THE WAYS OF THRIFT

Honest Value in Fruit.

By O. K. White, Field Representative, Michigan Agricultural College.
(Copyrighted, 1914, American Society for Thrift.)

(Note—In buying apples know what you want and get what you ask for.)

We have appreciated for a number of the fruit growers and produce buyers who buy and pack fruit, especially apples, have not been grading and packing in a way that would bring satisfaction to the consumer and retailer or republication and best profits to the grower. Much of this condition has been due to the fact that there has been no standard by which fruit might be graded and packed. Every person was like own judge, consequently unless the form the part of these people. But we are firmly convinced that a sandard by which fruit might be graded and packed. Every person was like own judge, consequently unless the form the packed in closed packages should be getting, what the package appeared to contain, what the package appeared to a contain, what the package appeared to contain, which these compulsory methods of marking.

With this fundamental idea in mind, I have held a large number of grading and packing Honest Value in Fruit. ! facts were discussed, and an effort

Painful injuries about the face, with hall at 8 o'clock tonight. All memprobably a broken nose, were received bers are urged to attend. by Dr. C. E. Gard of 1904 East Yamhill street, late last evening when, in endeavoring to stop a team from stepping into an unlighted and unprotected sewer trench that stretched across the street in front of his home, he dropped into the excavation himself. Dr. and Mrs. Gard had just retired for the night when a team was heard coming up the street. There are no arc lights nearby, Mrs. Gard asserted today, and the sewer trench, seven or eight feet deep and nearly a yard wide extended directly across the street. 7.00 She went to the door and called and the driver of the team stopped within two feet of the opening. Then Dr. Gard went to tell the driver of his danger and to assist him in turning around when, in the darkness, he stumbled into the trench himself.
