keep A treasure rich and rare, ill keep himself from trouble free And dodge both fear and care. The trouble with a great many people is that they remember this too late. Reddy Fox is one of these. Reddy is smart and sly and clever in some ways, but he hasn't learned yet to guard his tongue, and half the trouble he gets into is because of that unruly member You see, it is a boastful tongue and an untruthful tongue, and that is the worst combination for making trouble that I know of. It has got him into all kinds of scrapes in the past, and here he was in another all on account of that tongue.

Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had kicked his rosy blankets off and was smiling down on the Great World as he began his daily climb up in the blue, blue The Cheerful Little Sunbeams were already dancing through the Green Forest chasing out the Black shadows, and Reddy knew that it was high time that he was over by the hill where Prickly Porky the Porcupine lives to make his boast good and prove that he dared meet the strange creature which Peter Rabbit and Unc' Billy Possum both claimed to have seen there. With lagging steps he sneaked along from tree to tree, peering out from behind each anxiously, afraid to go on, and still more afraid not to for fear that he would be called organization paying life and sick benefits and taking in both men and women. It has recently organized with 52 members in Hood River, and has two prosperous locals in Portland.

Reinstating Members. The Modern Woodmen of America are reinstating all delinquent members who fell out during the last two years in consequence of dissensions in the order over the rate question. Such suspended members come back without extra cost upon signing a statement that they are in good health.

Organizing New Class. Astoria K. O. T. M. are asking for blank applications. Without an organizer, they are busy hustling. J. W. Sherwood, state commander, will be there shortly, and the Knights want a class of new members to greet him.

Tillamook has a revival among the Knights of the Maccabees, and has start i out to show that they are not dead wood in the temple.

Suggests Modern Methods.

G. N. Farrin, editor of the Oregon Red Man, told the great council at the banquet in the Benson hotel Wednesday night that modern organization methods would have to be adopted by the Red Men in Oregon if it was to keep up with the procession. Men of ability and experience must be sufficiently recompensed to justify them in building up the organization and putting in all their time and energy doing it. He was heartily applauded.

FOREIGN FASHIONS FOR AMERICANS

One of the new basque designs.

By Lillian E. Young.

Among the novel tendencies which appear in the choice of styles offered to the smart woman are an extensive variety of skirts, or, to be more explicit, tunics. They will continue to put a note of fantasy in the toilettes They are made very long and very full, or in a succession of short ruffles pleated, gathered, scalloped, pointed and plain, and in materials that match or do not match the dress. Where there is such a wide choice monotony is not expected to figure. The silhouette is entirely transformed from that of last year, which had such a skimpy look. The difference is that they no longer look skimpy on account of our full tunics,

Now for America!

Paul Poiret, the great French dressmaker, has gone to war, and the seat of fashion has been transferred from Paris to New York City.

The opportunity is here for us to "Americanize America."

The efficiency of American machinery, the resourcefulness of American manufacturers and designers and the skill of our workers are fully equal to those of Europe.

The crops of this country are the largest and most bountiful in all history.

We have wheat, corn, oats, cotton, sugar, fruits, rare wines and important medicinal chemicals in abundance right here in America.

I We manufacture brushes, cutlery, toilet necessities and rubber goods in America and obtain the crude rubber from South America.

I Many of the best oils, perfumes, face powders, soaps and toilet waters are also produced in this country.

The word "imported" has been over-worked and over-estimated.

I Give employment to those who live in America. Pay American wages for the manufacture of American goods and learn what America really can do for you.
