarter.

The Belgians, they said, would quickly be reinforced by French and English bodies, and if they could hold their ground alone against their numbers, it was considered a foregone conclusion they could do so aided by the French and English. The estimate was that the combined forces in Belgium should number close to 1,000,000 men.

French officers said frankly that the desperate and heroic resistance put up by the Belgians, whose army has never been considered particularly well trained, against the crack German troops surprised them, and they were well satisfied that it surprised the Germans and they were inclined to think it surprised the Belgians themselves.

Moral Effect Is Immense. Aside from the material advantage gained, they added, the moral effect of the victory was immense. Three German army corps took part in the invasion. The first had previously passed across the Dutch province of Limburg, and passed into Belgium at Eysden. The second crossed from Germany near Verrieres. Just where the third entered was not known here, but it unquestionably was in the vicinity of Stavelot.

These three bodies converged, marching southwest, down the west and north west, upon Liege and Fort Liege. All three were driven back with heavy losses. The corps which entered by way of Eysden was sent staggering back across the Dutch frontier. Two regiments of its cavalry had actually succeeded in getting across the Meuse at Liege, but both were practically wiped out by the fire from the Belgian fort there.

Second Corps Shattered. The second corps was driven back upon Verrieres, from where they were well satisfied to retreat to a point about midway between Francorchamps and Stavelot. Its losses, too, were said to have been enormous. General Von Emmrich had charge of the German invasion; General Linneer of the Belgian defense.

The German force which invaded France through the duchy of Luxemburg was also reported today to be badly disorganized by its encounters with the French troops at Louvain.

Further south along the Franco-German frontier, the Germans continued a series of petty raids into French territory, but they did not see far and every where they encountered French troops they were quickly scattered.

See America First Is Now in Order

Tourists Reminded That There Are No Wars on American Continent to Mar Pleasures.

C. C. Chapman, manager of the Commercial club, says this is the "psychological moment" to inform all the prospective tourists of North and South America that they have no wars in the west; that they have the finest scenery and best crops of the world, and that to literally apply the expression, "See America First," is now in order.

The suggestion comes to Mr. Chapman in a letter from J. W. Crossley of Portland, in which he says: "It would seem to me that right now would be a good time for the publicity departments of the Commercial club, Chamber of Commerce, railroads and newspapers to get busy and go after a lot of this tourist business in an effort to head them out to Oregon and the Pacific coast."

"There are a lot of people east of us who make regular yearly trips to Europe. They have no wars in the west, going there this fall; they want to go somewhere evidently, and if a determined effort were made to head them out this fall, I believe such effort would bear fruit."

Judgment Against Reed Is Secured

Woman Sued to Recover $500 Balance on Note for $750 Given in 1910; Interest Costs Added.

A judgment for $500, with 8 per cent interest, $35 attorney's fee and $28.50 costs has been secured by Cora E. Burrell against Ferdinand E. Reed. The judgment was granted by Circuit Judge Gaten in a suit for collection of a note given by Reed February 24, 1910. Attorney's fees of $150 were asked, but the lesser amount was agreed upon in a stipulation for judgment filed in the case. The original note was for $750, July 22, before the war clouds gathered. Bonds of Dr. M. Baker is made on the note April 23, 1910. The interest is from that date to the date of judgment, July 31, 1914.

Miss Genevieve Frazer, daughter of the late Judge Arthur L. Frazer, is another Portlander in the European war zone. Miss Frazer has been in Vienna studying music, but no word has been received from her since the hostilities began. A letter written July 22, before the war clouds gathered, stated that she was planning a summer vacation trip to Antwerp, so it is possible that she is either in Belgium or, perhaps crossed to London before steamer service was discontinued between England and Belgium.

MISTAKE IN ORDERS ON MISSOURI R. R. IS CAUSE OF 38 DEATHS

Supposing Track Clear, Engineer Plunges Into Gasoline Passenger Car.

BURNING OIL KILLS MANY. Passenger Train on Kansas City Southern Telescoped Motor Car Near Joplin During the Night.

(United Press Special Wire.) Joplin, Mo., Aug. 6.—Misunderstanding of orders was said today to have been responsible for the collision on the Kansas City Southern tracks at Tipford, near here, last night which resulted in the death of 38 persons and injury to 25 others. The bodies of 19 of the victims were recognized today.

With a supposedly clear track ahead, the engineer of passenger train No. 2 on the Kansas City Southern railway plunged at full speed into a Missouri and North Arkansas railroad gasoline motor car running on the Kansas City Southern tracks. The passenger train telescoped the motor car and the latter's burning oil spread over the wreckage. A fire, which spread death and injury to almost every one on the motor, followed.

THOUSANDS DIE FOR FATHERLAND TRYING TO CAPTURE LIEGE

he declared, in the address he made on assuming the military post, "without the slightest provocation, has torn up a treaty bearing its signature and has violated the territory of our fathers because we refused to forfeit our honor."

"It has attacked us. Seeing its independence threatened, the nation trembled and its children sprang to the aid of their fathers in a sacred cause. I have confidence in your tenacious courage."

"I greet you, in the name of Belgium, as a fellow citizen who is proud of you."

"Abandoned Forts Old." The Belgian commander at Liege telegraphed to King Albert today.

The two forts the Belgians were compelled to abandon under the German fire were old, it was stated. Liege's main defenses were declared new and of modern construction.

Moreover, Belgian engineers were constructing a second line of fortifications at Namur stronger than the one at Liege. Machine guns were being mounted in the forts and the forts themselves were being mined and protected by barbed wire entanglements.

German Regiment Blotted Out. A regiment of Uhlans, or German cavalry, this afternoon penetrated the Belgian defenses at Liege. They charged furiously.

Belgian infantry and cavalry met them in a desperate battle with bullets and a counter charge with sabers. At the same time the Liege forts poured a fearful artillery fire among them.

The regiment was blotted out. Fully half their men were killed or wounded. The rest were made prisoners. The cannonade was continuous and deadly.

It was believed the Germans planned a night assault. Germans Short of Food. That the lack of food would compel a speedy abandonment of the German attack on Liege was asserted here this afternoon. The German commissary was taxed to the limit, it was stated, and the troops were already on emergency rations.

French troops were waiting to help the Belgians as soon as the latter gave the word. King Albert was confident, however, that his own men would win.

Word of the routing of a strong force of Uhlans, who attempted an attack on the Belgian forts, covered by darkness Wednesday night, was received here today.

The German cavalrymen undertook to circle the Belgian lines and raid military headquarters.

Belgian scouts located them, however, machine guns opened on them, and, although they charged desperately and repeatedly, they were finally scattered with enormous losses.

Chamber Desires Banners Banished

Commercial Body Wants Ordinance Passed Aimed Particularly, It Is Said, at "Unfair" Union Signs.

Because the exposition will attract to the coast and Portland next year many visitors, who should have a favorable impression of the city, the trustees of the chamber of commerce meeting yesterday, decided to call upon the city authorities to pass an ordinance which will banish banners carried on the streets, the action to be directed particularly at banners carried by representatives of organized labor about stores declared to be "unfair."

The Port of Portland commission was requested to issue an ordinance which would prohibit the carrying of banners on the streets. The commission is expected to appear at the hearing of the application for radical changes in the harbor plan filed by J. E. Ziegler, and set for August 28, 10 a. m., in the customs house building.

Approval was given the Adamson power bill.

MAYOR MAKES CALL FOR FUNDS FOR AID OF RED CROSS WORK

Funds Will Be Accepted for Use in Connection With the European War.

At the request of the American Red Cross society, from which he received a lengthy telegram today, Mayor H. R. Albee has made an appeal to the people of Portland for funds to assist the Red Cross in its work in connection with the European war.

Miss Jane B. Doyle, 574 Kearney street, chairman of the nursing committee of the Visiting Nurse association, will accept the funds and forward them to the organization headquarters. The message to Mayor Albee follows:

"Please use this appeal to raise funds for the Red Cross. During our war with Spain thousands of soldiers were sent by the European Red Cross societies to aid in the care of our sick and wounded soldiers. This hour of their supreme need, the American Red Cross, for the sake of humanity and to express our gratitude for their aid to us in the time of trouble and distress has decided to charter a ship and send to each country involved, doctors, nurses and hospital supplies. The Red Cross flag will be under the protection of the treaties of Geneva and the Geneva convention of 1864.

In no other way can this trained personnel be reached without delay in the discharge of its beneficent duty. In other words, this trained personnel is being sent to different countries. Protection is provided also for the personnel of the Red Cross societies of neutral states that render aid, by the treaty of Geneva.

American Red Cross appeals most earnestly to all of our people; to the governors of states, as presidents of the Red Cross chapters; to mayors of cities; to Chambers of Commerce; to Boards of Trade; to business men and individuals for contributions to carry on this work.

Contributions may be designated by the donors, if they so desire, for the aid of any special country and will be used for the country so designated, but assistance will be given to all in the American Red Cross, represented by its motto, "Neutrality-Humanity."

Griefs as we may be by this terrible war, the agonizing cry of suffering men cannot appeal to us in vain. We are ready to help you for a prompt and generous response. Contributions may be sent to the American Red Cross, c/o Chamber of Commerce, or to state and local treasurers of the Red Cross.

Widow Begins Suit To Break the Will

Undue Influence Alleged by Mrs. Anna Kunkel; Bulk of Estate, Appraised at $108,886, Left to Her Brother.

Mrs. Anna Kunkel, widow of Daniel Kunkel, who died January 17, yesterday began proceedings to break her husband's will which gave all of his estate, appraised at $108,886, except a third of the real estate, to his brother. Undue influence on a weak mind is alleged to have been used to keep her from securing a just share of the property. The real estate is valued at $29,500, according to the appraisal of the estate and in share one third would make her legacy approximately $10,000. The brother, Samuel Kunkel, resides in Terespol, West Prussia, Germany.

NO PLAN TO AID ENGLAND

P. E. Sullivan, secretary of the Oregon division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, states that he knows no plans on the part of the organization to lend aid to England during the war with Germany. "I have no knowledge of any such plans," said Mr. Sullivan today, "and have no authority to say that a matter of that kind will come before our next meeting, as was reported in a morning paper."

BELGIAN RESERVISTS URGED TO HURRY ON RETURN TO EUROPE

Vice Consul C. Henri Labbe Receives Telegram From Belgian Minister.

ONLY FEW ARE REPORTED. Transportation Problem Interferes With Departure of German Reservists.

Along with the news of a Belgian victory over the Germans at Liege came a call last night for Belgian reservists in this country to return to their native land and fight in its behalf.

The call was received in Portland by the Belgian vice consul, C. Henri Labbe in shape of a telegram from the Belgian minister at Washington, E. Havenith.

All Belgian reservists are urged to hurry back to Belgium and consult the Belgian minister at Washington, E. Havenith.

But few Belgian reservists had reported to Mr. Labbe this morning, who is waiting further instructions from the consulate at San Francisco before furnishing transportation.

Several reservists left last night, however, for New York, paying their own expenses.

Mr. Labbe is consul for France at Portland as well as vice consul for Belgium and is filing names of all French reservists who signify their willingness to return.

With the transportation problem interfering with the immediate return of Belgian reservists, Consul Frim Kirchoff has been instructed to hold German reservists until further notice, taking their names and addresses, that they may be reached without delay when the proper time comes.

Austrian reservists are still reporting to Woerndle & Haas, attorneys for the American Red Cross, at San Francisco, although no plans have been perfected as yet for getting them back to Austria. They have found one Austrian reservist is on the Kelly Butte rockpile, and will ask his release.

No Direct Communication. Messrs. Woerndle & Haas, in common with most German speaking people in Portland, assert that the war news received in this country should be taken with a grain of salt, stating that it is written with an English or in these countries. They point out that there is no direct communication with Germany and Austria at the present time, and that the sides of these countries are not reaching the United States.

According to J. W. Matthes, vice consul for the Netherlands, but few reservists have reported to date and although the names of Swiss reservists are still being taken by Consul Albrecht Streiff it is not known when the Swiss will be called to return to their native land.

Thomas Erskine, the English consul, has not as yet received instructions regarding the transporting of Britons desirous of engaging in the war back to Great Britain. Englishmen desiring to serve will have to make their way home the best they can and enlist on the other side.

Retail Jewelers to Hold Convention

Seventh Annual Gathering Scheduled for August 13 and 14 at the Multnomah Hotel.

The Oregon Retail Jewelers' association will hold its seventh annual convention in Portland, August 13 and 14 at the Multnomah hotel. The association has a membership of 100 in all parts of the state and a large attendance is expected. It was founded in 1907.

A number of visiting speakers are on the program, including Burr W. Frazer, president Pacific Coast Non-Retailing Wholesale Jewelers and Silversmiths' association; Colonel John L. Shepherd of New York city, and T. L. Combs of Omaha, Neb., president of the American National Retail Jewelers' association with which the state association is affiliated.

Letters Can Still Be Sent to Europe

The International Agreement Compels Transmission of Mail Into Countries at War, Even by Belligerents.

Although Transatlantic mails may be badly delayed, due to a few days of sailing, and although mails may be held up in the countries now at war in Europe because of the use of trains for military purposes, it is practically certain that letters will eventually reach those to whom they are addressed.

Under the terms of the London naval conference of 1908-9, belligerent nations are compelled to respect letters, although parcel post packages and papers may be considered as contraband and held accordingly. Letters, however, they are compelled to forward as expeditiously as possible, even when taken from a confiscated vessel.

Portlanders, therefore, who have friends and relatives abroad may write them with the assurance that their letters will reach them eventually.

With practically all of the nations of Europe engaged in war, there are said to be six Transatlantic liners sailing out of New York city for northern Europe that can safely cross the Atlantic without fear of capture. They are the St. Louis, St. Paul, Philadelphia and New York of the American line, and the Kronland and Finland of the Red Star line, which are of American registry. The brunt of carrying the mail across the Atlantic will probably fall on these boats.

GERMAN INVADERS OF RUSSIA RETREATING, BURNING AS THEY GO

No Important Engagements Have Taken Place but Skirmishes Are Frequent.

(United Press Special Wire.) St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—The German forces which invaded Russian territory directly after the Kaiser's declaration of hostilities are falling back all along the line today before a general Russian advance. As they retreated they burned the villages.

Considerable skirmishing has occurred between Russian and German scouting parties, but no important engagements have taken place.

At L'yk, Biala and other points Russian cavalry, after crossing the frontier, was scouting in German territory. Several German custom houses and railroad stations had also been destroyed.

The mob attack on the deserted German embassy here Wednesday was the channel of a series of incidents to which Russian Ambassador De Sverbev was said to have been subjected when he left Berlin.

The German ambassador to St. Petersburg was sent away with imperial honors and under a strong military guard. Sverbev and his staff, on the other hand, were reported to have been taken by their automobiles to the railroad station.

Missiles were said to have struck First Secretary Charovitsky and Principal Secretary Gerasimov, and Whittier of Boston. The party got away to Copenhagen.

Still further resentment was felt at the Kaiser's action in detaining the Russian dowager empress, on her way from London to St. Petersburg, and finally sending her also to Copenhagen, instead of to her destination.

Finally, when the crowd forced its way into the German embassy, it was reported that the body of a Russian servant was found there, stabbed and shot through the head. This rumor was popular, but was not believed by the best informed.

The mob swarmed through the embassy, completely sacking it. A Russian attack was directed against the Austrian embassy, but this time the police were prepared and beat the crowd off.

Tatoosh Stops Reporting Vessels. Seattle, Aug. 6.—An order by the Seattle office at Washington to the United States weather observer at Tatoosh island, was received today, to make no more reports on the movements of vessels passing in and out of Cape Flattery. These reports had been made in connection with the weather bureau reports, but, owing to the declaration of neutrality by the United States, it was thought these reports might create embarrassing situations.

SWEDEN COULD RAISE ARMY OF 450,000 IF BECOMES NECESSARY

Country Is on Friendly Terms With Both Germany and Russia, However.

HOPES TO KEEP NEUTRAL. Coast Line of Sweden Is Not Easily Accessible to an Enemy in Case of Attack, It Is Said.

That Sweden would be in position to mobilize 450,000 men on first call if compelled to maintain her neutrality by force of arms is the statement of Henry Skantzé, financial agent for Wilhelm R. Lundgren, a large steamship owner of Gothenburg, and organizer of the Swedish-American line which is now planning the construction of two 19,000 ton steamers for the passenger trade between Gothenburg and New York or Boston.

Mr. Skantzé was in Portland today from Gothenburg in connection with the proposed steamship line and to investigate conditions on the Pacific coast in relation to possibilities of trade extension between Sweden and this coast upon the completion of the Panama canal.

"Sweden has been, and is on very friendly terms with both Germany and England," said Mr. Skantzé, "and it hopes to remain absolutely neutral in this conflict, but in view of the very peculiar situation that now exists, Sweden, as well as Denmark, may be called upon to maintain her neutrality by force of arms. In that event it is the opinion of the Scandinavian countries, Norway and Sweden, will stand united."

"Should the German navy withdraw to the Baltic and the English fleet attempt to force its way into those waters, the vessels would have to pass through the Belts instead of Orsund, the channel that separates Denmark from Sweden, because of the shallow water in the sound, particularly at this time of the year. The sound would be available for smaller vessels, but not for the big battleships. Even merchantmen of very deep draft take the Belts instead of the more direct route of the sound at this time of the year."

"Sweden has a coast line not easily accessible to the enemy, because of its rocky shores and the accessible points are well fortified, and while we have no very large battleships, we have a great many submarines, destroyers, torpedo boats and smaller cruisers, suitable for defense in the home waters."
