The visiting queens will include Queen Anne IV (Miss Grace Lilly) of Salem; Queen Mildred Homan of Eugene; Mrs. T. At the Armory ceremonies will be held in the ball room prior to high jinks. The committee in charge consists of C. C. Colt, chairman; C. C. Chapman, William McMurray, Mayor Albee, H. L. Pittcock, C. The Portland Grocers and Merchants' association will celebrate tonight also.

Willamette valley people are celebrating this afternoon. Among the delegations that arrived today was one 219 strong from Forest Grove which was headed by Mayor Goff. The delegation is at the Portland Commercial club.

Canning Contest Feature.
Among the features of the afternoon is the girls' canning contest, which will be held tomorrow and Saturday also in the O. A. booth. The contest, which is under the direction of U. J. Chapin of Salem and F. W. Rader of Lane county, is between two teams of five girls each. The Chemawa Indian school team consists of Alice Keeley, Clara McKinney, Mary Lester, Frances Aubrey and Leona John.

The Lane county team's membership is: Irene Holdredge, Edna Boynton, Eleanor Cruzan, Phyllis Morseman and Tessie Sellers.

The University of Oregon Glee club quartet will give a concert tonight in the temporary theatre and H. B. Miller will speak on "Some Phases of the Oregon Industrial Survey."

Tomorrow will be Woodburn day. The Portland Realty Board also will spend an hour or so at the exposition following the regular Friday luncheon and at night the Elks, headed by the Elks band, will parade the streets.

The attendance at the exposition is increasing each succeeding day. The art exhibit is attracting throngs. Another interesting exhibit in the ballroom is a safety first show. Every safeguard suggested by the city fire officials has been installed. As safeguard against fire, there are four firemen on duty, four police, 16 militiamen and at night four watchmen.

Saturday night—Manufacturers' night at the exposition—$150 worth of goods will be given away. Each person attending will be given a number and 25 of these will be winners and entitled to the lucky holders to prizes ranging in value from $1 to $50.

Last night the Knights and Ladies of Security enjoyed the show. The search for "Official Knight and Lady" whose capture would have netted the captor $10 for each one, proved interesting. But Postmaster Myers concealed them too well and they were not discovered. Dr. A. K. Higgs presided at the platform exercises and L. M. Thomas and Arthur Moulton spoke.

CORPORATION. PLAN FOR THE RELIEF OF UNEMPLOYED IN VIEW

Meeting of Business Men Held at Which Matter of Getting Work Is Discussed.

A corporation to relieve unemployment in Portland may be the result of a meeting by a voluntary committee of business men Tuesday afternoon.

Various plans were discussed, but that which found most favor was a proposal to organize a company which will be represented by a thoroughly competent manager in locating jobs of land clearing, wood splitting and road repair for men who need work. They found feasible to encourage men to make contracts for splitting cordwood and clearing land, holding them responsible both to the land owner and the company to meet the cost and to be reimbursed out of the contract price paid by the land owner.

Must Do Real Work.
But, whatever is done, it was emphatically agreed that jobless men for whom work is found must be willing to do good solid work for not much more than enough to live on.

Portland is to be made no mecca for the idle because business men and public officials concern themselves for their employment, it was insisted.

The meeting was held in the offices of Franklin T. Griffith, president of the Portland Realty Light & Power company. Mr. Griffith presided. Others present were W. B. Ayer, president of the Eastern & Western Lumber company; J. C. English, president of the Rotary club; Levi Johnson, manager of the Men's Resort; Hy Eilers of Eilers Piano House; Arthur L. Fish, business manager of The Journal; W. L. Brewster, city commissioner of public affairs; W. L. Lightner, county commissioner; John F. Carroll, publisher of the Telegram; C. C. Chapman, publicity manager of the Commercial club.

Commissioner Brewster said he believed spitting cord wood and paying men by the cord offers the most feasible way of relieving unemployment.

Details Are Given.
The details of the plan for organizing a company to relieve unemployment were given by Mr. Fish.

Commissioner Lightner said he doubted if the county could do anything until after the first of the year, as the money for the road fund does not begin to come in until that time.

All were agreed that such a shelter for the unemployed as was afforded last winter in the Gypsy Smith auditorium should never be opened again.

J. C. English, Amos Benson and Levi Johnson were appointed a committee to formulate a definite plan of action.

NATIONAL THEATRE IS ADMIRRED BY THROG OF INVITED GUESTS

New Motion Picture House Equals in Beauty Any Playhouse in City.

FORMAL OPENING TONIGHT

Children's Playground in Basement Is Startling Innovation; Big Hippodrome Success Feature of Bill.

When Melvin G. Winstock made the statement last evening from the stage of the new National theatre that he and his associates, although they may not have reached their highest ideal, had given to Portland a theatre in which the entire citizenship could take pride, he voiced the sentiment of the hundreds of guests who assembled for the private opening.

Mr. Winstock paid high tribute to the architect, the builders, the artisans and all those who had given their services in making the National the climax of motion picture building and equipment in Portland. He said that the work of the exhibitors in Portland had been of such high quality as to give it the reputation of being the most advanced motion picture center in the country and that it would be the policy of the management to conduct the National theatre in such a way as to deserve the continued appreciation and good will of its friends and patrons.

Looks Like "Real Theatre."
The feature of the new theatre that seemed to give the most astonishment was that it seemed like a "real theatre" and not a show house for motion pictures. In every respect it is equipped with a completeness and luxury that betoken the standard place of amusement of high class. There is not a more beautiful theatre in the city than the new National. Its color scheme has been developed in ivory, buff and Dutch blue. The draperies and carpets are all in blue with the seats upholstered in leather of lighter blue grey. Splendid discretion has been used in the decoration and there is not a discordant note nor too much of anything.

Above the proscenium arch is a beautiful piece of mural painting typifying peace and liberty. The ceiling is centered with a massive indirect lighting fixture suspended from the center of a great circle of exquisite mural work. The stage is large enough to accommodate a small dramatic performance, and last evening it was given a magnificent setting.

An innovation that met with great favor is the promenade that extends from Park to West Park on the balcony floor. It is beautifully furnished, as are the men's smoking rooms and the women's rest rooms. In the women's room a maid is in attendance.

Playground Great Innovation.
Perhaps the greatest innovation of all is the children's playground in the basement, where two maids are in charge, and mothers are invited to leave their kiddies while attending a program. Sand piles, chutes, swings, shovels, dolls, Teddy bears and all sorts of fascinating juvenile attractions are there to amuse the little people, who gave the playground a thorough initiation last evening.

There are three distinct ventilating systems so that the air in every portion of the theatre is kept constantly pure. There are more exits than the law requires. The floral decorations for the opening are exceptionally beautiful. The balconies, on either side of the proscenium arch, are banked with yellow chrysanthemums and flaming autumn leaves and great chrysanthemums were in the foyer, in the promenade, on either side of the stage and, in fact, every place where they could be used to advantage.

"America" Feature of Program.

The feature of the opening program is a film version of the New York Hippodrome's monster spectacle, "America." It is so big that it is difficult to realize that a stage spectacle and not an outdoor scene is being viewed. Automobiles whiz by, troops of horses gallop on and off, the fire department rushes on and an immense Hippodrome chorus looks like a small army. The climax of the picture is toward the close in the court of honor where the chorus girls do their famous submarine walk and vanish under water to remain there until they are almost forgotten when they bob up to sing the finale. A capital Vitagraph comedy is "The Peacemaker" with Norma Talmadge and other of the big V. stars.

The first number on the program was music by the seven piece orchestra, Dr. R. M. Emerson followed with vocal selections and met with an ovation. The National trio of male singers also scored heavily. The remaining vocal attraction was the solos of Miss Eva De Vurna. The attendance was so great that it was necessary to give two performances in order to accommodate the guests. The theatre will be formally opened and dedicated to the public this evening.

OLD TAYLOR STREET CHURCH TO SHELTER THE HOMELESS MEN

Announcement Made by Dr. Frank Loveland of the First M. E. Church.

DEAL IS MADE WITH CITY

Dissenting Faction Continues With Plans for Carrying on Court Fight; Definite Action Due Soon.

Announcement was made today by Dr. Frank L. Loveland, pastor of the First Methodist church, that the old church, building at Third and Taylor streets, abandoned by the congregation recently, has been turned over to the city for the winter for the purpose of housing homeless men out of work. The building will be used as a shelter for the same purpose that the Gypsy Smith auditorium was used last year, but the arrangement is much better.

The decision to make this use of the old building was reached by the church trustees early this week, and Dr. Loveland was authorized to carry on the negotiations. He saw Commissioner Brewster and Mayor Albee yesterday, and they heartily approve the arrangement.

Captain in Charge.
The building will be under the supervision of Staff Captain Andrews of the Salvation Army, but he will be backed up in the work by Commissioner Brewster. It was stated that at least 400 men can be accommodated there. Another finer can be built across between the balconies that will accommodate 400 more men if necessary. The city will be expected to stand heating and lighting expense. The building will be turned over for this purpose as soon as necessary, and is given rent free to April 1.

Court Fight Looms.

When the congregation moved to Grace church at Twelfth and Taylor streets, nearly 300 members refused to leave Third and Taylor streets. The old building was locked to them, and they have been meeting in the street in front of the structure. These people have been insisting on the right to worship at Third and Taylor streets, and an action in court is now being considered.

Attorney Martin L. Pipes has been retained by the "insurgents" and will make some move within a few days. Prominent members of the "insurgents" said they were greatly surprised at this last action of the "regulars" with regard to the building.

Name Not Official.
Washington, Oct. 28.—Grace Harr, postmistress at Watkins, Jackson county, has married and been reappointed as Grace Lewis.
