BY THORNTON W. BURGESS

Old Man Coyote Does a Little Planning.

Old Man Coyote had a very good reason for not digging up all of Farmer Brown's traps after he found them. He was about to dig them up just to show Farmer Brown's boy how little he was afraid of any traps that he might set, when an idea came to him that made him grin. A sly, crafty grin it was. Old Man Coyote was still grinning as he sat watching jolly, round, red Mr. Sun drop slowly behind the Purple Hills and Old Mother West Wind follow him, taking her children, the Merry Little Breezes, with her big bag.

So very patiently all night long old man coyote waited not far from Farmer Brown's dooryard. my tracks. And if he does— Old Man Coyote did not finish, but there was a wicked twinkle in the eye he cooked up at the moon. It was very plain that Old Man Coyote had a dark deep plan that concerned Bowser the Hound and Farmer Brown's boy.

Now, patience is a virtue when it is in a good cause. Patience is one of the things Old Man Coyote had learned best. I am afraid it is not always a virtue in his case, but anyway, there is no one who can be more patient to get what he wants. So all the night long he lay in the grass waiting for the breaking of the new day, and not once by any sign did he show that the night seemed long. So still he lay that Hoity the Owl passed over his head twice so close that his great soundless wings almost brushed Old Man Coyote's head, and yet Hoity did not see him.

But patience, if persisted in long enough, brings its own reward, and once by any sign did he show that the night seemed long. So still he lay that Hoity the Owl passed over his head twice so close that his great soundless wings almost brushed Old Man Coyote's head, and yet Hoity did not see him.

THEATRICAL NEWS

Ethel Barrymore Makes Hit in "The Nightingale" at Columbia.

Element of Romance Predominates.
Ethel Barrymore, actress; Augustus Thomas, playwright; the All-Star Feature company, producers, have combined to make a feature of unusual interest in "The Nightingale" which is the big offering at the Columbia. The story concerns a young foreign girl with a wonderful voice, which is discovered by a man of wealth who is singing on the street with her father and his hand organ. Later she goes to Paris and wins fame over night, only to throw it away and subsequent regain it permanently in New York. The element of romance is really the largest thing in the picture, and the entire latter portion of it is given over to showing Miss Barrymore as a happy wife and mother. She is altogether lovely, and a more charming personality has never made itself felt on the screen. Chief in the excellent cast selected to support Miss Barrymore are Conway Tearle, William Courtleigh, Jr., Frank Andrews, Mario Majeroni, Phillip Hahn and Master Bobby Stewart. The handling of the "Aida" grand opera scenes is especially worthy of note.

New Star in Filmdom.
Mary Pickford will do well to look to her laurels, for a viewing of "Wildflower" at the Star indicates that she is likely to have a strong rival in Marguerite Clark, the dainty and diminutive actress, who is making her screen bow in this Famous Players' production. A considerable portion of the picture takes place in the open, with daisy fields, rolling hills, trees and a picturesque stream.

A considerable portion of the picture takes place in the open, with daisy fields, rolling hills, trees and a picturesque stream. The story really does not matter much. It is rather the peg on which to hang a great many delightful scenes, with Miss Clark always the center of attraction.

whether she is romping through the fields, playing with her doll, falling in love or swishing around as "lady" in her first long dress. She is an elfish little comedienne, who is certainly a welcome addition to filmdom. She is splendidly supported by Harold Lockwood and James Cooley.

Sunset Has Good Bill.
There is a marked improvement in the quality of the Sunset's bill. The program is headed by a three reel Edison feature, "The Long Way," a picturization of the novel of the same name. In the leading roles are beautiful Miriam Nesbitt, Mabel Trunnella, Marc MacDermott and Duncan Mc-

Rae. It is the story of two sisters and their lovers and the sacrifice which one sister makes for the other. The picture is beautifully done throughout. A Domino feature of strongly religious type is "The Power of the Angels." Its settings are beautiful and picturesque. A good comedy comes hand in hand in "Harold's Troupe." The scenario is the work of Edgar Allen Wolff, the prolific vaudeville sketch writer, and in the leading roles is Louis Simon, who was seen at the Orpheum last winter. The film is the work of the Royal and has a clever beginning and ending. Another comedy is "Vitagrap." "Josie's Legacy." Local views and the school football lineup complete the bill.

Why Cooks Leave Home.
Salem, Or., Oct. 22.—The early breakfast and the late evening meal are given as the cause of much of the dislike for housework by employers reporting to Labor Commissioner Hoff the information being used in his annual report, now being prepared. Simplicity the Keynote of Player Piano Perfection

No longer is personal skill the dominant factor in the production of GOOD music with the player piano. No longer is it necessary to follow intricate and complex lines on music sheets. No longer need one confine his whole attention to the manipulation of levers and buttons in order to produce even moderately satisfactory musical results.

The Angelus Player Pianos

by their wonderful simplicity of construction and control remove the one great obstacle, complication, and open wide the doors to perfect music in every home.

THE TOUCH OF ONE FINGER CONTROLS THE ANGELUS— just the index finger of the right hand, resting on the PHRASING LEVER (an exclusive Angelus patent), gives a control so simple, so perfect, that you will marvel at the result and the ease with which it is attained.

The "MEL-O-DANT" (patented) separates melody and harmony just as in hand playing, making manipulation of levers and buttons unnecessary and producing results possible only to the Angelus.

The DIAPHRAGM PNEUMATICS, the self opening and closing pedals, are other exclusive Angelus features. There are many more.

Measured by their quality, Angelus products are very moderately priced. Your old piano in exchange. Balance on easy payments.
