

GRANGE RECOMMENDS THAT STATE SENATE NOW BE ABOLISHED

Let Referendum, Initiative and Recall Be Check on Legislature, Is Plea.

PRESENT SYSTEM SCORED

History Shows Single House Plan Is Successful in Practice, It Is Declared.

Nearly every candidate for the legislature is pledged for economy and for the consolidation or abolition of offices wherever practicable. Whether these pledges will be fulfilled depends largely upon the action of the voters and their disposition to abolish unnecessary offices where they have the opportunity.

Ballot number 250 gives an opportunity to reduce the number of legislators by one third and dispense with a large number of clerks and stenographers, placing undivided responsibility upon a one house legislature, thus showing confidence in the initiative, referendum and recall as being a better check upon the legislature than is a steam roller political organization like that of the last state senate.

Argument Is Awarded.
We are told that state senators as a rule are older and more experienced than the members of the house, that the state senate has always stood between the taxpayers and the extravagance of the house, and that the whole history of civilization is replete with proofs that a single chamber legislature is a mistake.

If the senate is abolished the older and experienced members may be returned to the house just as long as their services are satisfactory to a majority of the voters, and they will have more power and influence in a one house legislature than if set apart in a chamber by themselves.

The state senate has not always stood between the taxpayer and the house, but has been equally extravagant. Appropriation bills are usually made larger than expected to pass so as to make a showing for economy. Present history is full of proofs that a single house legislative body can be successful, economical and much more efficient than the dual chamber body. States that changed to the two house system did not have the initiative, referendum and recall as checks upon the legislature.

Theories Not Practical.
Some theories are beautiful to look upon but not so practical when put into operation. The old convention system of nominating candidates was perfect in theory but in practice it was so manipulated that it became a menace to free government. In theory the voters of each precinct were to meet and select the most honest and capable of their number to represent them in the county convention. These delegates, in turn, being the more intelligent and patriotic of our citizens, were to select the men who were the best qualified to serve in the different offices. But it did not work out that way.

Just so with the theory of a two house legislature in which each is supposed to be a check upon the other. In fact it affords the machine politician and the trickster a chance to do his work between the two branches and gives the members double the opportunity for trading and logrolling and to dodge responsibility.

Just as the people assumed the power and responsibility of selecting their candidates through the direct primary, they may now assume the right and responsibility of checking the work of the legislature through the initiative, referendum and recall.

Abolish the state senate and it will simplify legislation, fix responsibility and promote efficiency and economy.

RETURN OF SENATOR CHAMBERLAIN ON HIS RECORD IS PREDICTED

President Needs All the Support He Can Muster in the Next Congress.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal).

Washington, Nov. 2.—Interest here is keen over the election results in Oregon. The prognosticators who have been keeping track of the political sentiment throughout the country seem to be satisfied that Senator Chamberlain will be reelected by a handsome plurality. The senator's record in congress is in part responsible for this optimism, and the high indorsement he has received from big officials, from President Wilson down, adds to the confidence of the forecasters. They point out the bad policy that would be shown in sending a new untried man, out of harmony with the administration and of doubtful political principles, to take the place of a statesman of high rank whose efficient service, added to his powerful position due to "seniority," makes him a factor to be reckoned with and a host in himself when matters vital to the state of Oregon are under consideration.

The constructive work of this administration, wonderful as it has been during the short time it has been in operation, has really but just commenced. There are those who predict that immediately following the end of the short session on March 4 next, the president will find it imperative to call another special session to continue the task of putting his policies on the statute books. With a reduced Democratic majority probable in the house, and a determined assault on the small majority in the senate being made by the reactionaries of all political complexions, it becomes more than ever necessary for the progressive voters of Oregon to rally to the standard of Senator Chamberlain and by the size of his plurality demonstrate that they are still for honesty and progress in national legislation, as well as national administration.

Despite the absence of both Oregon senators in Oregon, their offices here are open and the full complement of secretaries and clerks are actively engaged in attending to such business as comes before them for attention. Much of this is of a routine character, but it is nearly all essential and much of it is of very great interest and importance to Oregon.

Two German Words Enough for I. Cobb

Magazine Writer, Back From the War Zone, Says He Can Repeat "Nicht Schieser" With Much Fluency.

New York, Nov. 2.—Irvin Cobb, another of the American war correspondents returning from the war zone in Europe, arrived Saturday on the Cunarder Lusitania.

"I have thoroughly learned two German words," said Mr. Cobb. "These are nicht schieser,—don't shoot." John T. McCutcheon, the Chicago cartoonist who was also a "guest" of the various German commandants for some time, also returned on the Lusitania.

Poles for Farmers' Lines.

Klamath Falls, Or., Nov. 2.—Permission to use the telephone poles of the reclamation service in the maintenance of farmer line telephones, has just been granted the Klamath Water Users' association by the Reclamation commission. This is a preliminary step in the plans of the water users for the establishment of farmer lines throughout the project, to be connected with Merrill and Klamath Falls exchanges.
