President of Southern Pacific Says Boads Suffer From Too Much Legislation These Days.

William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific system, who is in vice for the people of Oregon. They

First-See Oregon first. Second-Make investment attractive in this state. It is in his second, however, that the people of Oregon will be most inter-

"Everyone realizes," he said at the Portland hotel this morning, "what large room there is for development in Oregon, and that capital is the chief essential of development. Oregon should make her field of investment attractive to the investor. Instead of limiting returns and regulating against investment make it so that investors in other states and countries come to Oregon with their money because they are assured of a liberal return. Those with money will invest where the return is the most promising and Oregon can have all the money she wants if she will give inducements for invest-This is equally true of the other states of the Pacific coast.

Why Ape the East " Why ape the east and do things in an eastern way? Why seize upon all of the 'isms' of that part of the country? The east is developed as much as it can be; Oregon is just crying for development, and so why should she follow the prevailing eastern method to

Mr. Sproule stated that railroad development was practically at a standstill, due to over-regulation and the fact that the roads were not making adequate returns.

"The railroad is the servant of the people," he said. "We are regulated on all sides to a degree of over-regulation. It is not that one commission changes a rate by dictum, but the fact that several commissions make an accumulation of regulation. One ruling is heaped upon another.

"The earnings of the railroads have been cut millions of dollars. Where the roads make only operating and upkeep expenses there can be no expan-sion. In Oregon my road is giving the people good service and we are making improvements because we have confidence in this state. Extensions branch lines are what the state needs, however. ment in simply carrying freights along a stretch of main line, but it is the lit-tle lines that go back into the country that feed the main line, which stand for real development.

Oregon Field Ample for Big of traveling elsewhere," he said. "It is a great and wonderful state, full of diversified scenery and natural beauty.

The climate to me is particularly pleasing, especially down in the Willamette valley. It is very similar to the British climate and as I was born in Ireland perhaps this has something to do with its attractiveness."

Mr. Sproule is in Portland on one of his regular tours of inspection of the Southern Pacific branches in Oregon. Yesterday he had a conference with Robert E. Strahorn, president of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern rail-way, which is controlled by the South-ern Pacific. It is expected that with the improvement of financial conditions this road will extend its electrification from New Era to Salem, making a continuous line from Portland to the state capital.

Accompanying Mr. Sproule is T. O. Edwards, auditor for the Southern Pacific at San Francisco. They will return to California by easy stages within a few days.

So, we wish to clean these up quickly at prices that will bring prompt action and clean them up this week.
