

BRIDE WON'T BELIEVE HER HUSBAND KILLED WEALTHY L. A. WOMAN

Denies He Could Have Murdered to Get Money for His Honey-moon.

CONFESSION IS ALLEGED

Mrs. Thelma Tugwell Insists She Paid for Wedding Trip With Her Own Savings; She Isn't Worried.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, Oct. 21.—Unbounded faith in her husband's innocence, despite his alleged confession, was voiced here today by Mrs. Thelma Tugwell, the seven weeks' bride of Percy Tugwell, under arrest in Los Angeles on a charge of murdering Mrs. E. B. A. Kennedy on the night of September 1. Mrs. Tugwell slept late today, following a musical given last night at her step-father's home here.

"Why should I worry?" she asked. "I know my husband is innocent, and I firmly believe he will be exonerated in a week or two—three weeks at the most."
On the evening that Mrs. Kennedy died, my husband left his father's home in Los Angeles shortly after dinner, explaining he was going to a garage to say good-bye to the boys there, as he intended to get married September 4. The next day we were to leave for San Francisco on the steamship House City. And we carried out this program to the letter.

"My husband returned home shortly after 9 o'clock. He was in high good humor, because the men at the garage would not believe that he was going to be married. But we fooled 'em. Percy was not perturbed. If he had killed Mrs. Kennedy he certainly would have shown in his demeanor that he had been through some excitement. Both his father and mother were at home when he returned from the garage. The men at the garage, too, will verify this statement.

"It's very certain to me that Percy could not have taken the long ride to Mrs. Kennedy's home, murdered her and returned within the short time that he was away. His confession, if he made one, is ridiculous. But the most ridiculous story is the one that my husband financed our honeymoon. It was said that he paid for the trip with proceeds from the jewelry stolen from the murdered woman.

"As a matter of fact, my husband was 'broke.' I financed the trip with $50, my savings from my own work. Percy had nothing. Since coming up here with my husband we have lived with my step-father and mother, while Percy looked vainly for a job."

Salem, Or., Oct. 21.—The school enrollment of Salem has increased from 2715 last year to 2851, according to Superintendent Elliott, and some difficulty is found in taking care of all of them.
Sixty per cent of the day laborers answering the circular letter, asking for data, sent out by Labor Commissioner Hoff, are married, according to the report of the commissioner, now in course of preparation. All of the

The steady increase in bills at each session of the state legislature is shown by figures prepared by Secretary of State Oloott in answer to a letter from the joint special committee on legislative procedure of Massachusetts. The following is the record of the last three sessions: 1909, house, 365; senate, 262; total, 627. 1911, house, 418; senate, 307; total, 725. 1913, house, 623; senate, 339; total, 971.

Oh, Yes! He Voted for Pudd'nhead

Colonel Harvey Tells a New Mark Twain Story at Recent Peace Meeting With the President.

Washington, Oct. 21.—There are those who would have given a pretty sum to have been within hearing distance while Colonel George Harvey, the brilliant editor of the North American Review, and President Wilson were renewing old friendships and baring the hatchet on "Peace" Sunday. It will be recalled that there was a "falling out" between the president and Colonel Harvey shortly after the Baltimore convention and the two "didn't speak as they passed by." Mutual friends, however, got busy and on Peace Sunday the hatchet-burying scene was pulled off at the White House.

While official etiquette forbids the divulgence of presidential conversations, a little bird is responsible for this recital of what happened.
Mark Twain's name came up in some connection with Colonel Harvey, remarked casually that there were persons still in existence who never had heard of the great humorist.
The president found this almost incredible.
"Oh, yes," the colonel continued, "only yesterday here in Washington I met such an one. He was an office seeker. He declared positively that he never had heard of Mark Twain."
"I asked him about Tom Sawyer. No, he never had heard of him, either. Nor Huck Finn? No, never. Nor Pudd'nhead Wilson? 'Oh, Lord, yes,' he ejaculated. 'I voted for him!'"
And the president's roar of delight did not diminish in the least when the colonel continued softly, "and," he added, wistfully, "that's all the good it done me."

RUSSIANS DENY THAT ILL-FEELING EXISTS AGAINST THE ENGLISH

Foreign Minister Sazonoff Makes Formal Statement Repudiating Sentiment.

SOME FEAR OPEN BREAK

Statement Shows That There Must Be Considerable Evidence of Anti-British Feeling in Russia.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Stockholm, Oct. 21.—That Foreign Minister Sazonoff of Russia should consider it necessary to come out in a formal statement repudiating the sentiments of those of the czar's subjects who sympathize with Germany rather than with Great Britain in the present war, was commented on here today as suggesting that there must be considerable of this sort of feeling among the Slavs.
The best informed among the British, who, by the way, are friendly to the British and very fearful of the Russians, have generally thought, all along, that the war must end up with ill feeling, if nothing worse, between the two nations, in the event of victory by the allies.
Their view is that it is the British policy to oppose, in every possible way, any European continental power which becomes strong enough to be a potential source of danger. If the allies win, it is argued that Russia will become immediately an even greater menace to the predominance of British prestige than Germany has ever been. The prediction is consequently made that the British will do all they can to prevent the czar from profiting by victory, the czar is deemed certain to resent this, and an Anglo-Russian rupture is looked for as the sequel.

The suggestion is made that Foreign Minister Sazonoff is as well aware of this as anyone, but does not consider the time ripe yet for talking about it.

Sazonoff was himself authority for the statement that Russian critics of the British were accusing the latter of getting other countries to do their fighting, and prophesying an early break between the czar and King George. He denied, however, that this view was responsible for the great mass of Russian public opinion, attributing it instead to a small group of reactionaries.

ALLEGED POSTOFFICE ROBBER WAS HIDING UNDER AN OLD BED

James Mannon, Son of Rich Rancher of Northern Idaho, Accused of Theft.

(Special to The Journal.)
Spokane, Wash., Oct. 21.—Hidden under the bed with $800 he is alleged to have stolen from the J. K. Hood store and the postoffice at Fernwood, Idaho, James Mannon Jr., son of James Mannon, one of the most wealthy of northern Idaho ranchers, was captured early last night and is now in St. Maries jail, pending prosecution by the postoffice authorities.

Mannon, it is alleged, entered the Hood store, housing also the postoffice, unnoticed by Hood, just before the latter locked up for dinner. Mrs. Hood, who had seen the man enter from her residence nearby, told her husband. Investigation by Hood and a constable revealed that the money was missing from the store and that the postoffice receipts were also missing.
Further search revealed Mannon under an old bed at the rear of the building.

People's Chance to Win Big Victory

William Hanley's Election Will Be Their Own Triumph

WHY NOT CHOOSE A FREE MAN?

By Voting for a Candidate Unsupported by Newspaper Monopolies, Powerful Interests and Old-Line Political Machines, Oregon System Will Reach a Practical Fulfillment—Hanley's Views on the Tariff Question and His Adoption of the Progressive Party's Constructive Solution Which Will Settle It Permanently and Without Continually Disturbing Business.

BY CLARKE LETTER.

What will the voters of the state, the men and women of Oregon, have won when they have elected William Hanley United States senator from Oregon?

They will have won a great people's victory. They will have elected THEIR OWN MAN United States senator.

A FREE MAN, not supported by newspaper monopolies, not supported by selfish, private, financial interests, not supported by selfish political machines and greedy old-line, standpat, spoils-system loving warhorses.

The election of William Hanley will be truly a logical working out of the Oregon system, its final and complete triumph, a practical fulfillment of the dreams and ideals of its founders and supporters. That a free man should start out without political machinery and win out, by the people's help, on his own merits and the strength of a constructive platform for the development of his state and the promotion of the prosperity and happiness of its people, would be a triumph indeed.

His election would be a people's victory that would effectually and finally check the power of rival political machines and rival newspaper monopolies, to distate to the people their political opinion, to hold private and secret assemblies in defiance of the direct primary, and to put up the candidates for the people to vote for.

A FREE MAN!
THINK WHAT THAT WOULD MEAN FOR OREGON!
To elect a man with a definite, constructive program of development for Oregon, who would think Oregon, talk Oregon, and work for Oregon.

Think what it would mean to the Willamette valley if it were aided in the development of its lands by drainage, by lending postal savings banks deposits direct to the farmer at 4 per cent per annum interest, and by a government system of financing the farmer cheaply.

Think what it would mean to the people if the arid lands of the interior were irrigated, of the happy homes that would be created.

Think what it would mean to Portland if the 36,000,000 acres of land held by Uncle Sam in Oregon (out of a total of 61,000,000 acres) were unbottled and put to beneficial use.

Think what it would mean to the people if the water power of the state—the liquid dollars now running to waste—were turned into electricity to do the farmer's work and his wife's, too, to run our factories, to light our farm houses and barns, our towns and cities, to pump water to irrigate our farms, to run our trains.

Think what it would mean if the forests of Oregon, now locked up in federal ownership, were made the basis of credit whereby federal money could be raised to build good roads.

ALL THESE ARE MR. HANLEY'S CONSTRUCTIVE IDEAS, A PART OF HIS PLATFORM.

Think of the speed with which the problem of the unemployed would vanish if these great public works were started, which need to be started and which must be if this state is ever to become populous and have a permanent prosperity.

THINK OF THE CITY PORTLAND WOULD BE WITH A DEVELOPED STATE BACK OF IT, INSTEAD OF SPARSELY SETTLED RURAL COMMUNITIES.

Talk of your full dinner pails; isn't this a better program, which aims for happy homes, the creation of new wealth for the people, that gives a hopeful outlook to the struggling, that would quicken the hives of industry and commerce and stimulate production?

TALK OF THE TARIFF. Mr. Hanley believes in protecting the products of Oregon farms and Oregon labor, but isn't the tariff rather a remote issue compared with the prosperity of the people and the development of Oregon?

Mr. Hanley, as the Progressive nominee, will support the plank of the Progressive party on the tariff question, which declares for a non-partisan and permanent tariff commission (like the Interstate Commerce Commission), which will take the whole tariff question out of the log-rolling of congress, settle tariff issues permanently without disturbing business conditions throughout the entire United States, and free congress from the influence of the corrupt and vicious lobbies of the trusts.

ISN'T THIS A STATESMAN-LIKE VIEW TO TAKE? DOESN'T IT APPEAL TO THE BUSINESS MAN, THE FARMER AND THE LABORER?

On the tariff question, as on all others, all you have to do to find out how Mr. Hanley stands is to ask yourself, "How will it affect the interests of Oregon?" Mr. Hanley will be found fighting firmly and stoutly for Oregon.

AND HE IS SOME FIGHTER, TOO.
