

SHERIFF WORD'S LAW ENFORCEMENT POLICY IS WARMLY ENDORSED

Men and Women of Sunnyside Cheer Democratic Candidate to the Echo.

OFFICIAL ACTS RECALLED

Incumbent Answers Charge That He Has Been Grandstanding During Term of Office.

Men and women of Sunnyside like the Tom Word style of sheriff. He is the kind of a sheriff who forces the law without favor, and last night, when he told 300 people at the Sunnyside schoolhouse that if he is reelected he will continue to enforce the laws as vigorously as he has done in the past, they whooped for him until the schoolhouse rang from basement to garret.

"I'm going to keep every roadhouse in the county closed," he promised, "not only for the sake of your boys and girls, but for my boys and girls as well."

Reads From Circular

He read from a circular which he said had been gotten out by A. G. Hurlburt, Joe Keller and D. D. Jackson, who was discharged from the county poor farm. He said if T. M. Hurlburt, his opponent, is elected, that Keller will be chief deputy sheriff.

"As long as you keep me in office," he declared, "I will enforce the law."

He read the inference in the circular that he had been "grandstanding."

"There has been no grandstanding during my term of office," he said. "I've enforced the law as closely as I can. I've arrested Jim Russell 52 times for gambling. He persisted in violating the law. I couldn't get a conviction, but I made him quit."

"I see they are advertising Mr. Hurlburt's nice wife and babies. They have their picture in the Oregonian. The paper isn't big enough to print a picture of my family. There are 16 in my family—five grandchildren. Can you beat it?"

"I have more to work for than anybody—more reason to see that the laws are enforced, more reason to see that vice is run out of the country, than anybody. But don't believe in looking after only my own children. I want to protect my neighbor's children."

"And I want to tell you now that if Portland votes dry, I will keep it dry."

Again the audience cheered and applauded until the building rang.

"If you want the law enforced, elect me; but if you don't want the law enforced, don't elect me," he said.

Lawyers Ask for Stay of Judgment

Motion Filed Says Attorneys in Washington Are Petitioning for a New Trial.

Attorneys for Max G. Cohen, former Portland lawyer and acting municipal judge, under conviction for causing a witness to commit perjury in a white slavery case and under sentence of two years in the McNeil Island penitentiary, filed a motion in federal court this morning asking an arrest of the judgment.

The action is taken in anticipation of the arrival of the mandate of the United States supreme court, in which that court refused to hear the appeal of the case from the appellate court at San Francisco.

When the mandate arrives here, it automatically orders a sentence to start. To avoid this the motion to arrest judgment was filed.

The motion asserts that attorneys for Cohen in Washington are filing a motion for a rehearing of the supreme court's recent action. Cohen is now represented by ex-United States Senator Bailey of Texas.

Should Judge Gilman overrule the arresting motion, then Cohen will at once be imprisoned. Cohen arrived in Portland Sunday from New York, and will surrender himself immediately when commitment is ordered.

MEMBERS ASKED TO VOTE

Every member of the Rotary club was called upon by the president, J. C. English, to vote before the 10 o'clock and to give employees special opportunity to vote. C. A. Cochrane, of the O-W-R & N legal department, the chief speaker, discussed measures to be voted on, and the president of the individual voter is as great as that of the individual legislator.

Benjamin C. Sheldon of Medford, by special invitation, spoke affirmatively on the Ashland normal school measure.

OFFICIAL Announced by General Staff at Petrograd.

"Fighting is in progress in the vicinity of Bzow and a battle front has also developed along a line from Bzow and Bialobraz to the mouth of the River Bzanka."

The struggle has been going on uninterruptedly since Saturday. The Russians have frequently come to close quarters with the Germans, engaging them with the bayonet. The Kaiser's losses have been extremely heavy.

"The Russians have occupied the Nemylowski forest, southeast of Bzow, capturing several guns and many prisoners. Fighting continues in the forest between Bzow and Koznic."

"At Bzawa much of the fighting was in the street, hand to hand. The Germans were driven out so precipitately that they were obliged to abandon several machine guns and all their dead and wounded."

"From prisoners it has been learned that the Kaiser's soldiers were fully disappointed and exasperated at their failure to capture Warsaw, which they had supposed was actually within their grasp."

"German attempts to resume the offensive in East Prussia have all failed. In Galicia the Russians are still advancing today in the region of Sambor, where they captured 20 guns and many prisoners."

"The entire valley of the Sprynia river is strewn with Austrian corpses. At least 5000 have fallen in the latest fighting in that area."

FRENCH Issued by War Office at Bordeaux.

"The French offensive in the vicinity of Nancy has driven the Germans across the frontier in the direction of Metz."

"Reports that the Germans are crumbling in the fight between Verdun and Metz. On the contrary, if the French maintain their advantage in the Nancy region, the Germans will be obliged to evacuate the fortifications in the vicinity of St. Mihiel and abandon the west bank of the Meuse or risk being trapped and captured."

"The battle in the north goes on continually, raging with especial vigor between the lower reaches of the Yser and the region of Lens. Along this part of the front the Allies have not gained an inch, while they have continued to make progress in the region between Ypres and Boulers."

"In the region of Soissons and Berry-au-Bac the Allies have not turned to our advantage, and we have destroyed several German batteries."

"In the Russian campaign, on the right bank of the San and south of Przemyel, the Russian offensive has become accentuated."

AUSTRIAN Issued by the war office at Vienna.

"The Austrian offensive in the vicinity of the Carpathians has compelled the Russians to draw heavily on their reinforcements."

"In middle Galicia the battle is still raging and the Austrians are progressing successfully. They are also successful along the lower San and southeast of Przemyel."

"The fighting line extends almost continuously from Stryl and Sambor to the eastward toward Przemyel, thence along the San to an almost straight line northward to Plotak."

WAR SUMMARY BY J. W. T. MASON Former London Correspondent for the United Press.

New York, Oct. 27.—Excepting only the struggle which the Germans have attempted to hack their way to Paris last August, the fighting in western Belgium today was the most desperate thus far in the European war.

There seemed no strategic reason for so mighty a German effort to gain control of the channel and North Sea coast. No other attack can be made on the British Isles either from Belgium or France, so long as King George's fleet remains, and if it should be destroyed, the British would be at Germany's mercy in any event, since they are not self-sustaining from the standpoint of food supplies, and these supplies would cease automatically.

Certainly, Zeppelin raid of England cannot be behind the Kaiser's desire to reach the coast, for Zeppelin Stations in the interior would be more advanced than any situated than on the sea on account of their added security.

As there seems nothing to be achieved by the Germans from a conquest of the coast, it is interesting to note that the Kaiser's own plan for a campaign of operations or in a campaign on the surface of the ocean, so there appears to be no advantage the possession of the coast would give them in their activities under water. The purpose of their submarine attacks is solely to destroy the allies' ships and their base on the German coast is nearer to the Franco-Belgian sea front.

At most, a Teutonic occupation of Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne would compel the British to lengthen their lines of communication by shipping reinforcements and supplies farther than they are required to ship them at present.

This is, however, one very important reason why the Germans should think it necessary to fight desperately for possession of the coast.

It is only by a permanent occupation of Belgium that the Kaiser can bring to bear an effective pressure on the British in a peace conference which must follow the war.

From a military standpoint he has little to gain by an occupation of such towns as Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne, but from a diplomatic standpoint, it would vastly strengthen his position.

PRESS CLUB IS INVITED

TRAIN BEARING GIFTS FOR CHRISTMAS SHIP WILL START TONIGHT

Big Packing Cases Filled With Gifts for War-Stricken People Hauled to Depot.

PUPILS' GIFT IS LARGEST

Penny Contributions Total Splendid Sum—Money Subscribed All Spent for Useful Merchandise.

By Vella Winner.

Tonight on the eastbound O-W, R. & N. train will see the departure of Portland's share in the great world charity, the Christmas Ship cargo.

One of the big packing cases was left open Saturday and yesterday the related gifts were packed, the boxes nailed up and this afternoon they were hauled down to the baggage room of the O-W, R. & N. by the Oregon Transfer company, who gave its services free of charge.

The largest and most significant contribution coming from any one institution was that turned in by the pupils of Portland's public schools.

The penny contributions made a really splendid sum, and at the same time it was not a burden on anyone; but most important of all was the beautiful lesson in brotherhood which was taught.

The schools contributing to the fund not mentioned in the first list included: Willoughby, Hoffman, Montavilla, Shaver, Mount Taber, Woodman, Llewellyn, Sellwood, Woodmere, Oakley Green, Kerns, Arleta, Lincoln High Lane.

Mrs. R. R. Hoge sent down a box of sweaters Saturday night, and a package received from Medford Monday morning were included in the contributions sent. A check for $20.44 was received Saturday from the school children of Corvallis. An envelope containing $1.24 in pennies, from one of the schools, although no name of giver, was also one of the last contributions.

The total amount of contributions received in cash, money orders and checks was $37.35. This money was spent in several of Portland's stores, the purchases including men's, women's, children's underwear, hosiery and shoes, bedding and flannelette towels and socks for women. A liberal discount was allowed on all purchases, so that the amount covered an enormous amount of good, serviceable merchandise.

McArthur Unfaithful, Also.

C. N. McArthur is another unfaithful servant who is seeking to represent the district at Washington. His record in state legislature is conclusive evidence of his unfitness for public office. He is one of those who sought to "put the knife" to State One. He was the leader of the first city-wide recall election. He spent the state the enormous sum of $1,000,000 on appropriations passed by the legislature. McArthur, as speaker of the house, called back the members in the race, is conceded on all hands to be the most corrupt deal made before the primaries between the Oregonian and the Daily News. He is the Oregonian candidate for the legislature. A liberal discount was allowed on all purchases, so that the amount covered an enormous amount of good, serviceable merchandise.

Color of Lights Will Tell Results

Outcome of Recall Election Will Be Flashed From The Journal Building Tonight.

Everybody is interested in Portland's first city-wide recall election. Has the mayor and two commissioners been recalled? This will be the question on many lips tonight.

The Journal has made preparations to flash the election returns, as fast as they come in, on a big screen just across the street from The Journal building.

As the ballot is short the returns should begin to come in early. The public can see them on The Journal's screen.

When the results of the election are known, The Journal will flash the news from the tower of The Journal building.

A brilliantly illuminated building will mean that the recall has failed. If there are red lights on the four corners of the building, the recall has carried.

If there are green lights on the four corners of the building, the recall has only partially carried.

Good Movie Film Is Lost in Excitement

When the muzzle was removed from the dog of F. S. Forest, Twenty-fourth and Hoyt street, to take a picture of the dog the other day, little did the family think a dog fight would follow.

Nearby the bunch of Dr. Ben L. Norden was watching the proceedings.

When the photographer was ready to make the picture, the physician's dog bounded across the lawn and a fight followed, with the result that the physician's dog was considerably chewed by the Forest dog. This and other instances in which the Forest dog has been involved formed the basis of a charge by Dr. Norden against Forest for keeping a vicious dog. The case will be heard Thursday.

New Currency Law Slow in Operation

Portland Bankers Don't Expect to Get Reserve Banknotes Before the First of January.

So slowly is the federal reserve banking system being worked out and so favorably are current financial needs being taken care of under the Vreeland-Aldrich currency act that Portland bankers do not expect to receive the banknotes of the new reserve bank much before the first of the year.

It is the plan gradually to retire the emergency currency issued under the Aldrich-Vreeland bill, supplanting it with the new currency, which will involve a lower interest rate and therefore will be welcomed.

This interest rate will vary according to the locality and will depend, as obtaining with other commodities than money, upon the volume of demand.

Bankers point to the rapid decline in foreign exchange as an indication that the time is rapidly approaching when the new currency will have the advantage in international business.

The gold pool and the establishment of a government credit system in Oregon by the Canadian branch of the Bank of England will handle transactions after the plan of the clearing house are said to be prominent factors in bringing about this change in the balance of trade.

Pending the organization of the regional reserve banks and with the resumption of foreign wheat shipments, local bankers say the outlook is constantly improving.

RALLYING OF VOTERS TO FLEGEL RENDERS ELECTION CERTAINTY

remained away any longer. To save his pay he reluctantly went back.

During the five months that he was absent from his post, Lafferty drew salary from the government to the amount of $3125. For this liberal pay Lafferty rendered no return whatever.

Probably there is not another member either of the house or the senate, from any state, who has been such a persistent absentee as Congressman Lafferty. Certainly Oregon has never had a representative who was so delinquent.

Furthermore, the enormous quantity of campaign literature which Lafferty is sending out under his frank constitutes another gross abuse.

It was all printed at government expense, and the government, through the postoffice department, bears all the cost of distributing it to the voters. The total expense to the government will run into thousands of dollars.

declarations of 1911, 1913, and will try to do it in 1915, asserted the speaker, unless the voters are on the alert. Under their legislative activities, Dr. Smith said, the enormous increase in taxes, the increase in 10 years having amounted to 240 per cent.

"Now Dr. Withycombe wants harmony with this crowd," Dr. Smith asserted. "Do you want it? I don't believe in harmony at such price and such cost."

Dr. Withycombe is going about the state saying that the people are tired of the fighting at Salem every two years. I fancy that you people don't mind a little lapping at Salem if $3,000,000 is lapped at Salem if $3,000,000 legislative program was done in 1913.

"I am absolutely opposed to the introduction into this country of labor that will drag down the condition of the laboring man instead of lifting him up. I am absolutely opposed to any lowering of the bars on Japanese, Chinese or Hindu labor invasion."

"My opinion is that I would rather have Oregon in that primeval state described by Bryant in 'Thanatopsis' than to have it said that its development is due to that class of people."

"What I say to you comes from my own mind and my own mouth. I have no one telling me what to do. No clique, clan or interest has any power or interest over me. If you elect me to the office, you will have to trust the responsibilities of the office to me."

Child Slept While Mother, in Tears, Searched for Her

Garibaldi, Or., Oct. 27.—Like Little Boy Blue, Nellie, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thompson, fell asleep under a bench where she had crawled to hide from her father.

The whole countryside turned out to search for her when the night shades began to fall and she hadn't been home to supper. Men waded up and down the Miami river, dreading what they expected to find. Nellie's mother and other mothers who have baby girls of their own, cried to themselves as they stumbled about in the timber and called and called until their throats were sore.

Then, when Mrs. Thompson was beginning to feel that she might never see her little daughter again, she suddenly whistled shrieked out that one of the searchers had seen a youngster's foot sticking out from beneath the bench in a back yard and that Nellie had been found.

Quartet Sings New British War Song

Victor Records Just Issued Contain New Famous Song, "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary."

An opportunity to hear the British war song, "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary," the song which caused such a sensation among the clergy in England recently, is presented by the American quartet on the Victor records just issued. This song is in great demand, and on the Victor records will be one of the first chances to hear it.

Among the new records is the favorite old ballad, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," rendered by a violin solo by Maud Powell, songs by Mrs. Schumann-Heink, and many others.

Then, for those who enjoy dancing, particularly the new dances, there are eight new records. Raymond Hitchcock, in some of his funny stories, is heard on the Victor, and Harry Lauder comes forward with a new song, "The Messenger Boy," sung by Maud Powell, songs by Mrs. Schumann-Heink, and many others.

Recommend Cripple For Carnegie Medal

Mayor Albee Edwards Elmer C. Kimberlin for Deeds of Heroism While Watchman on Bridge.

Elmer C. Kimberlin, a cripple, who has a record of having saved 20 persons from drowning while employed for 18 months as night timekeeper and watchman on the construction of the O-W, R. & N. bridge, was presented by Mayor Albee yesterday with a $50 leg brace.

The device will enable him to resume active labor and earn good wages again. The mayor summoned Mr. Kimberlin to his residence at Sunday and told him that he had made personal application to have Kimberlin's life saving record examined with a view to securing for him a Carnegie hero fund pension and medal.

Kimberlin was employed by the state as an armorer at the time he was injured by falling through a defective sidewalk.

Boy Is "There With Bells"

Just as the alarm clock started to clang yesterday morning as a signal for the occupants of the house to rise, a fine son was born to Patrolman and Mrs. Frank Hutton at 1212 Moore street. The lad tipped the scales at 8 1/2 pounds, but in spite of this husky prospect his policeman-father dislikes to think he is destined for the police force. "All I can think of," the father confided to friends yesterday, "is to deny to get him up in opposition to Denny Lane in the grocery business on the east side."

Daly Says Protest Not Well Grounded

Residents of Errol Heights Object to Having Water Meters Installed, Although District Is Out of City.

Although residents of Errol Heights, a district outside of the city limits, are protesting against the plan of being required to install a meter on their water service as given by the city, Will H. Daly, commissioner of public utilities, says that they have no just cause for complaint. Residents of the district held a mass meeting last Saturday night to consider the demands of the city.

In line with a policy adopted some time ago, every residential district outside of the city limits and Using Bull Run water is required to install a meter, so that the water bureau may know how much water is being used, that a charge can be made accordingly.

Commissioner Daly says this policy was decided upon, as many users outside the city limits were found using Bull Run water freely for their stock, and the water bureau had no way of ascertaining the amount.

Errol Heights residents say that installation of a meter would cost $11 to each consumer and would work a hardship on the small homeowners of that section.

DR. C. J. SMITH FINDS SUPPORT IN RANKS OF BUSY WORKMEN

Mill Men Lend Earnest Ear to Message of Democratic Candidate.

CHEERS GREET SPEAKER

Gubernatorial Seeker's Stand for American Labor Gets Favor of Men Who Toil With Hands.

"There are about 75 voters here, but I don't believe Dr. Withycombe will get half a dozen of them."

That was the comment of an employee of the Emerson Hardwood company after Dr. C. J. Smith had made a short noon address today to the men in the mill.

"I will vote for Dr. Smith for governor," said a young man who declared that Dr. Smith's visit and short talk at the mill had determined him on the gubernatorial question. "Some of us are not of his party, but we will vote for the right kind of a candidate, whether he is Republican or Democratic," said a third.

The candidate for governor had an audience of something like 100 men, who had hurried with their lunch to be able to give him a few minutes of their noon hour. There was no noisy demonstration. Only twice did the men applaud the candidate, once when he declared in favor of American labor as against Hindu, Chinese or Japanese, and again after he had finished his talk. But the men gathered in front of the company's office showed by their manner and by the few things they said before returning to work that they were in full sympathy with Dr. Smith.

Dr. Smith did not discuss national matters. Pleading directly into state issues, he warned the voters against the assembly bill and advised them to vote it down. He urged vocational education and was applauded when he said he did not want to see American labor dragged down, declaring himself absolutely opposed to the introduction in Oregon of Asiatic people.

"If you think I can help you as governor of Oregon, then I ask your vote next Tuesday," said Dr. Smith in closing. "I assure you here and now that if you elect C. J. Smith governor he will be ready at all times to give you a hearing."

It was after Dr. Smith had finished his talk and was shaking hands with
