An old business house will quit forever!

By David M. Botsford. Old timers in Portland can look back 20, 30, 40 years, to the time when the name Rummelin & Gutmann was a familiar sight over the old fur store down on First street.

Today I met the Misses Rummelin, now in charge of this business. They are closing out the entire store—winding up the affairs of this old-established firm and QUITTING BUSINESS.

I am not a fur expert, but I could readily see that while their FURS WERE RIGHT UP TO THE FASHIONS OF THE MINUTE, they were of that GENUINENESS AND WORKMANSHIP FOR WHICH THE NAME

Rummelin has stood for almost half a century. If the women of Portland only realized that this magnificent stock of furs is being disposed of at sacrifice prices, they would not be long in grasping the rare opportunity.

100 pieces of fine furs to be sold at half price! Owing to the great response Monday and Tuesday, this extraordinary offering will be continued until the 100 are sold.

Remember the location. G. P. Rummelin & Sons—Quitting business forever—Second St. Between Washington and Alder.
