rived at the county jail, but to the that no instructions, correspondence or newspaper men he declared: "It is an complaints of any kind relative to outrage; it is all a lie." When asked Innes or anyone connected with the for a statement, he said that he had Innes case, had been handled through made a statement before, covering the his office, and that if the government case, and that it was published in all was taking a hand in it at all, it was of the Portland papers. "That is sufficient," he said. "I have nothing fur-ther to say. I refer all newspaper men "So far as this office pe to my attorney, John H. McCourt, in Portland." Innes, immediately upon his arrival at the jail, called up Mr. McCourt and told him of his arrest. He urged the attorney to leave nothing undone to secure his release and that of his wife by means of habeas corpus proceedings. He said he did not want Mrs. Innes to be locked up in jall, and urged the attorney to do everything possible to prevent it and to prevent their removal don't understand it at all," he told the attorney. "I understand the detectives found a number of bones of a dead dog, or something of the kind," he said, "but further than that I don't know on what grounds they have arrested me." Innes and his wife were found by the sheriff and his deputy at a place off the road a short distance west of Leaburg, where they had fitted up a very comfortable home. Innes said last night that they had intended to stay there until Mrs. Innes' health had year. Four marriage licenses were isimproved. Some time ago she took a severe cold, he said, which resulted in pneumonia, and she has never fully Judge McKnight. They were Roy recovered from it. She now has a severe cough.

Shipped Household Goods.

Innes and wife appeared here about three weeks ago and announced that anon. they were going to establish a sum-mer resort at the place where they have been staying. They shipped a carload of household effects here by train and had them hauled to the farm near Leaburg by team.

Mrs, Innes is a former resident of Springfield, having left that city about 20 years ago. Many of the old residents remember her. It is known here that Innes and his wife have been watched by a detective, who said that the object of his trip up the river was to fish and hunt. Their arrest was not expected by the detective at this time. He was directed to watch the couple pending developments in the case.

Communicating with his attorney, John McCourt, over the telephone to day, Innes instructed his attorney to prepare to fight extradition, in case grounds upon which to base a fight can be found when the extradition papers arrive.

"Innes didn't have much to say about the case," said Attorney Mc-Court. "He stands pat on his innocence, and requested me to get ready to meet the demand for extradition. I don't know upon what grounds we can fight extradition until the papers arrive, which I expect will be in about
