New York, Oct. 26 .- The German offensive was progressing today on the west side of the Yser, but at the same time the kaiser has been compelled to give ground along the coast. Close to the sea the bombardment from the British warships offshore evidently was too hot to be endured and to escape it the Teutonic forces had withdrawn into the Belgian interior, whence they were still push-

Loss of control along the coast constituted a serious handicap to them, however, since the sea had previously protected them effectually against a flanking movement by the allies in that quarter. The recall election presents to Portland a civic crists, declared Rev. A. L. Hutchison in his sermon yesterday morning at the Third Presbyterian ered. church. In part, he said: From the days of Aristotle to the present, philosophers, poets and states-men have looked upon the great city as a menace to national government, because it is the natural habitat of the political boss and ring rule. Portland has felt this infuence to some extent in the past, but she has broken the grip of the evil through the aid of the

If the mayor is honest—and the recallers seem to concede this—he has had no official relation to an insurance company and relation to an insurance company, and has declined even to discuss policy rates because he is out of the business I am assured that during the year and a third of the commission govern-ment, the commissioners have been in perfect harmony in practically every final action touching the administra-

From the statement of Bank President Mills, published recently, the very opposite of this charge is true. Business has been improving for twelve months. It was organized, he said, October 26, 1892, in a building on Union avenue. The first church building was erected at East Tenth and Weidler streets and the church successfully weathered the financial storm of 1893, although it was in debt. The present church property, at Seventeenth and Schuyler streets, which was recently dedicated, is valued at $150,000.

After the sermon, Dr. Marcotte baptised two infants and received 30 new members into the church. The total membership of the church now, Dr. Marcotte asserted, is 665.
