

UNCLE SAM TO CARRY GOODS IN OWN SHIPS

Bill for Purchase of Vessels to Be Presented, as Result of Conference Held to Arrange Facilities.

(United Press Licensed Wire.) Washington, Aug. 19.—A conference between President Wilson and leaders in the shipping industry today met for meeting of the shipping emergency would be for the government to purchase vessels to carry American goods awaiting shipment to European markets. A bill will be drawn for the appropriation of $25,000,000 for this purpose. It was also decided that a bill, providing government war risk insurance, was necessary.

Senators Clarke and Simmons, Representatives Underwood and Alexander and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo took part in the conference. A statement outlining the matters discussed was issued later.

It was said that $25,000,000 worth of German vessels, laid up in American ports, were for sale, but it was a question whether the purchase of such vessels would be considered a violation of American neutrality.

It was not known whether the president would send a special message to congress, asking for an appropriation for this purpose.

Representative Alexander on the house committee of merchant marine introduced a bill in the house this afternoon providing war risk insurance for the American shipping.

The Alexander bill creates in the treasury department "a bureau of war risk insurance," and provides a director at a salary of $6000 a year. The bureau is authorized to write insurance on American vessels or for shippers in American vessels against loss or damage by war.

In the judgment of the secretary of the treasury, it may appear that American vessels and shippers in American vessels are unable to secure adequate war risk insurance on terms substantially equal with vessels and shippers of other countries because of the protection given such vessels by their respective governments through war risk insurance.

The president is authorized to suspend the law when it is deemed necessary to continue the business further.

Tribute to Pope Paid by Ad Men

Members Sit in Absolute Silence for Moment at Beginning of Luncheon in Honor of Dead Prelate.

For a moment of absolute hush members of the scene of action, tribute to the pope, who died today, at the beginning of the luncheon in the Hotel Portland this afternoon. For an hour club members and their wives listened with approval to words of protest against the war that has disrupted Europe.

William H. Galvani and Charles Robinson were the speakers. Mr. Robinson serving also as chairman of the day.

"I will tell you why newspaper men are barred from the scene of action," promised Mr. Galvani.

"It is not for secrecy—each nation has spent millions learning all about the others' possessions, and they know how to hide the ghostliness of it all."

The luncheon hour had impressive beginning, through the recitation of Longfellow's "Arsenal at Springfield," by Henry G. Longhurst, and President C. F. Berg's introductory words.

Charles Irwin, head of the wild west show that is to be given in connection with the fair at Vancouver, spoke of the enjoyment Ad men will have September 9, when they lunch in the circus tent. There were songs by a quintet from the Empress theatre.

Pennsylvanians Pleased With West

Special Train Brings Party of Sixty Into City Over North Bank Line; Side Trip to Oregon

Enthusiastic over their trip through the west, a special train of sixty Pennsylvanians on recreation bent arrived in Portland this morning, coming over the North Bank's rails from Spokane.

The train is made up entirely of Pennsylvania railway equipment. Sixty people were in the party, which is slightly less than the number on the excursion last year.

The party arrived at about 9 o'clock and spent the morning on sightseeing trolley cars and automobiles. At 12:30 the train pulled out for Astoria, where the easterners will see the salmon canneries and afterward look at the ocean from Gearhart.

The beach trip was arranged by the North Bank officials, who wanted the travelers to see the ocean at one point and the itinerary did not provide otherwise for a glimpse of salt water.

Returning to Portland, the party will set out for Puget sound soon after midnight and return to Pennsylvania over the Canadian Pacific.

Big Convention for Portland. Gus C. Moser of Portland and Marion F. Davis of Union, supreme representatives to the biennial convention of the Knights of Pythias, held this year in Winnipeg, returned to Portland yesterday, happy in having secured for Portland the 1916 convention of the lodge. Over 10,000 delegates attend the Winnipeg convention and the attendance here is expected to be fully as large. Nashville, Tenn., was the only town competing with Portland for the honor of entertaining the next convention.

REPUBLICAN NOMINEE HAS BEEN DEFENDANT IN SUITS MANY TIMES

C. M. Hurlburt, Who Would Be Joint Representative, Was Known as Wilson.

ARRESTED BY DETECTIVES

Worked for Portland Railway, Light & Power Co. Under the Name of C. C. Booth at One Time.

C. M. Hurlburt, Republican nominee for joint representative in the Seventeenth district, comprising Clackamas and Multnomah counties, and against whom a suit has just been filed in the circuit court for the collection of a balance alleged to be due on a grocery bill, has been defendant in many suits during his career in Portland, and has been known under various names. E. E. Litscher, 427 Durham avenue, is the plaintiff in the latest suit filed against Hurlburt.

On September 14, 1912, Hurlburt was arrested by Detectives Day and Hyde on a charge of obtaining property by false pretenses, and was held in jail until addition of Prosser, Wash. The case was continued indefinitely.

His arrest was made on information made by J. A. Rosen, who charged in the complaint that Hurlburt, alias Wilson, attempted to defraud Mollie E. Wright out of $700 worth of property in a rooming house, for which he traded two lots he said he owned in Yakitat addition of Prosser, Wash. The complaint alleged that Hurlburt did not own any lots in Yakitat addition when he negotiated the trade.

About that time Hurlburt was working under the name of C. C. Booth for the Portland Railway, Light & Power company. He also used this assumed name when he negotiated a loan through a firm of local bankers.

In the fall of 1911 Hurlburt negotiated a trade with George Burbuck for Burbuck's saloon at Sixth and Burnside streets. Hurlburt traded some property on the same lot and was to pay $800 besides. For this amount he gave two notes on property he represented was worth much more than the face of the notes. The notes were never paid and the property proved to have practically no value.

Burbuck brought suit against Hurlburt on one of the notes for $800 and secured judgment for that amount. The court records show that the judgment remains unsatisfied.

On November 19, 1912, the city brought suit against Hurlburt to collect $250 from him as bondsman for S. J. Mandich, who appealed from a conviction on the charge of disorderly conduct. Mandich disappeared and the court states that Hurlburt could not be located in the county. The claim is still unsatisfied.

M. Goldberg secured judgment against Hurlburt for $100 in July, 1912, and property in Norwood addition was sold by the sheriff to satisfy it.

A suit filed March 29, 1913, Ferdinand Courtard against Hurlburt and E. L. Cooper, for the collection of various sums aggregating $690, is still pending.

Starbuck Marshal Believes Man Alive

Impression Held That Frank J. Rooney, Whose Body Was Found Near Troutdale, Not Dead.

Marshal W. T. Wooten of Starbuck, Wash., appears to be under the impression that Frank J. Rooney, whose body was found near Troutdale 10 days ago, is still alive, for he wrote to Sheriff Word that he believes Rooney had been seen at that place and is somewhere in the harvest fields. He said Rooney had mail at Starbuck, which has been forwarded to Mrs. Rooney. Rooney, he said, called for his mail several weeks ago and will more than likely call for his mail later on.

A telegram was received from Emil Olsommer of Fort Lee, N. J., to the effect that his son, George Olsommer, whose pocketbook was found on Rooney's body, was last heard from August 6, and that the only address he had for him was this city. August 6 was the date on which Rooney or Olsommer appeared at the police station and bought food and lodging under the name of Olsommer. The telegram states that Olsommer's brother, Henry, for whom he was searching, is now in Seattle.

Deputy Sheriff Beckman left yesterday for Willamette valley points to follow up possible clues as to the whereabouts of the two men, with Rooney on the Sunday before Rooney's body was found. It is believed that one of these men was Olsommer.

Flash From Portland Will Start Sawmill

New Plant at Springfield to Commence Operations on August 29 — Special Wire Service.

An electric spark transmitted from the Portland Commercial club at noon August 29, will start the new Booth-Kelly electric sawmill at Springfield, the Springfield Development league and the Portland Commercial club will thus electrically unite in celebration of the opening of an industry important to the western city.

Franklin T. Griffith, chairman of the executive committee of the club, and president of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, will press the button. The Western Union will install special wires in the club building to carry the spark. Arrangements have been made here by C. C. Chapman, manager of the Commercial club.

RED MEN WILL CLOSE TWO DAYS' MEETING AT BANQUET TONIGHT

Prominent Members of Grand Lodge Will Be Speakers at Closing Festivities.

A two days' session of the grand lodge of the improved Order of Red Men will close this evening with a banquet at the Benson hotel. George M. Orton, past great sachem, will be toastmaster. Those who are on the program to speak are: Frank G. Micelli, great sachem of the Council of Oregon; Dr. Theodore Fessler, deputy great inchoonee, "The Great Council of the United States"; Edward Simpson, great sachem of Missouri, recitation, "The Flag"; L. Carstensen, past great sachem, "History of the Organization"; George N. Farling, "Modern Methods of Organization"; Dr. H. L. Henderson, past great sachem, "The Passing of the Indian." Impromptu speeches from officers and past sachems will follow. Bowker's orchestra will furnish the music.

The degree of great council was conferred upon 17 representatives last evening after a meeting of Lulu council, at its new hall on East Morrison street.

The great council has received an invitation from the Commercial club of Willamook to hold its next session there.

Among the important changes contemplated in the affairs of the Red Men in Oregon are: Making the publication "Oregon Red Man," the official organ; appropriating $500 as a contingent fund for the great sachem for use in organization; making all past sachems who are members of the great council eligible to appointment on committees, the rule being now that only past great sachems are eligible.

This afternoon the election of great chiefs will occupy the last hours of the session. Frank G. Micelli, the present great sachem, will probably be elected great representative to the great council of the United States, meeting in Portland, Maine, September 13.

The finances of the organization are reported in good condition. There has been a gain during the last year of 400 members in the state. It is intended to place new lodges in at least 42 towns and cities in Oregon within the next two years. Every local tribe in the jurisdiction is represented at this session.

PORTLAND MIGHTILY PLEASING IN EYES OF PROMINENT TEXAN

W. H. Daugherty, Who Is Spending Summer Here, Is Confirmed Booster.

WAR TO BRING BENEFITS

When Hostilities Are Over Prediction Is Made There Will Be Big Boom in This Country.

"Portland is one of the most delightful, if not the most delightful city in America," said W. H. Daugherty, a director of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, of Hainesville, Texas, this morning. Mr. Daugherty, together with his wife and son, is spending the summer in the Rose City. He has become a confirmed booster for Oregon and Portland.

"Its soils are set for much bigger things than have yet come to it," he said. "You have so many things better and more beautiful than exist elsewhere that you forget how to enjoy them. A stranger has to come in to see the full force of what has become commonplace to you. Your snow-capped mountains, your canyons, your living, rushing streams and perfect atmosphere are all appealing."

"I have been to Mt. Hood. This place should be made accessible to the tourist. Many of us go to Europe to see sights not so grand. I have been in the Hood River apple orchards. These are worth the trip to Oregon to see. I don't know about your laws, but trust that you are in a position to most other states—have too many of them. But this seems inevitable, so why complain?"

Texas Prospects Good.

"As a Texan," continued Mr. Daugherty, "I naturally must say something about my own state. We are quite happy down there. The prospects for a good crop are looming as the rain is falling plentifully. In ordinary good crop years we add $1,000,000,000 to the world's values. This is why you can't keep us from going among our plains, your canyons, your living, rushing streams and perfect atmosphere to a modest man should try to avoid engaging in unseemly bragging."

Speaking of the present European situation Mr. Daugherty said: "It is a good policy for all of us to keep cool and to know that eventually the clouds will roll by and we will be all right. If we should make a little money that formerly, why then we can stand it. We have plenty and must contribute to the feeding of the balance of the world. When the war is over there will be a great boom in business, for European money will come with a rush for investment in our securities. The idea will be impressed on the European mind to never believe that investment is safest in this country."

Daugherty Supporter of Bailey.

In all this bloodshed abroad, we all, without regard to party, have come to offer our aid in the form of money to our government have not plunged us into a war that would have caused us to butcher an inferior people, in the doing of which we would have necessarily lost some of our own."

Mr. Daugherty is a lawyer by profession but has not practiced in several years. He is a warm friend of Colonel J. M. St. Julien, and the two are much together. Mr. Daugherty is one of the large landowners of his state and calls himself a farmer. He was at Gainsville, Va., and spends much of his time promoting the political ambitions of his friend, former Senator Joseph W. Bailey.

Mr. Daugherty was a senator Bailey engaged back to the senate if he wants to do so, as he left the senate to engage in the practice of law.

Former Councilman Drops Dead on Track

S. G. Richardson Expires From Heart Trouble While on His Way Over Town This Morning.

S. G. Richardson, 447 East Eighth street, 71 years old, dropped dead this morning along the railway track between East Sixth and Seventh streets, from heart trouble. The attack came upon him suddenly as he was walking over town.

Richardson was at one time a city councilman and active in civic affairs.

Answers Abatement Suit.

Alleging that he had no knowledge that the premises at 307 Everett street were ever occupied by Marie Fuller and used for immoral purposes, Philip Lovengard, owner of the property, yesterday filed an answer to abatement proceedings started against him, W. J. Beaven, this afternoon that will start on a wedding tour which will include the Puget sound cities. He asks that the suit be dismissed.

Jimmy Gleason Issues Himself Marriage License After Office Employee So Home; Wedding Today.

Jimmy Gleason, warrant clerk in the office of County Clerk Coffey, slipped one over on his fellow clerks yesterday afternoon by issuing to himself a license to wed Miss Rosalie La Franchi, former domestic science teacher in the Griggs, Idaho, high school. At closing time last night, Gleason was behind in his work and Naturalization Clerk Moore remained to help him, that is to all appearances.

As soon as the coast was clear Gleason with Moore went to the marriage license counter and Moore was sworn as a witness. The license was issued in Gleason's handwriting. This morning it was discovered and the secret was out. They were married at noon at the Third Baptist church by Rev. W. J. Beaven. This afternoon they will start on a wedding tour which will include the Puget sound cities. They will be gone for two weeks.
