"Leaking" Honey Now. Pendleton, Or., Oct. 29.—To have a leaky roof overhead is bad enough, but to have one that drips honey instead of water is a little worse. This is what Councilman D. D. Phelps of this city has to contend with, and he will have to tear out an old chimney before he can stop the leak. A swarm of bees have converted the chimney into a hive, and have filled it with honey. The warmth of an adjacent chimney with the lighting of fall fires has caused the honey to drip out and saturate the ceiling.

"We couldn't keep prosperity away if we tried," said Wilfrid P. Jones, vice president of the Merchants National bank. "We've got to admit that we've gone through somewhat of a sweating process, but we are going to be all the better for it. What we have to sell is being bought; demands are increasing."

War Has Good Result

"Had it not been for the war business would have been moving steadily upward before this. President Wilson would have announced that the administration policies were established and business could go ahead. The war came and created temporary chaos. But it had an indirectly good result."

"Financial interests and President Wilson had been on strained terms. The war came in like a person who tries to settle trouble between a man and his wife. They are both apt to turn on that person. So the war made business and the administration stand together with the result that business finds it can have confidence in the president and can safely plan progress."

continue with my law enforcement policy, as I have the past."

Prisoners Are Well Treated

Roscoe P. Hurlburt, in his talk, referred to Sheriff Word and the manner in which he had enforced the law, and how he handled the prisoners. "I had heard from the opponents of Word that he was giving his prisoners poor food, and his treatment was inhuman. It happened to be in his office one day and asked him about it. 'We'll go out to the rockpile right now,' said Word, and out we went. The men in charge of the rockpile did not know we were coming, so nothing could have been arranged for my benefit."

"We arrived in time for dinner, and I can tell you that the prisoners' dinner, of which I partook, was just as good as many of us are eating every day. The food was clean and wholesome, the kind of which no one could complain."

He talked about how his opponent, C. M. Hurlburt, had been repudiated by the Republican party after it had been found the kind of man Hurlburt was. He said that (Hurlburt) had received the endorsement of the Republican party, and the only thing the people could do was to vote for him for the legislature.

Democrats Hold Lead

A straw ballot was taken in the Baltimore ball lunch room, on Washington street, yesterday noon. The vote was as follows: For senator, Booth 24, Chamberlain 28, Hanley 8; for congressman, Flegel 18, Lafferty 13, McArthur 11, Moulton 6; for governor, C. J. Smith 23, Withycombe 15, Ren 2; for sheriff, Word 32, Hurlburt 18.

Milton A. Miller will leave today for Crook county, where he will deliver five addresses Friday and Saturday in the interest of Senator Chamberlain and Dr. C. J. Smith, candidate for governor. He will speak at Bend, Madras, Redmond, Sisters and Prineville.

Progressive candidates are now holding street meetings each night. They are also delivering addresses in various motion picture theatres, between films.

"As long as more than one half of the land of the state of Oregon lies idle and undeveloped the people of the state can expect to pay high cost for living," stated William Hanley, one of the latest land holders in the state and candidate for the senate, in an address at the Brooklyn theatre last night. He urged cheaper money for farm loans, and said the government should do something to bring about a reduction in interest rates.

BEST OF TIMES PREDICTED BY CITY'S BANKERS

Business Decks Cleared for Action

"From speculation to progress" was the descriptive phrase used by E. G. Crawford, vice president of the Lumbermen National bank. "In the business world our decks are cleared for action," he said. "Or, to use another figure of speech, business is getting on solid ground. It must be admitted that we made progress artificially, that we made unwarranted business ventures. Our prosperity is based on two things—the production and sale of farm products and the manufacture of the raw into the finished product. Our farm products and our manufactured articles are both in demand at

Now are you going to send a man to the office of chief executive who is spineless, who advances no ideas for better government? Those who profit by organized vice, those who profit by plundering the public interest, are always in favor of the man with the least force of character, because they can profit by his weakness. "It is to your interest to elect a man who will run the state business in a business-like way. If Dr. Withycombe is elected he will soon be called upon to write a message to the legislature. Surely he has some ideas of his own, unless he intends to let the Oregonian more unfairly. When I was working on the rivers and harbors bill that paper fought the measure tooth and nail, although in his heart it wanted money for the improvement of the Columbia and Willamette and the Oregon streams. Yet it would defeat the whole measure to injure me. People in the east were led to believe this paper reflected the sentiment of the people of Oregon."

Oregonian Blocks Appropriations

"When I would go to other senators and beseech their favorable consideration of items dear to Oregon they would not do so. The Oregonian from their pockets attacking the rivers and harbors bill and then ask me why I should ask them for anything when the leading paper of my state, so-called, was opposing the bill."

In his discussion of administration measures Senator Chamberlain described the currency act and termed it a party but not a partisan measure as it was supported in congress by men of all shades of political opinion. He quoted A. L. Mills, president of the National bank of Portland, and Republican, as saying that the new system would serve as an effective check on panics. "My opponent," said Senator Chamberlain, "should be reversed. This is one of them, having among its features the establishment of a reserve system and authorizing the reissuing of notes, authorizing money on real estate collateral and the fixing of legal rates of interest. Would you reverse it?"

Other Towns Visited

Senator Chamberlain left Corvallis yesterday morning for Monmouth, covering the 20 miles between the two cities by auto. He addressed an audience of about 150 persons in a Monmouth theatre being greeted on his arrival by the Mayor and Mayor P. H. Johnson introduced him. The senator went directly to Independence following his morning talk, speaking at the Isola theatre in that city, and then to the residence of N. L. Butler, an independence pioneer, introduced him. Senator Chamberlain was enthusiastically received in both cities. The 250 persons heard him in the afternoon.

He came to Dallas by auto with Postmaster D. P. Fiske and County Chairman F. H. Fawke of Dallas late in the afternoon.

Today he was to visit Dayton, McMinnville, Carlton and Hillsboro.

"LINCOLN'S FAITH IN PLAIN PEOPLE IS MY FAITH"—C. J. SMITH

Opposes Cheap Oriental Labor

"I am very much interested in building up mankind and much can be done by helping the American laborer. The way to drag down the American laborer is to bring Chinese, Japanese and Hindu here as has been advocated by one of the candidates for governor. If I am elected, and have any power, I will do everything possible to supplement the rulings of the federal government in this regard and will not go further by taking such steps as are necessary to protect the state of Oregon from such encroachment. "There is a very grave danger staring us all in the face and that is the bill to turn back to the old assembly system. Its adoption means the end of the direct primary. It will give the same old gang of political bosses the right to call an assembly so that they can name the ticket, and you will have to swallow what they give you. The adoption of this vicious bill will set us back 25 years."

Plan Attack on Primary

"The same old crowd that robbed you before by taking your timber lands, your school lands and your tide lands, is behind the initiative bill to provide for an assembly. Through this assembly they plan to strike at the direct primary. There are many money deputies in the county and state offices now, but the same crowd behind the assembly bill like this, for it means a place for their friends. "Extravagance in handling the business of the state has greatly increased your taxes. The legislature is responsible for this condition. What are you going to do when the legislature passes big appropriations? My opponent tells you that he believes in harmonious government and the legislature, but I tell you the way that these enormous appropriations can be stopped is by vetoing the bill. But that is not the way to go. "The legislator makes his reputation by securing big appropriations for his county, so naturally each does what he can to get through the bills. We have seen the effect of a program before. The same crowd that worked out the harmony program in the '90s is now for the assembly plan."

"If the rest of the state can go forward as have the public schools we should apply the same principles in our public schools. The prosperity of the people then in coming years, will be in knowing how to care for themselves."

Flegel Discusses National Issues

Mr. Flegel outlined the policies of President Woodrow Wilson, declaring that he stood for the same principles that the president was advocating. "They criticized President Wilson for his peace policy in regard to Mexico," stated Mr. Flegel, "but that now when the big European countries are involved in a terrible conflict there is no one to criticize the president's policy. There have been 29 treaties of peace negotiated, signed and completed under President Wilson."

"The president has asked the people to show their confidence in him and his policies by giving him a congress that will support him."

"Now is the time for patriotism—not the patriotism of war, but the patriotism that stands for Woodrow Wilson. Give him the support that he asks. Let the United States lead the nations in the contest for peace. Let us all stand together in this election, and go to the polls as patriots and not as partisans."

Word Gets Cordial Reception

Tom Word's policy of law enforcement has won him the respect of all the law abiding element as shown by the reception he is getting at the various meetings where he has been. He received a tremendous ovation at both gatherings last night.

"The Oregonian and the Portland News have been lots of things about me," declared Sheriff Word, "but I think I can tell you more about myself than they can. I am for law enforcement in the county last and at the time, I have closed the roadhouse, I am talking as you know, and if elected I will continue to enforce the law as I find it on the statute books."

"The News would tell you that my treatment of prisoners has been inhuman. Let me tell you right now the county jail is always open to the taxpayers of this county and it is today. Come and see for yourself, the way the prisoners are handled. "Or thing more—if the county goes dry this election, I am going to keep it dry; and if it goes wet, I will con-

WOMEN OF DALLAS MEET CHAMBERLAIN ESCORT TO ARMORY

Wilson Club in Marching Order Give Unusual Reception to the Senator.

CROWD HEARS SPEECH

Speaker Warns Against Calumnies and Tells How Oregonian Helped Block the Rivers and Harbors Bill.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Dallas, Or., Oct. 29.—The pretty little city of Dallas, nestled in the foothills of the Coast range, gave to Senator George E. Chamberlain last night one of the warmest welcomes he has yet received in his present campaign for reelection. And the welcome came not only from the men of the city, but from the women as well.

Sharing with the men the reception of the senator in this city was the Wilson club, an organization of Democratic women, so arranged, according to the policies of Woodrow Wilson and devoted to the candidacy of George E. Chamberlain for United States senator.

Headed by their president, Mrs. M. L. Boyd, wife of the editor of the Polk County Itemizer, they marched, two by two, to the New Scott hotel before the meeting to meet the senator at an informal reception in the hotel parlors. Each wore a tiny American flag and each pronounced herself to be a Chamberlain woman."

Without the town band played rag-time and stirring marches; scores of people lined the street along the courthouse square, and the hotel lobby was thronged with a gala occasion. It was Chamberlain night.

And then, preceded by the band, the women of the Wilson club formed in a column of two and escorted the senator to their distinguished visitor. Senator Chamberlain brought up at the rear on the arm of Mayor J. G. Van Orsdal, who acted as chairman of the evening.

Audience Fills Armory

The party walked the three blocks to the Dallas armory to find it filled with an audience of over 600 persons who greeted the senator with enthusiastic applause as he mounted the platform, which was decorated with American flags and fresh cut flowers. Mayor Van Orsdal had finished his introductory speech and Senator Chamberlain had stepped to the front of the platform, when the senator dropped from the wall behind him, disclosing likenesses of both President Wilson and Oregon's senior senator. This was the signal for wild applause.

The senator spoke for nearly two hours, explaining the policies of the administration and stating his own case.

In his discussion of the Underwood tariff law he pointed to the present high prices of wheat and other commodities, to the signs of a coming howling cry of hard times and to show that the oft repeated fear of low prices because of decreased duties was without basis.

Higher Prices for Farmers

"I am not foolish enough to contend," he said, "that because the duty has been removed prices are up, but I do deny that high duties are the cause of low prices. Prices are regulated by the great law of supply and demand, and high prices are now obtainable for American farm products because of a scarcity of foodstuffs in foreign countries where war now rages has brought about an increased demand. Farmers are being urged to move, the ocean lanes of commerce now being free, and with the prospect of a long drawn out war in Europe, even higher prices for American commodities are to be expected. "The commodity for which prices are low is that of the crowd which is trying to beat me the lumber industry. There is no complaint anywhere else along the line."

Senator Chamberlain referred to the bitter personal attacks which are being made against him and warned his hearers to expect such abuse in the days before the conclusion of the present campaign, as his opponents were unable to point to a single public act of his that could be seriously criticized.

Faithful to His Duty

"I have never neglected my duty," he said. "I challenge comparison of my record with that of any of our colleagues in the senate. During my term of service I have failed to answer but about 150 roll calls out of 3000. The records of the senate show it."

The senator told how a great metropolitan paper in Portland had handicapped his efforts in behalf of the people of Oregon. "Never have I received fair treatment from the Oregonian," he said. "No paper has treated me

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself.

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heat the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only five cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. It heats the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation.
