

FIRST COLLEGE GAME OF SEASON TOMORROW ON MULTNOMAH FIELD

Oregon and Washington
State Will Show Speed
Pitted Against Beef.

GAME STARTS 2:30 P. M.

Both Eleveners Are Said to Be in Good Condition for Fray and Both Coaches Lack Confidence.

The football contest tomorrow afternoon on Multnomah field—the first intercollegiate game to be played here this season—between the University of Oregon and Washington State college teams, will be a battle of weight against speed. The Washington starters have an exceptionally fast team this season, but it is very light, according to information received from the Pullman campus.

Coach Hugo Bezdek is relying on his heavy line, which is composed of Powrie, Philbin, Snyder, Risley, Cook, Beckett and Weist, to aid a great deal in bringing victory to the Eugene institution.

Coach Bezdek is not counting the game won because he has a heavy line and an experienced back field, but he has fears of a defeat at the hands of the speedy back field players of the inland empire team. Fullback Dietz and Halfback Satterthwaite are two players the Lemon and Yellow team is afraid of and there is a reason for it. Dietz showed the Portland football fans a lot of speed last season when he was playing end, and reports from Pullman state that he is a wizard in the back field.

Banks will play the other halfback position and either Bernard or Smith will call the signals. Bernard is a Missourian and a great deal is expected of him in tomorrow's battle.

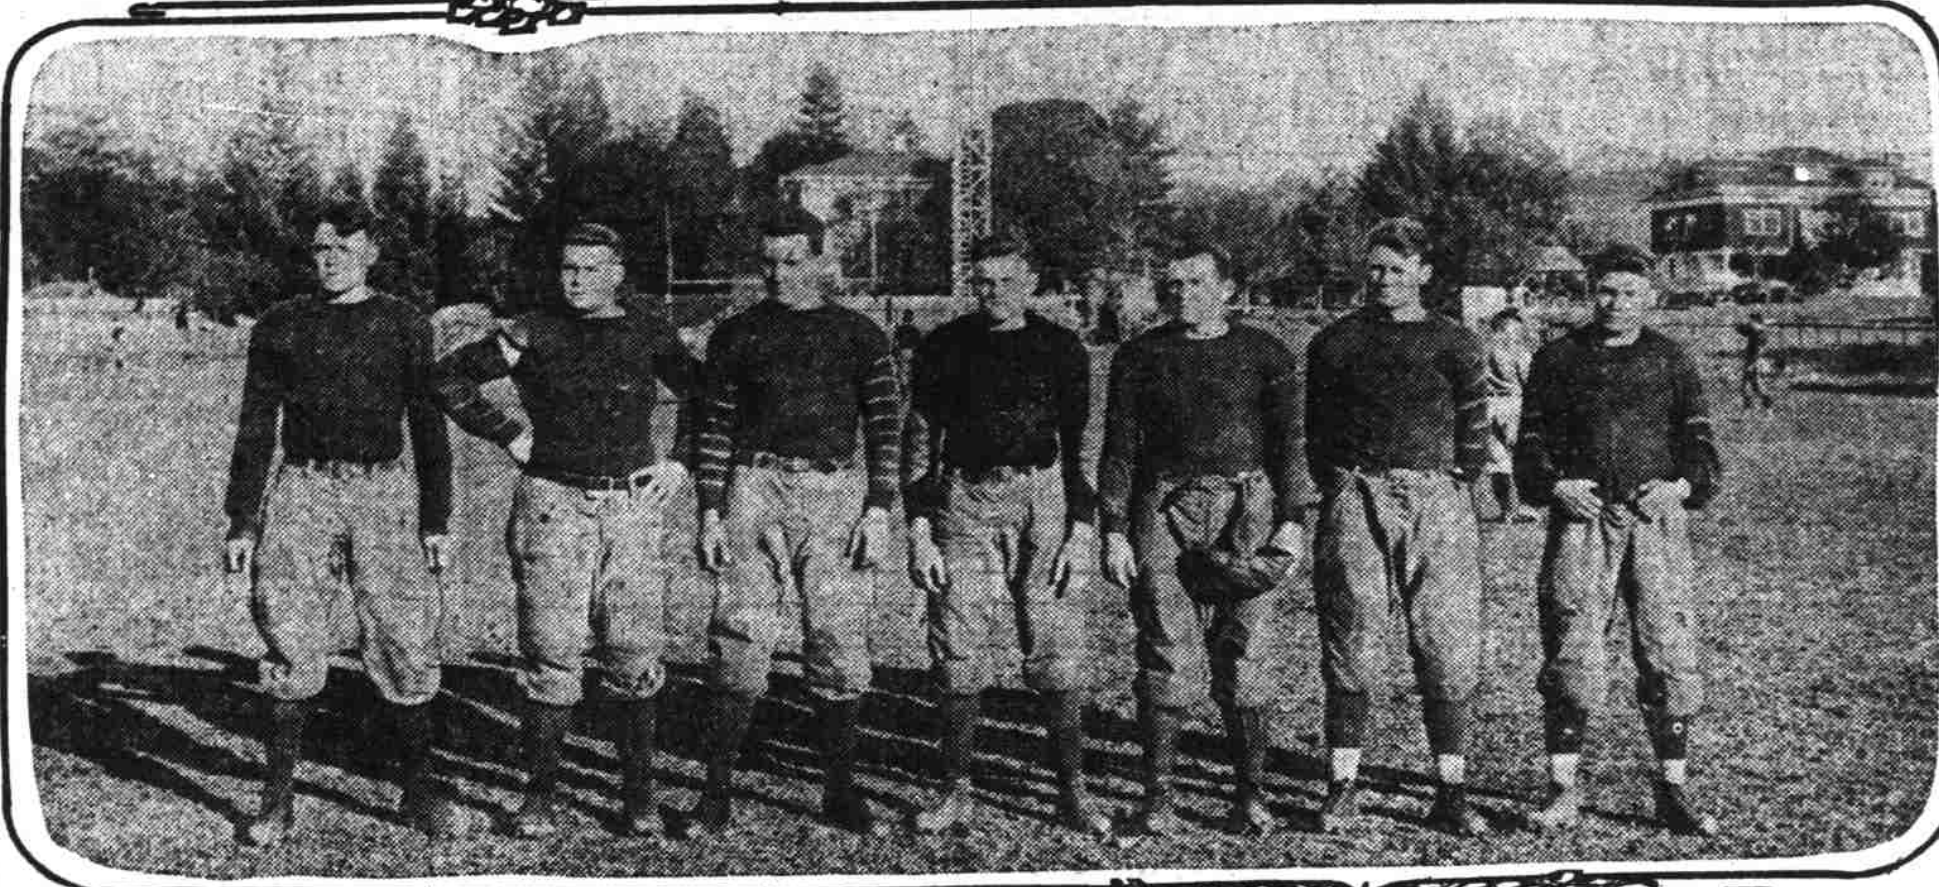

Zimmerman and Heg will play the wing positions for Bender and Appquist and Alvord will be in the tackle positions. Clark, who played on the Washington State college team a couple of seasons ago will play center. In case any of Bender's back field stars are hurt, it is likely that Clark will be put behind the line as he used to play fullback. He is the heaviest man on the team.

The Washington starters will bring 18 players to Portland with them and are extremely anxious for a victory. The Washington State college team will arrive here this afternoon and Hugo Bezdek will bring his players here tomorrow morning. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

TWENTY-FIVE OREGON PLAYERS ARE COMING TO PLAY WITH W. S. C.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Or., Oct. 16.—Twenty-five Oregon football men, Coach Bezdek and Athletic Director Hayward, left Eugene this morning for Portland to play Bender's W. S. C. team on Multnomah field tomorrow. Oregon's team is in the pink of condition and over-confident. The defeat of W. S. C. by Montana and the easy victory of Oregon over Archie Hahn's eleven last Saturday have given Oregon an assurance which the coaches have worked all week to overcome. The workouts have been light this week because of warm weather.

"This under dog stuff from Washington is a myth," said Bezdek last night. "Bender has a team that will weigh 180 to 185 pounds instead of 165 as the news accounts would lead us to believe and from what I've been able to discover they are fast. There are reasons for that Montana defeat."

Last Saturday's exhibition proved that Bezdek is far from having a "right side" was full of diagonal holes which the Whitmans' left tackle got through time after time. The holes were caused by the failure of one or two of the lemon-yellow linemen to keep up to the pace set by Sam Cook.

Oregon needs a punter. Beside the 55 yard spirals of Fenton, Beckett's 165 as the news accounts would lead us to believe and from what I've been able to discover they are fast. There are reasons for that Montana defeat."

MIL SAYLOR IS POOR FIGHTER; HYLAND O. K'D

Main Event Is Over the 20
Round Route and Painfully
Slow

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—Local fight fans who looked over Milburn Saylor's work in his 20 round bout last night at Daly City with Eddie Moy were convinced that if Saylor ever defeated Freddie Welsh, as he claims, Welsh must have been asleep, blindfolded and bound hand and foot. Saylor went 20 extremely slow rounds with Moy to a draw. If he has anything that entitled him to rate with first string lightweights he kept it carefully concealed.

Saylor's attack consists mainly of a roundhouse swing and a right uppercut. He missed the swing about nine times out of ten, and was never sure where his uppercut was going. He landed the swing several times on the point of Moy's chin, but if it had any force back of it, Moy is a bear for punishment. He was not in distress at any time. Moy, too, was absolutely lacking in any kind of a punch. The bout was one of the poorest staged at Daly City in years.

Red Watson stopped Dick Hyland in the thirteenth round of a scheduled 20 round bout. In the twelfth Watson upset the veteran with a right cross to the jaw the bell saving him from a knockout. Hyland came up tired and weak for the thirteenth, and after Watson had landed hard left and right to Dick's head, he begged in vain for Referee Jim Coffroth to stop the bout. Watson then sailed in again and put Hyland down and out. Griffin then called a halt. Watson picked up his fallen adversary and carried him to his corner.

Ray Olmstead and Jim Horner boxed four rounds to a draw in the only preliminary bout of the evening.

GOLFING HINTS

By "Straight Drive." Annoying are players who win merited unpopularity on account of the exasperating deliberation with which they play the game. The man who takes several practice swings before every shot and the fellow who examines every blade of grass along the line of a putt are the leading lights. Then again the men who think that the putting green upon which all have boled out is the best place in the world to add up cards and settle possible disputes is an offender. No one objects to anyone taking reasonable time, but the man who regularly wastes the time of many others is justly unpopular.

A peculiar thing about the small-like golfers is that they generally manage to get away early in the day, and thus manage to slow down the play of all others on the course for hours. I sincerely believe that undue slowness is more conducive to bad golf than too much haste.

SEALS LOSE TO TIGERS

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 16.—The Venice Tigers easily defeated the San Francisco Seals yesterday by the score of 7 to 2. Hogan's players secured 18 hits off the delivery of "Spider" Baum.

THE WATER CURE.

Looney Balbach bothered the life out of Snap until it consented to print his poetical opinion of the P. A. S. A. water polo team. If there's to be any punning, please remember it was Looney who wrote it. This is it: Oh, here's to that great polo team, From Creasy down to Roller, Who harbors quite the queerest dream Within the system solar; They must have quaffed some magic drink.

Or sniffed some sweet aroma; What else but these would make them think That they could beat Multnomah?

YES, THERE WAS SUCH A FELLOW. Dear Snap: When you're passing around the comp stuff about Bill James, don't forget that Ovis Overall pitched a two-hit game against Detroit a few years ago. Yours in sport, R. B. STATIS TITIAN.

American Boxers Back From Trip

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—Three more American boxers have returned from Australia, and are seeking matches in San Francisco. They are Eddie McGorty, the middleweight of Oshkosh, Wis., and Joe Shugrue and Bobby Moore, New York lightweights.

McGorty plans to leave tomorrow for his home, but said he would like to return here and meet the winner of the Jimmy Clabby-George Chip bout. McGorty declared that he engaged in eight bouts in Australia, and won seven of them, suffering his only setback on a foul to Clabby. Shugrue and Moore will remain in San Francisco in the hope of getting on in the local game.

They call him "a good scout." He's popular—cheerful, inspiring to have around. He LOOKS comfortable, happy, prosperous.

IT'S HIS CLOTHES!—Mostly clothes create appearance and appearance makes impression, whether men or women. It's a big, long stride toward success to be noticed for taste and neatness when a person glances at you.

CHERRY'S SUITS are handomely tailored—the products of the cleverest experts in the country. They're all of standard brands—infinitely more desirable than suits made to measure by tailors of indifferent skill. Men by the hundreds depend upon CHERRY'S every season for their clothes.

Fall and winter styles are tremendously interesting to see.

By Hal Sheridan.

New York, Oct. 16.—Reports sent out to various parts of the country that Battling Levinsky bested Gunboat Smith in their recent 10 round battle here are not borne out by the accounts of the contest printed in New York newspapers. In his article on the fight, Sporting Editor Bob Edgeron of the Evening World said:

"It wasn't Smith's fault that the bout was the flattest most tiresome affair between heavyweights ever pulled on a perspiring public. Neither was it any fault of the promoters. The whole trouble was that Levinsky was scared half out of his wits in the first round."

"Gunboat Smith was more than willing—he was actually anxious to mingle with Mr. Levinsky and rattle his china and slap him in the slats. The unwillingness was all on Mr. Levinsky's part, and it was such a consistent unwillingness that he was able to stall, to hug and hold and dance uselessly and feint and jump away until the 10 rounds were over. For which he received great applause from his following. This same following, by the way, hissed vigorously when Mr. Smith managed to untangle his long arms from Levinsky's and clip him one before he could get out of range."

"At rare intervals Levinsky attacked, jabbing rapidly on reaching for Smith's body with a swinging right, but he was so anxious to keep out of range that nine blows out of ten fell short.

"Many of the spectators thought the affair was a frame-up. To me it looked about as described above. Smith did whatever fighting was done—which wasn't a great deal—and held his lead through all the 10 rounds. He landed many more blows than Levinsky—at least two for one. Levinsky started a theatrical sort of rally in the tenth, flinging himself chest to chest against the gunner, where neither man could possibly strike an effective blow, and tapping rapidly with both hands."
